Our May Sale of Muslin Underwear Begins To-morrow and Continues Daily Until Sold.

This will be the greatest sale ever held by the John C. Lewis Co., involving as it does, $40,000 worth of reliable, well-made muslin undergarments which will be offered at unheard-of prices. Immense preparations have been made for this extraordinary sale. Mountains of clean, crisp garments will be assorted according to price and placed on separate tables. Plenty of salespeople will be ready to serve you and you can rest assured you are getting the greatest underwear values we have ever offered the Louisville shopping public. You will find everything just as we say and probably a little better. Sale starts at 8 a. m.

There are several reasons why our muslin underwear department has grown to be the largest in this vicinity. The first is that we sell only such garments as have been proven satisfactory and we do not handle second-grade or damaged goods at any price. Second, we handle no poorly made or skimpy garments, but only such as are cut full and ample. Third, the materials used are the best to be procured for the money and only superior embroideries and laces are used in their make-up. Garments cheerfully exchanged or money refunded.

NEGRO CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYEE IN GREAT HASTE TO ACCEPT RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE POSITION

H. N. Sweetnam, chief clerk of the Louisville district of the Railway Mail Service, was quietly chatting with a friend in his office yesterday afternoon, there being nothing to do but wait during office hours for any reports of sick clerks unable to take out their runs, when all at once a mighty roar indicated that some heavy individual was entering.

It was no false alarm, for before the chief clerk could raise his head an ebony-looking individual almost breathless and with his hand in his pocket, just as he was about to plunge down the elevator, and he ran back with ears erect and hands shaking as if he was about to receive instructions for secret work at a Republican primary.

"You will have to file that acceptance in writing, as it has to be forwarded to higher authorities," said Chief Clerk Sweetnam.

"All right, sir," shouted the negro as he turned again and made a dash for the exit.

On inquiry it was learned that the negro's name was John Clark and that he had been appointed as regular clerk in the Railway Mail Service and had been appointed on the run between Lawrenceburg and Danville. Clark has been acting as a substitute for about a year, but he has never before been assigned to a run in the Bluegrass region of the State. The most of his work has been done north of the Ohio River and on the Louisville and Nashville railroad between Louisville and Norton, Va. There seem to be some doubts among the friends of Clark whether or not he will like the run assigned to him. However, that remains to be seen.

PRAIRIE WOLF ATTACKS YOUNG WILLIAM WATKINS.

William Jennings Watkins, Jr., the 13-year-old son of Dr. William Watkins, near Eastwood, in the county, was attacked by a prairie wolf last Tuesday that was sent him from Texas. The boy's right leg was badly lacerated. The animal, which is only about 6 months old, was sent to young Watkins several weeks ago by a friend and had been chained in the yard until it became sufficiently tamed to be allowed to run loose. The lad was attacked while trying to pet the animal. Hearing the boy's screams, the father got a shotgun and killed the animal. Young Watkins was carried into the house where the wound was cauterized. Dr. Watkins thinks that the danger of blood poisoning is past.

MRS. MATILDA TISCHUEAR NOW 104 YEARS OF AGE.

To-morrow will celebrate Anniversary, Assisted by Louisville Flower Mission Ladies.

Mrs. Matilda Tischuear, said to be the oldest resident of Louisville and probably the oldest in the State, will to-morrow celebrate her 104th birthday anniversary at her home, 308 Franklin street. She remains remarkably good health despite her age. The Louisville Flower Mission, which for several years has assisted in her birthday celebrations, will again take part and at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon a large number of the members of the mission will go in a body to her home, where they will present her with tokens of remembrance.

Aside from her hearing becoming more defective there has been but slight change in her during the past four years. Mrs. Tischuear still attends to a few chores about the house, and keeps up her quilting work, which is her favorite pastime. Often she goes into the garden and attends to the weeding and other little work about the place.

TWO CAUCUSES

To Be Held by Republicans This Week.

WILL DECIDE ON CURRENCY LEGISLATION PROGRAMME.

NEITHER SESSION TO BE BINDING ON MEMBERS.

MAY CONSIDER PAPER ISSUE.

Washington, May 2.—The Republican members of the House will hold two caucuses next week, the first on Tuesday night and the second on Friday night. At the Tuesday night meeting they will decide whether they shall be any financial legislation by Congress during the present session, and at the second important legislation including the amendment of the Sherman anti-trust law and the regulation of injunctions by Federal courts.

Representative Watson, the Republican whip, immediately fixed upon Tuesday night as the time for the first conference. At that meeting there will be a decided effort to have the second Wednesday bill recommended as the currency measure which the House should pass at the present session, but it is expected that this effort will be vigorously opposed by the members who hold the opinion that legislation should go no further at this time than to make provision for a currency commission. The advocates of the Wednesday bill consider themselves, however, to be in the majority.

Not Binding.

Both caucuses will be in the nature of conferences and neither will be absolutely binding upon members, but it is expected that most, if not all, of the Republican Representatives will consider themselves under obligation to support any measure that may be agreed upon. The first conference will be held on Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the House chamber. The second conference is expected to be held on Friday night at 8 o'clock in the same place. The House will then consider the currency bill.

Free Paper To Be Considered.

It also is highly probable that the proposition to place the printing of news print and wood pulp on the free list of the tariff will receive serious consideration. Representative Watson to-day, to hold a number of conferences and discuss the various measures which are pending, such as the financial question, removing the tariff from wood pulp, amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law, and a conference such as we intend to hold will not bind any member participating in it.

Mr. Watson added that there is no legislative programme.

LILLEY WANTS TO TESTIFY AGAIN.

Washington, May 2.—Representative George L. Lilley, of Connecticut, under whose resolution a special committee of the House has investigated the legislative efficiency of the Electric Boat Company, is desirous of again appearing before the committee, notwithstanding the fact that he has already given oral testimony in connection with the investigation. He has written Chairman Boutwell from Waterbury, Conn., stating that he is desirous of testifying again, and that he is ready to resume the witness stand and reply to certain statements made by him in his previous testimony. The committee has taken no action on the request.

NO ARRESTS MADE IN TRAIN ROBBERY CASE.

Pittsburg, May 2.—Rumors were current here to-day that four men had been arrested in connection with the holdup and robbery of the St. Louis express train on the Pennsylvania railroad at Walker's Mills, eleven miles from here, Thursday night. It is denied, however, that any arrests have been made in the case. Up to to-night there seems to be no definite clue to the identity of the culprits.

HOUSE APPROPRIATES $250,000 FOR CYCLONE SUFFERERS.

HERMITAGE AMENDMENT REJECTED ON POINT OF ORDER.

NO HOME FOR THIS EMBASSY.

Washington, May 2.—Passage by paragraph, under suspension of the rules, of the sundry civil appropriation bill was continued in the House to-day. Consideration of the paragraph making appropriation for the geological survey was postponed by agreement until Monday, until which time the further consideration of the bill was postponed. The House, after a spirited and somewhat acrimonious debate, passed the bill appropriating $250,000 for the relief of the cyclone sufferers in the South was passed without incident.

At 5:22 p. m. the House adjourned until 12 o'clock noon to-morrow, when eulogies will be delivered upon the late Senators Mallory and Bryan, of Florida.

No Money For Hermitage.

An amendment offered by Mr. Gaines, of Pennsylvania, to the sundry civil appropriation bill appropriating $10,000 to aid the Ladies Hermitage Association to care for and preserve "The Hermitage," the home and tomb of Andrew Jackson, near Nashville, Tenn., was rejected on a point of order made by Mr. Tawney, of Minnesota.

An amendment by Mr. Smith, of Iowa, appropriating $150,000 for continuation of work on the St. Michaels canal, Alaska, until the passage of the next sundry civil bill, was agreed to without discussion. Mr. Mackay, of Arkansas, proposed to amend the paragraph appropriating $250,000 for continuing improvement of the Mississippi River from Head of Passes to the mouth of the Ohio River so that it should read "to the highlands near Cape Girardeau, Mo."

Mr. Smith of Iowa, made the point of order that the amendment would change existing law. After a sharp controversy the point of order was sustained and the amendment failed. The further consideration of the bill was then postponed until Monday.

Increase in Philippine Commission.

The bill authorizing the appointment by the President of an additional member of the Philippine Commission, naming nine members in all, was passed to-day by the House after some discussion. Under this authorization the President will separate the executive departments of finance and justice and the commission and each will be headed by a commissioner.

Mr. Fitzgerald, of New York, raised the objection that Congress, and not the President, should decide whether the departments of finance and justice should be separated.

Congress Gone Daft.

"Congress," said Mr. Clark, of Missouri, "seems to have gone daft on the subject of the Philippines."

Mr. Cooper, of Wisconsin, resented this intimation and in reply Mr. Clark demanded: "Who is the man the President proposes to appoint if we pass this bill?"

Pie Brigade Big Enough.

Mr. Cooper replied: "The present intimation is in reply Mr. Clark demanded: 'Who is the man the President proposes to appoint if we pass this bill?'"

Mr. Cooper, of Wisconsin, resented this intimation and in reply Mr. Clark demanded: "Who is the man the President proposes to appoint if we pass this bill?"

Stricken Out.

No Buildings For American Ambassadors in Europe.

Starting Judge Wilson III.

Washington, May 2.—The policy sought to be established by the Government of providing and equipping buildings for its Ambassadors in European capitals, received a setback to-day in the Senate, where the diplomatic bill was under consideration. Through a point of order by Mr. Culbertson, of Texas, an amendment to the House bill appropriating $400,000 for such a building at Paris was stricken out. Mr. Culbertson based his objection mainly on the fact that the subject had not been properly considered. The amendment was placed in the bill by the House on the 24th of April.

The bill was passed, following which the Senate adjourned until Monday.

No Licenses To Sell Liquor In Prohibition States.

Washington, May 2.—Representative DeArmond, of Missouri, to-day introduced a bill making it unlawful for the Government to issue a Federal license

Nemo WEEK

SELF-REDUCING BEGINNING MONDAY, MAY 4th

THIS year's "Nemo Week" is more than usually attractive, and there are two good reasons why retailers are anxious to co-operate with us to make this annual event a great success.

1. Nemo Corsets are not like ordinary corsets. Each is a patented specialty that does something—reduces the abdomen, strengthens the back, straightens the form, or brings health, comfort and style in some way quite its own. Nemos must be understood. Toknow Nemo Corsets is to wear them.

2. The phenomenal success of the Nemo has naturally brought forth many worthless imitations, which are so adroitly named and so skillfully misrepresented that any woman who doesn't happen to know, may easily be deceived. It is only right and fair to give all women every opportunity to guard themselves against such imposition.

MERCHANTS generally recognize these facts, and desire to protect their trade by exposing frauds. "Nemo Week" gives them an exceptional opportunity to explain to their trade the invaluable patented special features that have made Nemo Corsets famous throughout the world.

THE new Nemo models are of absorbing interest. Some of them are entirely new inventions, producing results heretofore thought impossible.

THE wonderful "Back-Resting," and the ingenious and lissome "Willow-Shape," should be studied carefully by women of slender and medium figure, while the stout women will rejoice in the new "Flatting-Back" models in the "Self-Reducing" styles, whereby graceful Princess effects may be attained even by fleshy women.

SELF-REDUCING, No. 312, for tall stout figures; and No. 320, same with Flatting-Back $3.00
 SELF-REDUCING, No. 314, for short stout figures; and No. 318, same with Flatting-Back $3.00
 SELF-REDUCING, No. 516, for tall stout figures; and No. 517, same with Flatting-Back $5.00
 SELF-REDUCING, No. 518, for short stout figures; and No. 515, with bust supporters $5.00
 SWAN-SHAPE, Nos. 205, 206, 303 and 355—$2.00 to $3.50; MILITARY BELT, Nos. 301, 302 and 304, $3.00
 BACK-RESTING CORSET, No. 351—$3.50; WILLOW-SHAPE CORSET, No. 500—$5.00

"Nemo Week" is an educational event, for it teaches women how to be shapely and stylish without transgressing the laws of health and hygiene. It demonstrates that, though the first great Nemo success was the famous "Self-Reducing" Corset, the new Nemo models for slender figures are superlatively chic and dainty as well as hygienic.

Kentucky Publishers CHOOSE NEW OFFICERS.

Maysville, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—The Ninth district Publishers' League held its semi-annual meeting here this afternoon with eleven newspapers in the district represented. Outside of the initiation of two new members, the election of officers was the only important event and resulted as follows: President, Hiram Duloy, Flemingsburg; vice president, Samuel Stairs, Dover; secretary, John W. Powling, Carlisle. The next meeting will be held at Cynthiana the first Friday in August.

"HUSTLERS' TICKET."

SMITH T. BAILEY FOR PRESIDENT COMMERCIAL CLUB

Judge Gregory, S. D. Smith, Henry Vogt, L. S. Leopold, G. T. Cross, T. D. McCabe, J. S. Wood, Associates.

In speaking of the Hustlers' Ticket to be voted on at the coming annual meeting of the Commercial Club, a friend of Smith T. Bailey, a candidate for president, said:

"One central idea controlled in the selection of the members of the Hustlers' Ticket, headed by Smith T. Bailey, chairman of the membership committee, to be presented at the election of officers by the Commercial Club at their annual meeting at the Galt House on the evening of Tuesday, May 12. This is the advancement of every interest that can make Louisville a bigger, better, busier, cleaner and more beautiful city."

"Each man was chosen only after his qualifications for the position for which he is nominated were thoroughly discussed from every point of view with upwards of 1,000 members of the club. Each man has shown by his work for the success of whatever schemes the club has fostered for the improvement of Louisville that he is to be depended on in every emergency.

"As for Mr. Bailey, he is a messenger to Garcia. Under his administration of the membership committee the roster of the club has been practically doubled. He has originated many of the schemes which have worked for the benefit of Louisville, and has been a zealous, faithful and untiring worker for the plans suggested by every other member.

"He showed his faith and belief in the province of the young clerk on a salary of $10 a week. His enthusiasm has never flagged for an instant. His growth has been such as to give him excellent advantages and qualifications for fulfilling the duties of the presidency. He is a man of excellent business judgment, a ready and fluent public speaker, a cool parliamentarian and splendid originality of ideas.

"The Hustlers' Ticket is composed of:

Smith T. Bailey, chairman of the membership committee of the Commercial Club, for president.

Judge James P. Gregory, lawyer, for first vice president.

Stephen D. Smith, of the City Directory Company, for second vice president.

Henry Vogt, president of the Vogt Machine Company.

Lawrence S. Leopold, lawyer.

George T. Cross, hardware merchant.

Thomas B. McCabe, district freight agent of the Illinois Central Railroad.

John S. Wood, president of the Franklin Bank, for directors."

SMITH T. BAILEY.

A friend of Mr. Kelsker, who is also a candidate for president of the Commercial Club, said yesterday:

"Fred W. Kelsker, whose friends in the Commercial Club expect to make him president of the organization at the annual election to be held at the Galt House on the night of May 12, and those who are offering for the other offices of the club with Mr. Kelsker have decided to give to their ticket the name 'Progressive.' The ballots bearing the names of the seven club members who are to stand with Mr. Kelsker for election will be put in the hands of the printer early this week. The 'Progressive Ticket,' as finally announced, is as follows:

"Fred W. Kelsker, Fred W. Kelsker & Son, president; Judge James P. Gregory, lawyer, first vice president; S. B. Lynd, cashier Citizens National Bank, second vice president; Directors—Loren B. Williamson, manager Kentucky State Agency Aetna Life Insurance Company; J. V. Beckman, manager Retail Merchants Association; Thos. C. Timberlake, Thos. C. Timberlake & Co., fire insurance; Chas. H. Bohner, State manager Monongahela River Coal and Coke Company; Alfred N. Struck, president Alfred Struck Company.

"A few days ago, in connection with the announcement of the opposition ticket—that headed by Smith T. Bailey for president—the name of Judge James P. Gregory, for first vice president, was used. Judge Gregory has asked Mr. Bailey to leave his name on the 'Hustlers' ticket, as the appearance of his name on Mr. Bailey's ticket might be construed as disloyalty to Mr. Kelsker and those who are mentioned for the other places. In this connection Judge Gregory has written the following letter to Mr. Bailey:

May 1, 1908—Smith T. Bailey, Esq., Louisville, Ky.—My Dear Sir: When notified by you a few days ago that I had been induced by you and a number of other gentlemen for the position of first vice president of the Commercial Club, to be filled at the election May 12, 1908, I expressed the appreciation I then and now feel in having been considered worthy of such honor, and further expressed my kindly feeling for both you and Mr. Fred W. Kelsker, saying that I would make no race for the position, but if the members of the club desired me to do so, I would be willing to accept the position under either you or Mr. Kelsker. Having been already named for this position on Mr. Kelsker's ticket, some of my friends have expressed the view that I could not in justice to Mr. Kelsker and his associates allow my name to be used on the opposition ticket. While I did not have the slightest idea of showing the least disloyalty to Mr. Kelsker, and his associates to allow my name now to be used on both tickets would permit of that situation, which would be alike unjust both to those gentlemen and myself, I should infinitely prefer being left alone rather than occasion the slightest embarrassment or injustice to either side. I must request, for the reasons above stated, that my name be not used upon any ticket opposing the candidacy of Mr. Kelsker and his associates.

With very kind regards I have the honor to be, truly your friend,

JAMES P. GREGORY.

Full lines of styles and sizes in the famous Nemo Corsets are here for your inspection. Experienced corsetiers are at your service. The new Nemo models are of absorbing interest; some are entirely new inventions, which produce results heretofore thought impossible.

The wonderful "Back-resting," and the ingenious and lissome "Willow-shape," should be studied carefully by women of slender and medium figures, while the stout woman will rejoice in the new "Flattening-Back" models in the "Self-Reducing" styles, whereby graceful Princess effects may be attained even by fleshy women. Back-Resting Corset—"it rests your back." $3.50

"Nemo Week" is an educational event, for it teaches women how to be shapeless and stylish without transgressing the laws of health and hygiene. It demonstrates that, though the first great Nemo success was the famous "Self-Reducing" Corset, the new Nemo models for slender figures are superlatively chic and dainty as well as hygienic.

To know all about NEMO CORSETS is the duty every woman owes to herself.

REPORTED FOR WORK, THEN SHOT HIMSELF

G. W. CONDIT FOUND DYING BY NEGRO PORTER.

ILL HEALTH THE ONLY CAUSE FRIENDS CAN ASSIGN.

EMPLOYED IN LOUISVILLE.

With a 32-caliber bull-dog revolver tightly clasped in his right hand and a bullet hole in his right temple C. W. Condit, 60 years of age, foreman of clothing examiners for the Bray Clothing Company, was found lying in the shipping room of the factory, 135 Sixth street, at 7:20 o'clock yesterday morning. He died half an hour later. No cause other than possible brooding over ill health is known to account for his suicide. Condit lived at 1412 Dewey street, and had been in the employ of the Bray Clothing Company for more than ten years.

Employees heard a sharp report, as if some of the belting in the factory had slipped from the machinery. An investigation revealed to Harry Davis, a colored porter, the prostrate body of Condit, lying in a pool of blood upon the floor, with the revolver in his tightly clenched hand. Several clerks of the firm assisted Davis in carrying Condit to an improvised couch made of bolts of cloth, where he lingered for half an hour before death came. Dr. A. Scribner was summoned, but it was too late, and Condit passed away without regaining consciousness.

Dr. Charles I. Groves, the coroner, was called, and pronounced death due to a bullet wound inflicted with suicidal intent. The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of Lee Cradle, 600 West Chestnut street, to be held awaiting the arrival of relatives from New Albany.

Condit was known as a workman of good habits and perfect reliability. He had been in the employ of the Bray Clothing Company for more than ten years. Yesterday morning he entered the building by a rear door and walked immediately to the shipping room. He spoke to nobody, but this was not specially remarked, as he was known to be a man of few words. Recently he had been suffering from bronchial trouble, according to his brother-in-law, H. S. Thomas, and this had partly deprived him of his powers of speech. Mr. Thomas stated that Condit had never had any domestic troubles and always been a model husband and father. Ill-health was the only cause that he could assign to the deed. He left no note, but in his pocket was found a letter from A. M. Condit, a brother, of Jersey, O., in which reference was made to the deaths of several relatives. Condit was born in Columbus, O., and went to New Albany sixteen years ago. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Arthur, who is attending the University of Cincinnati, and Calvin, a member of the State Guard at Murray, Ky. His brother-in-law, H. S. Thomas, is general manager of the Bray Clothing Company.

SNDDENLY STRICKEN.

THEODORE F. TILLER FALLS VICTIM TO HEART DISEASE.

For Twenty Years Was Connected With the Office of County Assessor—Funeral To-morrow.

While talking to his wife at home, 2205 Magazine street, yesterday afternoon, Theodore F. Tiller, a prominent Mason and for twenty years connected with the office of County Assessor, was stricken with organic heart disease and died before a physician could reach him. He was 64 years of age.

Mr. Tiller had retired from active business on account of ill health several years ago, but his condition was not considered serious. Friday night he had attended a meeting of the officers of the Third Christian Church, of which he was a deacon. Yesterday morning he complained of pains in the region of the heart, but he did not attach much significance to this. He was suddenly stricken with heart failure and sank to the ground. Before Dr. T. E. Gosnell, who was summoned, could reach him he passed away. Dr. Charles I. Groves, the coroner, was called.

Mr. Tiller was a native of Louisville, and lived here all his life. He served as Deputy County Assessor under John Harrison and Richard Urbke, being connected with that office more than twenty years. CAR MEN VOTE IN FAVOR OF STRIKE

LATER REACH AN AGREEMENT WITH TRACTION OFFICIALS.

PROBABLY WILL BE NO CESSATION OF WORK.

BOTH SIDES CONCILIATORY.

Cleveland, O., May 2.—After voting 1,042 to 125 in favor of a strike, the carmen and conductors of the Municipal Traction Company, through International Vice President Behner and other representatives, to-night practically reached an agreement with the Mayor and Traction officials that will eliminate the prospect of a cessation of work.

Two sessions were held to-day between the union executive committee and the Mayor, and a third will take place late to-night at which the smoothing out of many disputed points is expected.

Concessions on the part of both sides to the controversy marked the day's discussion. The men failed to secure outright the two cents an hour increase in pay demanded, but are given an insurance that they may anticipate an advance after the Municipal Traction Company shows a sufficient surplus. On the subject of free transportation employees will be compelled to pay their fares to and from work, but any additional trips connected therewith will be provided for by the company. The men also gave the right to purchase their uniforms themselves.

At the last meeting to-night President Dupont appeared and discussed with the men the differences relating to seniority promotion to choice rigs, the displacement of old men by others employed by the Forest City company and other matters of administration which have arisen since the taking over by the holding company of all the street railway lines in the city.

ARIZONA EXILE WILL CONTINUE

PRESIDENT RESCINDS ORDER OF TRANSFER OF COL. STEWART.

ACTION SAID TO BE RESULT OF PROTEST FROM FLORIDA

MADE THROUGH SENATORS.

Washington, May 2.—Col. William F. Stewart, of the coast artillery, who bears the distinction of being the one officer of the army assigned to command an abandoned post until the date of his retirement arrives, has again received new orders direct from the President. As a result of the latest decree, Col. Stewart will continue indefinitely his command of Fort Grant, Ariz., where he was sent last September in lieu of his refusal to retire. Earliest effort on the part of the friends of Col. Stewart resulted in a reversal of this order a week or so ago, when it was officially announced that the Colonel would be permitted to spend the three or four years of his active official career in an abandoned barracks at St. Augustine, Fla. This order was countermanded by direction of the President and Col. Stewart will remain at the Arizona post.

This reversal of the order was the result of a vigorous protest on the part of the people of Florida, made known through the Senators from that State. No other explanation of the latest command is made.

LABOR INCREASE

Small Factor In Raise In Paper Price.

PUBLISHER NORRIS PRESENTS FACTS TO COMMITTEE.

COST OF PRODUCTION IN ONE MILL REDUCED.

HAS PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE.

Washington, May 2.—According to figures submitted to-day by John Norris, representing the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, to the Select Committee of the House on Wood Pulp and Paper Investigation regarding the increased labor cost per ton of paper produced, the increase amounted to but fifty-two cents a ton.

In spite of statements of the paper men to the contrary, he said, his calculation was correct and yet he charged that the paper makers had put on an increased price of $12 a ton, alleging that the increase was due to the higher cost of labor.

In the case of the Hudson river mill, Mr. Norris presented data showing that even though the mill changed "from a two to a three shift basis, the cost of production of paper actually had been reduced $1.13 per ton. It was, he said, a matter about which he had personal knowledge.

Mr. Norris continued for some time to discuss the change of base from a two-shift to a three-shift basis, contending that the increase in cost was not sufficient to justify the advance in prices.

Mr. Norris, replying to a question by Mr. Mann, gave evidence showing that the average wage of union paper workers in the State of New York for the third quarter of 1906 was $10.94 per week which he said was very low. He would not enter into a discussion with Mr. Mann as to the latter's suggestion that it appeared to be about the wages should be increased.

Answering Messrs. Ryan and Bannan, the witness said that his wage calculations had reference to union helpers, workers and skilled workers, exclusive of women and children. In the State of Massachusetts he said, the average weekly wage for 1906 was $9.30, and that this figure took into account employees of all classes and sexes including those under twenty-one years of age.

In further refutation of the claim of the paper manufacturers regarding the high cost of labor, Mr. Norris read from reports of the United States Bureau of Labor, from which it appeared that there was a decrease in the pay of paper workers in 1906 as compared with 1905, and that paper-working was the only industry that was decreased. As showing the slight increase that had taken place in the wage scale of paper-workers, Mr. Norris offered statistics for the year 1906, which fixed the paper production at 2,782,219 tons at an average price of $7.45 per week. In 1905, he said, the 65,964 paper-workers in the United States received an average wage of $9.32 per week.

"Some people say that protection increases wages of working people of the United States," remarked Mr. Norris, one of the Democratic members of the committee, but Mr. Norris would not permit himself to be drawn into a discussion of that question.

Further disputing the claims of the paper-makers as to the wages paid, Mr. Norris presented in evidence official statistics regarding the printing and binding group, which, he said, were receiving 74 per cent. more wages than were being paid to the paper-workers.

At this juncture adjournment was taken until Monday.

FOXHALL KEENE MUST PAY FOR NEWSPAPERS

LONDON, NEWS AGENTS GET JUDGMENT FOR FORTY POUNDS.

London, May 2.—[Special.]—Foxhall Keene, the American millionaire race-horse owner, who in the King's bench division ordered to pay Messrs. Bingham & Company, news agents of Mount Street, Grosvenor Square, 40 pounds odd for newspapers supplied. The defense was that the papers were never received. For the plaintiff it was stated that for two years papers were delivered at the defendant's residence, Alfred street, Park Lane, and paid for. Then it was requested that they should be sent to an address in New York and later to Castleton, Lexington, Kentucky. They complied with the request, and sent in their accounts quarterly. Neither these nor the papers were returned.

Boy Crushed Under Wagon.

Edwin Strecker, the 5-year-old son of George Strecker, a candymaker at 1212 Ash street, was painfully injured yesterday morning at Hickory and Ash streets. The rear wheel of a heavy transfer wagon passed over his back and crushed his sixth rib. The little boy and his sister had been sent to the grocery by his mother. The wagon, coming down the street, caught the little boy on the head and fell over the wheels. He was assisted to his home and attended by Dr. C. G. Russell, who does not consider his condition serious.

St. Paul Park Incident.

"After drinking coffee for breakfast I always felt languid and dull, having no ambition to go to my morning duties. Then in about an hour or so a weak nervous derangement of the heart and stomach would come over me with such force I would frequently have to lie down."

"At other times I had severe headaches; stomach finally became affected and digestion so impaired that I had serious chronic dyspepsia and constipation. A lady, for many years State President of the W. C. T. U., told me she had been greatly benefited by using Postum Coffee and using Postum Food Coffee. She was troubled for years with asthma. She said it was so good to quit coffee when she found she could have as delicious an article as Postum."

"Another lady, who had been troubled with chronic dyspepsia for years, found immediate relief on ceasing coffee and beginning Postum twice a day. She was wholly cured. Still another friend told me that Postum Food Coffee was a God-send to her, her heart trouble having been relieved after leaving off coffee and taking on Postum."

"So many cases came to my notice that I concluded coffee was the cause of my trouble and I quit and took up Postum. I am more than pleased to say my day of trouble has been entirely disappeared. I am well and happy."

DIES OF WOUND.

C. C. Wallace Was Shot By Stepson.

BOY INDIFFERENTLY VIEWS BODY OF MAN HE KILLED.

LEXINGTON'S MOST FAMOUS SALOON CHANGES HANDS.

NO MIXED DRINKS SOLD.

Lexington, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—C. C. Wallace, who was shot by his stepson, Samuel Smith, 17 years old, about a week ago, died at 3 o'clock this morning at the Good Samaritan Hospital from the result of the wound, and the charge against young Smith, who is being held in jail for malicious shooting, was changed to murder. The body of Mr. Wallace was taken early this morning to his home on South Broadway, and at the request of his widow, who is the mother of his slayer, the latter was brought from the jail to see the body. The boy was handcuffed and held an inquest over the body of Mr. Wallace this morning and returned the following verdict:

"We, the jury, find the body before us to be that of C. C. Wallace, aged about 55 years. From the testimony we find that he was shot by his stepson, Samuel Smith, at his home at 655 South Broadway, on the 23rd of April, 1908."

The chief witness before the coroner's jury was Willie Wallace, 15 years old, who is the son of the dead man and half brother of the boy who slew him. He testified that he saw Smith shoot his father from the window of their home while the father was sitting on the steps of the porch with his back turned to his assailant, and entirely oblivious of his danger. He said that his father had always been kind to him and that he had never seen him abuse him in any way. D. H. White, who arrived on the scene soon after the shooting, testified that Mr. Wallace had said to him that he did not know why the boy had shot him, but that it was because he had rebuked him for insolence that morning. Wallace said that the boy had frequently threatened to shoot him and that he had experienced much trouble with his stepson, on account of the latter's waywardness. Mr. White said that Smith had admitted to him that he did hate shooting, and said he had done it because his stepfather had abused him.

Mr. Wallace was a poor but highly respected man, who had for several years conducted a lunch stand in front of his residence on South Broadway. He and his family lived by his daily labor, and since he was shot they have been entirely without money and a subscription is being taken up for his widow and son.

Famous Saloon Sold.

The "Little Place Around the Corner," the most famous saloon of Lexington, was sold to-day by Emond Gleason, the bluff old Irishman, who for forty-four years has owned and conducted the place where "nothing but straight whisky goes." The Gleason saloon was a little hole in the wall about ten by fifteen feet, on Water street, just around the corner from Limestone. The proprietor took great pride in having his whiskies of the purest vintage, of which his particular pride was a brand fifteen years old and 112 proof. Mr. Gleason was no fancy bartender. He claimed and stoutly maintained for forty-four years that straight whisky was good enough for any man, and while in moments of good nature he would mix an old-fashioned toddy for an old customer he regarded the man who drank it with respect and pity, and this was the limit of the mixed drinks he would serve.

The place was so obscure and hard to find that few but old customers who knew the Gleason principles found their way there, but there is a tradition that during the races several years ago a fude from New York dropped in at Gleason's and asked for a Martini cocktail. The proprietor, it is said, hesitated for a moment between the impulse to kill the customer and pity for his ignorance. The latter feeling triumphed, but he did not know Mr. Gleason, but drink that, don't you, and drink it quick or I'll break ye neck."

The liquor was quickly drunk and a tragedy averted. Mr. Gleason regarded the honor and integrity of his liquor as his own, and no man dared question either. The reputation of his goods for purity and the bluff, honesty of the proprietor gave the place a wide reputation all over the country, which caused him to get many orders from abroad, and it is said that Gleason whisky has been drunk in every country on the globe. Having now grown infirm and acquired a competence Mr. Gleason will retire from business and has sold his place, though he said to-day that he did not know whether the purchaser would continue the business at the old stand or not.

Resigns As Secretary.

The Rev. Walter M. White, who for the last two and a half years has been secretary of Transylvania University, has resigned to accept a call to the Christian church in Mexico, Mo.

Mr. White's resignation was presented at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the university which was held this afternoon and accepted.

Mr. White came to his present position from San Francisco, where for several years he was pastor of the West Side Christian church. His work with the university has been eminently successful and his resignation is deeply regretted.

The church to which he has been called is one of the largest in Missouri. Mr. White will begin work in his new field on the first Sunday in June.

Lexington Notes.

In accordance with the order issued by Mayor Skain directing that the "old" should be screwed down tighter, beggars, tramps, etc., have been ordered to the patrolmen, of which the following are part:

They must enter all restaurants, hotels, groceries, etc., that have saloons attached, as often as possible, and see that no liquor is being sold.

They must arrest all saloonkeepers who do not keep blinds and curtains open.

Homer Foushee has completed for the city authorities an investigation of the fifty-five have been executed, while 143 no deeds have been executed. The majority of these, however, belong to the city on account of use for public purposes.

Beattyville, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—At a Republican convention held in this county for the purpose of electing district committeemen, Wes Spicer and Cain Estes were shot, the latter being seriously injured.

It appears that Estes and Spicer had some words over the result of the convention when Estes shot Spicer, inflicting a bad flesh wound. CHAMP CLARK NEXT SPEAKER

If Democrats Make a Sweep This Fall.

Will be Minority Leader in Case of Defeat.

Cortelyou Said To Be Urged For Governor.

ALLEGED ROOSEVELT PLAN.

Washington, May 2.—[Special.]—That Champ Clark, of Missouri, will be the Speaker of the next House, or, in the event of a Democratic defeat, the minority leader to succeed John Sharp Williams, is believed to have been settled by developments during the week now concluding. Several State delegations have pledged their support to the Missourian, and his friends feel authorized to announce that of the membership of the present House which will also be in the next Congress, the Missourian has a pronounced majority. Of course, if the Democrats win the new House the coming November, there will necessarily be a large increase in the Northern Democratic membership, but conceding much of this Mr. Clark's friends do not see how he can be defeated.

Native of Kentucky.

Within the past few days three State delegations have practically agreed to support Mr. Clark. They are Louisiana, Virginia and Alabama. Mr. Clark is a native of Kentucky, having been born in Anderson county, and it is also assured that he will also receive the support from that State. In fact, with the exception of Texas, which will probably present the name of Representative Henry, Mr. Clark promises to have no opposition in the South. As that section has almost invariably received the speakership, and as Mr. Clark is a strong Bryan man, he has every reason to expect the support of all the Western members. Mr. Clark is now serving his seventh term, is of the rough-and-ready style of oratory, and his speeches have always been Democratic, especially those he has delivered on the tariff.

Cortelyou For Governor.

Secretary of the Treasury George B. Cortelyou, according to gossip in political circles here, is to be urged as the Republican nominee for the governorship to succeed Gov. Hughes. President Roosevelt is said to be in favor of this movement, and as the State political machinery is very much under his influence, the friends of Gov. Hughes are visibly disturbed over what they term "unwarrantable interference." Some of the Governor's advisers proposed to see in the Cortelyou candidacy a scheme to stampede the Republican National Convention for Mr. Hughes' nomination for Vice President on the level with Secretary Taft and force him to accept the place as a party expediency or suffer the consequences of refusing to come to the aid of the party in its actual need. Furthermore, they conceive that one of the main purposes of the alleged scheme is to strengthen the grasp of President Roosevelt upon the party organization in this State, so that when he shall retire from the presidency he will be the actual master of the party here.

Quart Party.

"Since prohibition went into effect in Georgia," said Jasper K. Horner, a prominent business man of Atlanta, last night, "a new form of social amusement has sprung up. It is called the 'quart party.' Strangers invited to such a party for the first time are likely to be puzzled. After one experience they are generally willing to accept a second invitation. A quart party is more or less a Dutch treat. Every guest is supposed to take with him as his card of admission a quart of some kind of liquor. The kind of liquor matters. Once on the scene of festivity the 'wet dogs' become the common property of all the guests. Enthusiasts have felt the sting of the prohibition law. Many have felt the need of bowing to the sentiment of elimination. Intoxicated. When the annual banquet of the Virginia Society was held in Atlanta an invitation was sent to every Governor. Every arrangement was made to give him a proper greeting. When the Governor heard that four hundred guests would be used, and found it was true, he declared it impossible to accept the invitation. That night the Governor dined with the members of one of the companies of the Fifth Regiment, National Guard, where wine flowed not."

The Commodity Clause.

Senator Elkins, who called on the President, said that the fight in the Senate over the commodity clause of the Hepburn railroad rate law is now on. "What we should do and what I think will be to suspend the penalties of the section long enough to give the roads an opportunity to dispute their coal lands."

While Senator Elkins may be right in his prediction the chances against him are great. The way the amendments will be taken on to the Elkins resolution will be wonderful. The Elkins resolution covered about two pages. When the Senate adopted the original proposition to several dozen pages of railroad propositions with the result that the Senate had before it and under consideration substantially a new interstate commerce act. It had sprung up like a mushroom and looked so formidable that the more conservative leaders found themselves compelled to allow the whole matter to go over until next week.

Changes In Currency Bill.

After talking and conferring for the last four months on the currency currency measure the leaders of Congress have about made up their minds what they want to do. Charles D. Glover, president of the Elkins National Bank of this city, and other prominent bankers have helped to solve the perplexing problem and the Republican conference next Tuesday night will, of course, ratify what the leaders submit. The bill to be passed is really the old measure replenished by some of the features of the Vreeland bill. Its passage is assured.

Busy Days For Cannon.

Speaker Cannon is kept busy these days explaining that the House did not snub the President by ignoring his latest message. The Eastern press, however, are still asserting that the explanations of the Speaker do not explain, and contend that the message was pigeon-holed in the Speaker's room for twenty-four hours before it was brought in the House. The case is an unprecedented one in parliamentary and legislative practice at the Capitol, and this is why the incident is so much Bradley's Inning.

After the 4th of next March, when Senator-elect Bradley takes his seat in the Senate, he will make things mighty uncomfortable for some of those Kentucky appointees, if there is anything in Senator Bradley's courtesy, and you bet there's a lot.

There was a discussion at the Army and Navy Club last night as to the exact words of Admiral Dewey in his order ten years ago yesterday at Manila to Commander Gridley. It was generally conceded that he said: "When you are ready you may fire, Gridley, instead of 'You may fire, Gridley, when you are ready'."

Campaign Publicity.

A disposition to give serious attention to campaign publicity legislation was indicated by the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections to-day. Senator Johnston brought the matter before the committee, and in the discussion that followed it was pointed out that State legislation for publicity of campaign funds had not been effective, but had led to perjury and falsification of reports. The matter was finally referred to a sub-committee consisting of Chairman Burrows and Senators Long, Dillingham and Johnston.

HIGHER RATES

On Freight To Be Put Into Effect.

ROADS FILE PROPOSED NEW TARIFFS AT WASHINGTON.

FRESH MEATS TO BE CHARGED HEAVY INCREASE.

A WEDGE FOR OTHER RAISES.

Washington, May 2.—It appears likely that the anticipated increase in freight rates is about to be made. A few days ago a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission expressed the opinion that within three or four months, unless a decided improvement in railway conditions should take place, it probably would be necessary for the carriers either to increase freight rates or to reduce the wages of their employees. Personally and officially, the Commissioner deprecated the taking of either horn of the dilemma by the railroads, but he believed it to be inevitable that one or the other course would be taken.

Sooner than was expected, action looking to an increase in freight rates has been taken. The railroads of the Southern territory have filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission tariff effective June 1 increasing their freight rates on fresh meats materially. The increase will affect all fresh meats shipped into the Southern territory from the North and West.

The new rates will take effect at Ohio river and Mississippi river crossings, including Memphis, Tenn., and will be effective into all parts of what is known as the Carolina territory; that is, the section of the country east of Asheville, N. C., and south of Danville, Va.

The increase will amount to from three cents to ten cents per hundred pounds on all fresh meats. It is the first material raise in the rates on foodstuffs made by the railroads of the country for a good many years. It will mean much to the consumers, as it will probably result in an increase of approximately one cent a pound on low priced meats. The increase is a most serious one to the consumer, as it is likely that it is intended as a wedge of public sentiment with a view to making a general raise in rates on all commodities. It is conceded by tariff experts of railroads that the present commodity rates of American railroads now in force are comparatively low, and it is regarded by those who have studied the situation that in view of the increased cost of railway equipment and of railway employees, it may be necessary to increase some of the foreign rates.

This is a matter, however, which the Interstate Commerce Commission probably will inquire into carefully to determine whether the rates proposed are in any sense excessive or unreasonable. The increase of rates on fresh meats into the Southern territory is regarded as the entering wedge of a general increase on all commodities, and the result of the inquiry into the question raised will be awaited with interest.

Lakewood, N. J., May 2.—That former President Grover Cleveland is not so seriously ill as published reports during the past week have declared him to be was the assurance given to a representative of the Associated Press to-night. The informants, who are in a position to speak authoritatively, stated that if the contrary were true, at least two persons, who are now attending as usual, to their business duties elsewhere, would be with Mr. Cleveland. The closer friends of the former President, it was said, have not been with him at any time during his stay here. It was added that Mr. Cleveland rose from his bed last Thursday and has since sat up during each day.

Essentially Moulds Your Figure

ROYAL WORCESTER

ADJUSTO CORSET

PRICE $3

The ADJUSTO is equally adapted to medium or average figures. It is skillfully designed to fashionably mould and shape the form into graceful lines.

The ADJUSTO bands, when tightened, lift the abdomen, hold it firmly, and support it comfortably. Gradually the excess flesh of hips and back is reduced and distributed equally, giving the straight back and new flat-hip effect.

For all women obliged to stand a great deal, the ADJUSTO is absolutely without an equal. A wearer, who is of medium figure, said recently:

"My duties require my standing most of the time and until I wore the ADJUSTO it was difficult to finish my day's work without becoming exhausted. I can now do more work with less exertion, and feel much better. It supports my figure perfectly, and is the strongest and most serviceable corset I have ever worn."

Another remarked: "Since wearing the ADJUSTO my hips, abdomen and waist have become noticeably smaller, and my figure is greatly improved. In all other corsets I require size 27, but I wear a size 25 ADJUSTO with perfect ease."

All genuine ADJUSTO corsets have trade-mark "ADJUSTO" stamped on inside.

This ADJUSTO trade-mark is your protection against imitations.

"ACID LOOK" FOR FAIRBANKS

Convention Likely To Treat Delegates Harshly.

State Committee Committed To Rump Assemblies.

Fight Inevitable In Phoenix Hill Gathering.

ARE FIGURING ON OFFICERS.

The main question involved in the Republican Fifth District Convention next Monday night is whether the Fairbanks supporters will submit to being thrown bodily out of the convention by the Credentials Committee, which will be appointed by the Taft leaders, who will organize the convention beyond a doubt. Since the primary of April 25, in which the Taft forces ran over the Fairbanks people rough shod, carrying every ward in the city except the First, Sixth and Eleventh, the Fairbanks leaders have given out the report that they will hold a separate convention unless given a fair deal. The prevailing opinion among the Fairbanks leaders is that the Taft leaders will try to do the same thing in the district convention that they did in the primary, and for that reason the only thing to do is to hold a separate convention.

May Report Primary Tactics.

Notwithstanding the fact that a separate convention has been talked in a generally believed when the time comes that the Fairbanks people will lay down just as they did in the matter of the proposed indignation meeting. The continued cry of the Fairbanks people about fraud has greatly exasperated the Taft forces and the leaders are inclined to follow up the victory won in the primary by giving the Fairbanks forces no quarter.

Play "Rump Convention" For Favorite.

M. H. Thatcher, the acknowledged head of the Fairbanks movement, was out of the city yesterday, and no one last night knew just what course the Fairbanks people would pursue in the district convention. Mr. Thatcher will likely make a statement as soon as he returns to the city. The decision of the State Central Committee in the First district middle, in which the appeal from William J. Debo's rulings in the temporary organization of the district convention was sustained and the Taft or rump convention was stamped as regular, gives encouragement to the local Fairbanks forces. It also furnishes a precedent for the Fairbanks people to withdraw during the roll call for temporary organization.

According to the canvassing board returns of the primary, the Fairbanks forces will have no chance in the temporary organization, as their contesting delegates will not be allowed to vote. It is probable that the Fairbanks delegates will withdraw early in the action, if they decide to hold a separate convention. In this event, H. H. Thatcher, Senator W. C. Bradley would unquestionably be made chairman of the Fairbanks convention. Should there be two conventions, R. C. Kinkead and Nat C. Cureton will be nominated as Republican candidates for Congress.

Fight In State Convention.

It is hard to tell what will be the outcome of the State Convention in organization. The Taft leaders say they will have no trouble in organizing the convention, but on the other hand the Fairbanks leaders think otherwise. E. T. Frank, collector of internal revenue for the Second district of Owensboro, who was endorsed for National committeeman by the Second district Republican caucus in the city last night, said that the Taft men had a hard row to hoe. He said there were many delegates over the State line, and that the Taft delegates who are openly denouncing the outrages of the primary of April 25, and will never vote with the Taft men who led in the infamous work of the primary. Said he:

"We have not given up by a long jump. The people of Kentucky will not stand for the fraud of the last Republican primary and many of the delegates chosen will openly administer a rebuke to the perpetrators by voting against them. The Republicans of Kentucky have got to be clean to some extent and stand by the platform adopted last year."

William D. Cochran, of Mayville, who was made chairman some time ago of the Taft State Campaign Committee, is strongly spoken of for temporary chairman of the convention next Wednesday. In this connection the name of David W. Fairleigh has also been mentioned. However, this matter will be settled by the Republican State Central Committee at its meeting Wednesday morning. The Taft forces will fight to make Richard F. Ernst, National Committeeman from Kentucky, and Robert H. Winn, of Mt. Sterling, chairman of the State Central Committee, to succeed Mr. Ernst. Judge George Du Rhee, of Louisville, may be made chairman of the Committee on Resolutions. It is expected that the resolutions will be a very brief announcement of the endorsement of the National and State Administrations, and probably the administration of Mayor Grinstead, of Louisville.

STRICKEN ON STREET WHEN HE WENT TO DRAW WAGES.

Jacob Stober, a bricklayer, succumbed to paralysis yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at his home, 335 East Oak street. He had been employed in the construction of a new building at Elsie and Congress streets, and although he did not work yesterday, went to the place in the afternoon to get his wages. Stober was stricken on the sidewalk and later removed to his home. Physicians were summoned, but he was beyond medical aid and died forty-five minutes after being stricken. Stober was 43 years of age and a native of Louisville, where he had resided for many years. He was married, and his wife, two sons, Robert and Charles, survive. The funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning at Paul's church, the Jackson street, near Kentucky. The arrangements have not yet been completed.

APPEAL TO COURT

TO PREVENT ARBITRARY REDUCTION OF EXPRESS RATES.

Six Companies Doing Business In Indiana Ask Injunction From Federal Court.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 2.—Six express companies doing business in Indiana, four of them through their presidents, brought suit in the United States District Court this afternoon against the members of the Railroad Commission of Indiana, to enjoin them from taking steps to reduce express rates in the State from 10 to 12 per cent.

Six suits were filed. The plaintiffs were Thomas C. Platt, president of the United States Express Company; Johnston Livingston, president of the National Express Company; Levi C. Weir, president of the Adams Express Company; the Wells-Fargo Express Company, the Pacific Express Company and James C. Fargo, president of the American Express Company. On March 30 the Railroad Commission issued an order to reduce on an average from 10 to 12 per cent. the express rates in the State. The new schedule was to have been adopted yesterday. The opinion and order followed an investigation into express rates instituted by the commission several months ago, and from all indications promises to be the finest local performance of the season. "An American Citizen" is Nat Goodwin's popular comedy drama, and is being staged at the Orphans' Home. The play will be presented to the public at Macaulay's Theater on the evenings of May 13 and 14, and present indications are that the theater will be taxed to its capacity on both nights.

The proceeds of the performances are for the benefit of the German Protestant Orphans' Home, and the committee in charge is therefore exerting every effort to make the play a financial success for this most worthy cause. The cast is working with every zeal and enthusiasm to make this year's performance the finest of the season, and according to those who have been witnessing the rehearsals, they promise to make good.

SETTLEMENT OF WAGE SCALE IN DISTRICT 23.

Miners and Operators Enter Into Two-Year Contract That Is Satisfactory To Both.

Central City, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—A settlement was agreed upon late afternoon between the operators and the miners in district No. 23.

The miners accept the recommendations of the scale committee which are that the operators pay the miners $2.25 a week, and that the miners pay the operators $1.88 a week. The settlement was made before the chief mine inspector and if the mine is in bad condition they may demand that the condition be remedied and the necessity for shot-firers avoided; also that the operators pay the miners $1.00 a week for railroad cars as heretofore. With these exceptions, the old scale is adopted. The settlement was made before the chief mine inspector and if the mine is in bad condition they may demand that the condition be remedied and the necessity for shot-firers avoided; also that the operators pay the miners $1.00 a week for railroad cars as heretofore. Last night at Crotty's Hall, 601 West Brookbridge, the Louisville Tammany Club was organized by seventy-five prominent Democrats of the Eighth and Ninth wards to advance the interests of the Democratic party. Resolutions were introduced endorsing the candidacy of the Hon. Swager Sherry for Congress and steps taken toward a permanent organization. William P. McDonogh was elected temporary chairman and William J. Conolly, temporary secretary. After addresses by Joseph P. McGinn, Charles Ramser, Halpin O. Williams and Camden R. McAtee the meeting adjourned subject to call of the chair. All Democrats are eligible to membership in the club.

SUPREME JUSTICES' PARADE.

[Washington Special to Boston Herald.] The most solemn procession in Washington is one of the most interesting and briefest. The parade ground is the width of the narrow Capitol corridor. The participants in the unique march are the nine members of the Supreme Court of the United States, and twice each day, in robes of black, as they pass slowly across the lobby which separates the Senate wing of the Capitol from the main building, they attract almost reverent attention. The location of the Supreme Court in the Capitol building is such that the court chamber is proper in the east side of the building, while the court offices, the robing rooms, assembly rooms and other apartments of the justices are located on the west side of the building. Twice each day, therefore, the judges are compelled to traverse the lobby of the Capitol to go and return from the court chamber. This brief parade is the most solemn thing of the kind in the National Capital, and is one of the few exhibitions of pomp which may be found under our democracy. As the hour of 12 o'clock noon approaches two solemn visaged colored

Nervousness and Insomnia

Mrs. Kirk Was a Physical and Nervous Wreck Until She Tried Chas. B. James' New Discovery.

Chas. B. James, the eminent scientist, who is known throughout the world as having done more for the relief of those afflicted with drunkenness and the drug habit than any man living, has discovered probably the only efficacious remedy known for the cure of nervousness, insomnia and nervous depression. It is a harmless compound of Hops, Lettuce and Celery, scientifically blended. Many letters, overflowing with gratitude and appreciation, like the following, have been received:

"I had taken so many different kinds of medicines that I had lost faith in medicine and had abandoned hope of relief until I saw your ad, which seemed logical, and something told me to try your treatment."

"To say a long story short, I ordered it and after I had taken a few doses I felt soothed and strengthened; gradually the pain disappeared from my back, and that night and every night since, I have enjoyed refreshing, natural, restful sleep, and when I awaken in the morning I feel like there is something in life, and go about my work with energy and interest."

"I feel so strengthened and invigorated that I have a good appetite and relish what I eat."

"I do not like to see my name in print, but false pride no longer exists. Could keep me from telling the world where I found relief from my terrible nights of torture and days of despondency."

WITH CHILDREN, CARRIED WATER TO THE WOUNDED.

GAVE LINEN FOR BANDAGES.

Mrs. Lucinda Dogan, 30 years old, called in the northern part of Virginia "Queen of the Battlefields," is still living at Groveton, a little hamlet one mile west of and overlooking the site of the first battle of Bull Run, July 21, 1861. Her home was the central point in the second battle of Bull Run, August 29 and 30, 1862, says the New York Herald.

This old woman saw both battles of Bull Run and looked upon the fighting in all their horror when the fighting had ceased. With her children she walked among the dead and wounded, carrying buckets of water and gourd dippers, giving drink to the mauling soldiers on both sides.

Groveton is a hamlet of tragic memories. It is on the Warrenton pike five miles west of Centerville, three miles east of Gainesville, five miles north of the town of Manassas and two miles southwest of Sudley—all bloody names in Civil War annals. Groveton is a group of three houses. In all these the Dogans live; another is occupied by tenant farmers of the Dogans, and in the third lives "Jim" Redmond, an old negro who was living there at the time of the fighting, saw the same scenes Mrs. Dogan looked upon, and worked with the

NINE-MILE HEAT

Makes Hard Case For Clark County Jury.

Frightened horse ran in front of automobile.

OWNER SEEKS TO RECOVER ALLEGING DAMAGES.

TAX COLLECTIONS $175,000.

In Jeffersonville, the evidence was concluded yesterday afternoon and the case went to the jury shortly before 5 o'clock. After deliberating until 6:30 o'clock with no sign of a verdict, the panel was taken to supper by Capt. W. T. Patterson, bailiff and no agreement had been reached late last night. Peels owned a large machine in which he frequently takes his family out for pleasure trips. One of these was made to Clarksville on April 27, 1907, and on the return voyage he "bumped" a horse belonging to Bushfield. The animal did not take kindly to the vehicle and with head and tail erect, started down the pike for Jeffersonville, nine miles distant. The race was an exciting one and along the line the people were not by telephone of the novel contest. Many went out to see the race, but none attempted to stop the steed that persisted in keeping in front of Peels' machine. The horse finally ran into a Jeffersonville livery stable in front of the automobile, having covered the nine miles, as alleged, in about forty minutes.

It was not until January 11, 1908, that Bushfield filed suit for $125 damages, the full price of the horse. In his complaint, he alleged the horse was on a public highway when Peels came along in a large, powerful and well-gear "Auto-Mobile," causing the animal to take fright and run down the pike. It was alleged Peels made no attempt to stop the machine, but continued to chase the horse. By reason of the long run it was alleged the horse was made sick, sore, "stayed up," rendered unfit for service and damaged in the sum of $100, judgment for $125, the true value of the horse was asked.

Some of the testimony was interesting, but the witnesses varied in their statements as to the time of the race. It was 4 o'clock in the afternoon, while others fixed the hour at 6 o'clock. All the witnesses for the plaintiff testified the machine was "going some," so was the horse in keeping ahead of it. One witness testified that he had been notified of the coming of the horse and machine and went out to see the race. She said she would not make an attempt to stop the horse through fear she might be run over by the automobile on account of it going so fast.

When Peels was put on the stand he said he was delayed by the horse until an hour was consumed in making the trip. He said the horse was running to the right or left and that when the machine was slowed down to give the animal a chance to leave the road, he would stop. He said he used every possible endeavor to get the beast to leave the road, but he would not do so.

TAX COLLECTIONS $175,000.

New Record Established By Clark County's Treasurer.

Isaac G. Phillips, of Jeffersonville, Treasurer to Clark county Ind., gave out the statement last night that he believed the spring collection of taxes would reach at least $175,000, which breaks all records. For the last ten days the money has been pouring into the county coffers, fast as it could be collected. Phillips said that there was hardly room to turn around. So much gold was paid in on some days that there was hardly room to take care of it until it could be carried to bank.

In explaining the cause of the increased collections Mr. Phillips said it was largely due to the fact that last year the valuation on property had been increased. It was alleged Peels made no attempt to stop the machine, but continued to chase the horse. By reason of the long run it was alleged the horse was made sick, sore, "stayed up," rendered unfit for service and damaged in the sum of $100, judgment for $125, the true value of the horse was asked.

MENDELSSOHN CHOR ELECTIONS OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

TWO ADULT BIBLE CLASSES.

The Board of Public Works at New Albany yesterday, in response to a petition of interested property owners, ordered the improvement of West Main street from First to West Tenth, that city, with vitrified brick. Bids are to be opened for the contract for the improvement May 14, and a committee of property owners composed of P. N. Curt, John J. Lyons, Herman Shaffer, Charles Miller and Harry Foreman has been appointed to confer with the board at the time the bids are opened.

There are fifty-two property owners on the street who have a right to sign the petition, and thirty-five of these were affixed to it, leaving but few opposed to it. The proposition was also to submit a petition for a macadam street. But when it came to securing signatures it was found that but few desired the macadam street, and in consequence no attempt was made to get up the petition. For the last two years the street has been in a poor condition, having been torn up, and was like nothing so much as a country road. All travel has been in a poor condition, and at a standstill on account of the lack of traffic facilities.

The class starts out with forty members and is expected to increase rapidly. Next week a women's Bible class will be organized, with E. R. Robertson, president, and the Rev. B. F. Starr, secretary. They have lived all of the long lives within a few miles of their present home and have been blessed with health and happiness.

MAYOR OF PARIS HAS EDITOR ARRESTED.

Publication of Suit Filed Against O'Brien Leads To Charge of Criminal Libel.

Paris, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—A suit was filed in the Bourbon Circuit Court by J. H. Haggard, member of the School Board, against Mayor O'Brien and Councilman Parrish, Webb and Brannon, charging them with libel. On October 25, 1905, all of them being members of the City Council, proposed and passed an ordinance increasing the Mayor's salary from $300 to $1,200 per annum. Councilman O'Brien then being the Democratic nominee for Mayor, and allowing the members of the council a salary for each position. The ordinance was passed and the Mayor's salary was increased. The ordinance was published to-day in the Kentucky-Citizen, and Mr. Haggard, the plaintiff, and Bruce Miller, the editor and publisher of the Kentucky-Citizen, were both arrested on a warrant sworn out by Mayor O'Brien, in which they are charged with criminal libel. Both gave bond the sum of $500 and were released, their trial being set for next Friday.

JOE LEECH FATALLY WOUNDED BY FATHER-IN-LAW

Mayfield, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—A shooting affray took place to-day in the eastern part of the county near Mayfield, in which John Miller shot his son-in-law, Joe Leech, four times, the balls taking effect in the neck and breast. Leech and his father-in-law were both armed with revolvers and had gone to the Miller home to see his child when a fight resulted between them. Leech was before and was thought to be mortally wounded. Both are prominent farmers.

Married In Jeffersonville.

Henry Sanderfer, a tobacco steamer, and Miss Bessie Sanderfer, a clear beauty, natives and residents of Louisville, were married in Jeffersonville by Magistrate Fisher and pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery. After they were indicted they were arrested by Sheriff Montgomery and taken before Judge Montgomery, who required to give bond in the sum of $200 each.

The frequent robberies at farm houses in the vicinity of Jeffersonville, beginning last week, and which it is believed it would not be well for the culprits in case they are found by the sheriff, are being done by Louisville negroes out of work, who go to the country on foraging expeditions. Yesterday afternoon Capt. M. E. Hickey of Jeffersonville, was notified the home of Jerry Courtney, who lives at Watson, was being broken into by three negroes and robbed of $35 in cash. The discovery not being made until some time after the intruders had left.

Capt. Hickey was told the negroes, all of whom were well-dressed, had started for Jeffersonville, and it was then too late to get them. But the authorities in Louisville were notified. It has been only a short time since the home of John Henderson, a prominent citizen of Jeffersonville, was broken into by three negroes and robbed of a considerable sum of money. The damage action of Agnes Wheeler against Lydia Moore, William Fisher and Salie Fisher on account of injuries sustained in a fight the motion to stay out the answer to interrogatory No. 2 was sustained by Judge Montgomery.

A NEW BUILDING FOR ST. MATTHEW'S CHURCH

EVANGELICAL CONGREGATION HAS PLANS READY.

STRUCTURE, THOROUGHLY MODERN, WILL COST $30,000.

ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS AGO.

A new church, modern in every detail of architecture and equipment and costing about $30,000, will be erected by the congregation of St. Matthew's German Evangelical church, on the site of the present church, on the north side of St. Catherine street near Hancock street. The main auditorium of the new building will have a seating capacity of 450 and the auditorium of the Sunday-school room a capacity of 500. There will be also eight classrooms, a primary room, the pastor's study, a library and a choir room. The work of construction will be begun at an early date.

Thirty feet of the front of the frame structure which the congregation has used as a house of worship for the past eighteen years, will be torn away to make room for the new building, which will stand back 115 feet. The remainder of the present building will be remodeled as a place for social entertainments. The main building or auditorium, will be 65x86 feet, and the Sunday-school building, adjoining the main structure and extending back of it, will be 74x54 feet. The style of architecture will be Gothic and the material stone and brick.

For the past four years the congregation and the pastor, the Rev. O. C. Minor, have been preparing to build the new church, but until last year, however, was a vote taken on the proposition to build, and the building committee was organized. The members of the building committee are: G. Heck, chairman; C. H. Fust, Jr., secretary; Bernhard, Henry Nick and John Stemmle, Henry Bickel and the Rev. O. C. Minor. The architect is Arthur Leonard, and the contractor, Casper Broell.

St. Matthew's church was organized eighteen years ago as a mission church. For the past four years it has been in making the church self-supporting. The church now has a membership of 300 families, and the Sunday-school an enrollment of 500.

THE THIRD BIRD

Stork Added To Eagle and Turkey.

PRESIDENT ANTICIPATES A DAUGHTER'S REMARKS.

REVOLUTIONARY DAMES IN EVIDENCE AT CAPITAL.

STIRRING WASHINGTON WEEK.

Washington, May 1.—T. Roosevelt, of Washington, D. C., is proof against epigrammatic surprise. He's game before any gag. You don't catch our Third bird napping. Such a stunning woman, called on the President the other day. She was a Lady of the Revolution, left over from the fringes of last week, and she had wheeled her home Congressmen to secure her an interview with his Majesty of America.

And oh, this does bore Congressmen so! Don't forget this, compassionate friends. Lugging important constituents to the White House is one of the severest of congressional afflictions. The lovely lady had again awake nights working up a brilliant list of spontaneous-like, when she burst upon the Actual Presence. They all do this.

"Mr. President," bubbled the beautiful person, with fifty-seven varieties of badges and insignia bristling upon her Merry Widowish jumper. "In the name of the Daughters of the American Revolution, of the chapter of which I have the honor to be a member, I wish to thank you for having added a third national bird to our distinguished collection."

"The stork," continued the lady, "as quick as a flash—the eagle, the turkey, the stork—three noble birds indeed!" And the lady looked properly crestfallen. Her triumph had been punctured provokingly. Mean thing!

"The 'Daughters of the Revolution,' as an innocent old darkey dame dubs the august order, have been gleaming like Christmas trees with pectoral decorations. In many an instance, when the notable society holds still long enough, one may count all the following tags upon one individual. Various ramifications and subdivisions of the D. A. R. family, a gold medal on a pink string that bespeaks a Mayflower lineage, a Daughter of 1812, a badge of the Pocahontas Society, one of the 'Daughters of Founders and Patriots,' another of the 'American Revolution Society,' 'Daughters of Colonial Governors,' Colonial Dames, and sundry other embellishments too late for classification.

The "Star-Spangled Banner."

The more badges you wear the sadder you stand up whenever the "Star-Spangled Banner" happens to be played. It is quite disconcerting, oftentimes to the patriotically minded, when in peaceful converse with a well-labeled lady in hotel parlor or corridor, to have her all at once spring to her feet, interrupting your very first best story, at it psychological crisis.

"Is anything the matter?" she inquired, in a friendly way.

"The Star-Spangled Banner," she explains in rebuke, and you realize that the hotel orchestra overhead is sawing away familiarly. Sometimes this happens at dinner in the middle of soup. A daughter, in her eagerness, got her fork tangled up in her soup plate the other day—and, oh dearie me! The stars saw beneath the liquid disaster in her best silken lap were two numerous and more dazzling than those that great spangled banner can boast.

The admiring but irreverent young chaplains about town have been characterizing the charming D. A. R. pages as "bell hogs." Perhaps they call it "belle" hope—these sprightly girls, appointed as a great national honor, to be at the beck and call of the Congress for general utility services. But the "bell hogs" enjoyed not only that not altogether unimpaired distinction, but the social affairs arranged in their honor. Mrs. Horton, of Buffalo, always the most right arrayed woman at the annual convention, gave a smart luncheon at the Willard, which included the pages both of this Congress and the last.

Mrs. McLean's Husband.

Mrs. Donald McLean's husband is content to be merely that during the D. A. R. demonstrations. In private life he is a notable lawyer and a man of big personal achievements. That Mrs. McLean is as great a success domestically as patriotically is evidenced by the unvarying devotion of her other half. Mr. McLean is in constant attendance upon his famous wife, looking down upon her proudly and admiringly from a box during every session of the Congress, and being her devoted cavalier at each social function. The pair scarcely seem aware of their position. Which recalls the conjugal content of another world-famous woman and her husband recently here. Mrs. William Ward, the husband of the most famous living novelist is a dapper, dignified Englishman, with parted gray whiskers and a huge pride in his spouse.

"Who's that man with her?" one Congressional lady asked another as Mrs. Ward, over-late at a reception given in her honor, entered the room, after the guests were assembled.

"That's Mr. Ward, I suppose."

"Mr. Ward? Didn't I know that was one?"

Mrs. Ward wore black net and jeweled chains, with the inevitable long feather bow in which she is always pictured. Her iron gray hair was drawn back from her strong, prepossessing face in a simple, home-made coiffure. Mrs. Ward's hair grows on the premises. You can't say that much of many of the other girls these days. While men and women surged side by side for chance of a word with the famous Englishman, her husband sat meekly in an obscure corner, unwept, unhonored and unsung, surrounded only by one lone man, himself the poor but honest husband of another celebrity present. The Hon. John Sharp Williams and Mrs. Ward held an interesting colloquy of some length. The author is deeply absorbed in American political institutions. She was a rapt listener to the proceedings in the galleries of the House and Senate, wearing a plain gray tailor suit and a black hat. She had lunched previously in the House cafe with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Parsons.

Busy Days.

Such busy, busy times in Washington since the post-Easter social season began. For a whole week the ultra-quiet in drives enthusiastically mobbed the Blasco Theater, where polite artists were putting on, in admirable professional manner, a merry little musical comedy, "The Prince of Patches," for the benefit of the local philanthropic work, the "Junior Republic." All the famous belles and beaux who weren't participating in the performance were applauding in the audience.

The grand opera itself the week before, culled out no more brilliant color than on 4th Page, 7th Column.)

In the Race For Business

Our business for the month of April exceeded by a generous percentage the total sales of the same month a year ago.

It demonstrates beyond all doubt that Straus initiative, Straus aggressiveness, Straus merchandising, are sure winners in the race for business supremacy.

Take a sure tip from us: The great bargains this store offers from day to day will increase the purchasing power of the family purse. Thrift is the only royal road to wealth.

WITH THE MOVING PICTURE SHOWS

With "Sapho" as the alluring headline attraction and a number of other brand-new picture subjects and illustrated songs, Manager Dustin believes he has arranged a programme that should prove the banner card of the season at the Hopkins, beginning this afternoon.

The famous Daudet masterpiece has been presented here many times as a play, but this will mark its first production in photographic form. If it comes up to the claims of its producers, the film will prove as great a triumph as the stage dramatization. A noted actress of the Olga Nethersole type is said to have posed for the titled character, and the scenes of the original play have been faithfully duplicated. It is asserted, in the pictures produced.

Comedy is to furnish the principal part of the rest of the new entertainment. What is proclaimed as an extraordinarily funny film will come in "Indian Bitters," a guarantee of a laugh per minute being set forth with the announcement that the picture is the title of the other comedy offerings are "A Useful Board" and "What a Small Boy Can Do." Especial mention is made of a series of picturesque views descriptive of "The Land of Gold Mines," the scenes of which are laid in the far West. Harry Brown will complete the bill with a new picture melody.

At the Masonic, Too.

A novel supplementary engagement is announced at the Masonic Theater for the week commencing to-morrow night in the Lyman H. Howe moving picture exhibit, which will be given for the first time in this city. This entertainment comes heralded as one of the most unique and enjoyable of its kind in America. In addition to the exceptional smoothness and beauty of the films, the varied features presented are made lifelike by the employment of stage machinery of all kind, up-to-date mechanical inventions and a corps of trained speakers, singers and animal imitators. This conversation, bird cries, animal calls, the ripple of water, the swish of wind, rustle of trees, flap of sails and boom of cannon accompanies the action and makes the representation so realistic as to border at times upon the dramatic.

The exhibit features a big city of Asia, via a big European ocean liner. This is, in itself, said to be equal to a trip abroad, as every detail of the voyage is duplicated.

Another series shows the life and habits of the people of Holland, the savage Zulus, the existence of a French sailor on a whaling vessel, and scenes in the ice-bound Polar regions and in the tropics and the European methods of fighting a big city. This wordless melodrama is entitled, "The Janis Boys in Missouri," or "The Great Express Train Robbery." In connection with the James Boys there will be also two entirely new Pathe subjects: a quivering feat at Cherbourg, France, in which 120,000 tons of solid rock are dislodged by 1,800 pounds of dynamite, and a trip through Hagenbeck's home in Germany with its myriad strange and interesting wild animals.

One of the most unique sets of the series, however, called "Wild Birds at Home," in which is shown the shyest and most elusive of the forest dwellers as they feed and nurture their young build their nests and hunt their prey.

Broadway Theater.
Broadway Theater has an excellent programme to-day. The subjects are evenly divided between tragedy and comedy. The French Colonial Restoration picture, entitled "The French Spy," portrays some very interesting scenes in addition to the views, showing vividly the dangers encountered as a spy. The next picture, "Unlucky Old Girl and Purrito Jealous," puts the audience in such good humor that they really sympathize with the child in the picture entitled "Moon and Robins." The picture of "The French Spy" is a splendid finale to a very interesting programme. The illustrated song, "Thinker Always of You," is well received by the audience.

The Novelty Theater.
The Novelty, under the direction of Mr. Conner, has been taking on new life. The patronage is increasing rapidly, and it is planned to enlarge the auditorium. Mr. Conner believes that the increase can only be attributed to the high-class pictures he is using. He is sparing neither time nor money to secure the newest and finest pictures on the market. To-day he has an entire new change of programme, and features both comedy and tragedy. Their pictures are so well displayed as to cause comment from the different picture show managers of the city.

The Marvel Theater.
Clean comedy subjects are being reproduced at the Marvel to-day. "The Pill Maker's Mistake" is perhaps the oddest. A boy gets into a factory and upsets a liquid on some prepared soup, which the cook uses for the meal, which at once causes the guests to become very excited, but later they discover the cause and what they do to the merchant who sold the goods is laughable in the extreme. "The Fire" is the title of a picture which is certainly in a class by itself. Two small boys discover a man asleep, and set his clothes on fire after which an exciting chase commences through lanes, over hills, roofs, through barns and houses, until finally the jumper is a lake. The singing of the Bentley quartet concludes a very interesting performance.

The Bijou Theater.
A most sensational picture play is now being shown at the Bijou. The wordless melodrama is entitled, "The Janis Boys in Missouri," or "The Great Express Train Robbery." In connection with the James Boys there will be also two entirely new Pathe subjects: a quivering feat at Cherbourg, France, in which 120,000 tons of solid rock are dislodged by 1,800 pounds of dynamite, and a trip through Hagenbeck's home in Germany with its myriad strange and interesting wild animals.

latest and most popular illustrated songs finish out a remarkably interesting programme.

The Dreamland Theater.

"Darkest Russia" is the leading picture at the Dreamland, portraying the political scenes in a very interesting manner. A young lady revolutionist overthrows a confession secured from one of the prisoners, warns the revolutionists that their hiding place is bad, and kills the leading officers. She is captured and cast into prison but is rescued by her friends and escapes in a sleigh. There is an exciting chase and battle in which she is again captured. This picture is followed by two delightful comedy subjects, "Harry, the Country Postman," and "Give Me Back My Dummy."

THE REV. L. M. MILLER ON LEPER COLONY OF MOLAKAI.

Interesting Lecture To Be Given On May 7 and May 12 In Two Languages.

The Very Rev. Louis M. Miller, provincial of the Order of Minor Conventuals, under whose jurisdiction the Hawaiian Islands are possessions of the United States, and who has recently visited the islands officially, will give an interesting lecture on the same at St. Anthony's school hall, at Twenty-third and Market streets, on May 7 and 12 at 8 o'clock p. m.

Mr. Miller remained on the islands for some time, and took a number of photographs which will be used in the lecture. The same should be very interesting, especially so since the lecturer is a fine orator and well known in Louisville, where he was pastor of St. Anthony's church for a number of years before being elected to the highest honor of the above-named order in the country. The photographs which were taken will be a surprise to some who, perhaps, have heard little of the leper colony on Molokai, and those suffering from the incurable disease, who are attended to by the sisters of St. Francis, under the direct supervision of the Very Rev. Louis M. Miller, provincial, O. M. C.

Among the sisters who have given commonwealth in the suit on behalf of the school board to take over vacant property along the river front, the intention being to use it for school purposes. The defendants made the point that this mortgage included the ground in dispute.

City Collects Back Taxes.

The claim for taxes made by the city against the Louisville Public Storage Company, which was organized during the years 1896-1900 was decided in part in favor of the city and in part in favor of the company. The bill for $2,674.73 and $3,421.36 for the years 1896-1900 was paid by the city. The bill for $1,489.31, 1899, $3,891.23, and 1900, $2,605.36, were declared to be good and should be paid. A question had been raised as to whether the defendant was a distillery warehouse. The manner of making the assessment was also an important factor in the case.

Judge Miller Sustains Tuberculosis Hospital.

DOCTORS AT VARIANCE IN THEIR EVIDENCE.

PEYTON CLARKE SUES MR. CARTER'S BONDSMAN.

APRIL GRAND JURY'S REPORT.

Though doctors disagreed in a way most irreconcilable in the injunction suit to prevent the establishment of the tuberculosis hospital several miles from the city on the Illinois Central railroad, Judge Miller, in his decision, sustained the hospital board and in effect refused to grant the injunction of the plaintiff. He allowed the defendants to file an answer tendered by them, which practically ends the case unless they make good with an amendment they are given two weeks to do so.

The establishment of the hospital had been attacked by W. P. Adams, who owns property about a mile from the proposed site. The general drainage of the locality is from the hospital grounds toward Adams' place. He charged that the location of the hospital would be a great menace to the health and lives of himself and members of his family. It would cause the value of property in the vicinity to deteriorate and that it would sooner or later have an effect upon the health of the whole community. The bill on which it is the intention to locate the hospital is about fifty feet above Adams' place.

Expert testimony makes up a large part of the record and only goes to show that a difference of opinion there can be in the medical profession on a given subject. Dr. Reynolds, Hoggess, Milton, Hendon, Blackwell and Wainwright all swore that the location of the hospital there would be a severe blow to the community. Trustee Clarke Sues Surety.
Peyton Clarke, trustee of the estate of George L. Clarke, yesterday brought suit against the Fidelity and Guaranty Company of New York to enforce collection of $25,000, said to be the shortage of Lattimore D. Carter, the former trustee, who has disappeared to bring the suit on.

Mr. Clarke sometime ago reported this amount to the court as the total amount of deficiency in assets, and the court ordered the trustee to bring the suit on. The court ordered the trustee to bring the suit on. The court ordered the trustee to bring the suit on.

DON'T KNOW ENOUGH OF NEW MEASURE TO TALK.
What They Have Learned of It, Provided the Information Is Accurate, They Don't Like.

Bankers and others in the city interested in financial matters are anxious to learn the full contents of the new emergency measure bill which is to be introduced in Congress to supersede the Aldrich and Fowler bill. The reports so far have been very meagre and hardly enough has been disclosed to give the bankers any idea of what the new measure really contains. They are able to do nothing more than conjecture on the merits and demerits of the proposed legislation, and none of them care to give their opinion on its advisability until they know more of its contents.

CHATTANOOGA HAS THE LAUGH ON HER DRY NEIGHBORS, GEORGIA AND ALABAMA

Extra Express Cars Carry Squirrel Whisky To the Thirsty Who Climb the Trees When They Have Had Their Fill—The Wetness of the Dry Country.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.) Chattanooga, Tenn., May 2.—Chattanooga is one of the handsomest and most enterprising cities of the South, and it has in its vicinity that which will make it famous for as many years as the republic shall live, three great battlefields of the Civil War. Its greatest interest is in its industries, but it has minor interests, manufacturing of all kinds, besides the shipping of whisky to dry, one would think it is able to become greater than all of its other industries combined. But the great thing that makes it famous is its grand scenery of mountain, plain and river, its scenery where thousands of soldiers who fell in the war are buried, and the great military parks on both sides of the river. Chattanooga Park is an army park, and for miles around one may see battlefields that made history. At Chickamauga Park there are hundreds of monuments erected by the Government, and by the States north and south that had soldiers in action there, and the battlefields and Union lines are so nicely marked that one can almost fight the battle with his eyes shut. The Government has the most perfect roads all around the park, so the visitor can see every monument and every place of interest, and there are guides to tell you which side got the best of it. As a Wisconsin soldier, I was proud to see the beautiful monuments to regiments and batteries from the Badger State, and every view of a regiment or battery of war caused the old nerves to tingle, and the tears to come. Going back to town we passed along Chickamauga ridge for miles, by monuments and markers, showing where Confederates held the fort, where regiments, brigades, divisions and army corps, and monuments showing where the boys in blue came in that precipice and whipped the whole snorting match, with drunk snoring a noble cigar at General Knob, Sherman and the rest, showing the job, and Phil Sheridan, with his short legs trying to keep up with boys who scratched gravel with finger nails and toe nails, going over where hell was a pupping. But I am not writing a history of the war, because others have done it better than I can.

To look down below, to the town so beautiful and peaceful, and across to Lookout Mountain, where Hooker's men got up without any extension ladders, in the early morning and drove away the soldiers who were there, one would not think that there ever was war, and killing and burning and the like. You know, when I looked at Missionary Ridge from in auto, where our army went up like climbing up the side of a house, I thought if I had been a traitor, down that ridge toward Knob, with my troops around me, I would have remained there, and sent word to the Confederates to come down and take it, and he refused to come. I would have spoken to him again, but, of course, if the light had been dark, he would have never had half so good a place for monuments to show off. But I am not writing a history of the war, because others have done it better than I can.

Hysteria in Tennessee.
I am now engaged in diagnosing the case of Tennessee, which has been called by the boys until she thinks she has had a jag, and is now partly on the wagon, and expects that next fall she will be clear up on the wagon seat, driving her team of runaway horses up and down her mountains, until something breaks, when the whole outfit will go rolling down the mountain side, with her people under the wagon and the neighbors telephoning for a doctor. It has been said by an eminent man here that the natural gait of a Tennessee horse is running away, and the people here are acting like a runaway on the question of prohibition, hysteria and nervous, acting like Indians at a great dance, bringing ministers, women and children into politics at the bidding of ambitious and unscrupulous demagogues, causing neighbors and rights looking and jealousy, just on account of a little beer and schnapps that will hurt nobody if they let it alone, and anybody can let it alone if they will half try. I never did run into a street to stop a runaway team because a runaway horse cannot be reasoned with unless you run him into a barb wire fence, but here am trying to show these "ghost dancers" of the mountains that it is time to quit this night-shirt parade and get down to business and make Tennessee the quietest State in the Union.

Long On Land, Short on People.
This State is long on unoccupied land and short on people to work the land. The State has room for half a million or more families of Germans, Hollanders, men from Switzerland, Norway and Sweden, with wives and children, who would find a home they could be happy in, and they would transform every acre of the fertile soil into vineyards, farms, dairies and what not. The State wants them, and those good-natured foreigners want to come, but as long as they cannot enjoy the customs of the fatherland, they could not drive them into Tennessee or any other Southern prohibition State with a million soldiers and make them stay over night.

Driving about Knoxville and looking at the hills and valleys, I listened to the natives for the sound of the Swiss cow bells, and I looked for the hardy, working people who ought to be there, but instead there were negroes who never had an inspiration to work because they enjoyed earning bread by the sweat of their brow, and the beautiful country is largely unoccupied. The city voted dry, and one of these foreign families turned loose there would feel that they were unwelcome to take anything but whisky, and they would look at a time card for the train that would take them away and yet Knoxville is the most beautiful city of its size I ever saw, and has a population of good people, little ones and old ones, who voted prohibition and joined the dry band, and they are trying to live up to their convictions and so they are in the situation, but they do not always expect or want to be dry.

Knoxville's Dryness.
The city voted dry because the liquor interests compelled them to. The liquor interests became unbearably arrogant, got control of the politics of the city, had law saloons everywhere, wormed their way into residence districts, allowed people to become so drunk they could not walk, and turned them loose on the street. The liquor interests were simply mean, they wanted saloons controlled and kept the city in a state of confusion, and with the political saloons, men and women, the condition he changed, and all the people decided to "go wet" and keep going, though "what" I could get the kids, but he laughed me to scorn. I found out afterward that he had been a Confederate soldier, and was wounded, and I thought he laid it to me, and was going to get even for 1862 by seeing me die of dry.

Quenching of a Thirst.
Well, some friends asked me if I didn't want to go and see a man, and I consented, because seeing one more man could not make any difference to a dying man. When we got to a place where the man was, one of them held up a face, and other gave the grand hailing sign of distress, and I coughed a hoarse kind of cough, and you can see a man who can be left or not, but the colored race began to march in procession past on with trays, on which were bottles of Northern beer in a great perspiration, on the outside of the bottle, had faint, but they brought me to, and nothing ever tasted so good, and a valuable life was saved. I left the foam on my mustache for three blocks, hoping to meet the Mayor, to show him, but the dry town, old prohibition town did not prohibit worth a cent, but the foam was off, and when I went back alone to get on with other mess of foam, I had forgotten the number and took a train for Chattanooga, where everything was wet, and when I got here I didn't want a drink on a bet. They tell stories on the dry fellows the time. One is a very prominent business man who talked dry, but a week before election he had half a carload of beer and budge put in his cellar, and some wicked wet gentleman took a kodak picture of the dry gentleman showing the expression where to put the goods in the cellar.

Two Kinds of Prohibitionists.
There are two kinds of prohibitionists. One kind has always been dry, and he is dried up, diseased, never breathes his

PE-RU-NA AS A TONIC AND BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mrs. Paul Casavant Writes From 219 Monroe Street, Topeka, Kansas, Concerning Peruna. Read Her Letter Below:

In Spring and Early Summer a Tonic is Needed.

The source of good blood is fresh air and well-digested food. If anything interferes with digestion the blood becomes impure.
A catarrhal condition of the stomach prevents perfect digestion. Such a condition allows the food to ferment and decompose in various ways, instead of digesting. The blood is thus contaminated with various materials that do not belong in the blood.
This gives rise to spring fever, eruptions on the skin, general lassitude and constipation.
Peruna corrects all these difficulties by striking at the source of them. By eradicating the catarrhal condition of the stomach Peruna at once restores digestion, the blood is thereby purified, and the whole machinery of the body is put in working order.
Peruna has probably made a more remarkable record in cases of catarrh of the stomach than any other medicine. These cases are very frequent, and we have a host of testimonials in which Peruna has received lavish praise for prompt and permanent relief in cases of catarrh of the stomach.

Mrs. Emily Kellogg, 5649 S. Lawrence St., South Tacoma, Wash., Gives Her Experience With Peruna. Read Her Letter Below:

"Three months ago I had an attack of biliousness which threatened to undermine my health and strength.
"Luckily for me, I tried Peruna at the suggestion of my friends before it was too late.
"I found in a few days' time that I did not have the usual sick headache, neither did food nauseate me any longer.
"In two weeks' time Peruna had completely rid my system of the poison and bile, and I was in a much better condition. My skin assumed its normal color, I had a splendid appetite, and I was in every way improved in health.
"I used Peruna for a month longer, and it wrought a wondrous change in my entire system."

Mrs. Paul Casavant, 219 Monroe street, Topeka, Kansas, writes:
"I have found Peruna very effective in restoring my health and strength after it had been worn out and run down for a long time.
"I began to use it about six months ago when I was unable to leave my bed.
"My nervous system was shattered and I was daily losing flesh and strength.
"This condition was completely altered after a few bottles of Peruna had been used, and I kept on using it until I was finally restored to perfect health, and had gained about fifteen pounds.
"I feel so grateful for what your medicine has done for me that I am pleased to give it my hearty endorsement, and shall always be glad to speak a good word for it."

White City Inaugurates Second Season Next Sunday With a Splendid Bill.
Creator and His Band One of Headliners—International Opera Company Strong Drawing Card.
Beginning a week from to-day, White City will inaugurate its second season, and unless the efforts of the management so wrong the splendid bill which has been provided for the first two weeks, should prove a strong magnet. Many high-class attractions have been secured for the opening bill, and the place has been so beautified and refurnished that its patrons of last season will scarcely recognize it.
Tickets have been selling for a week to the band concerts by Creator's famous Italian band, and the initial performance by the International Opera Company. Both of these are attractions of the highest order for a summer park. Creator needs no introduction to local amusement patrons. His band has been heard here on a number of previous occasions, and it has always been cordially received. Since he was here last season, the bandmaster has added to his organization some of the most noted band musicians in Berlin and Vienna. He will give two concerts daily, and will give both popular and classical selections. One of his big attractions of this season is a symposium of airs from "The Merry Widow."
The International Opera Company, which has been secured for four weeks at White City, has just closed a run of six weeks at the Auditorium in Chicago. The first opera which will be sung, will be "Pinafore," and this will be followed by "The Bohemian Girl." Miss Grace Lillian Walser will be the prima donna of the company, and Miss Alta Yolo the prima donna contralto. Another big feature for the first two weeks of the season at White City will be the Komps' Wild West Show and Indian Congress. This is an aggregation of Western products, managed and presented by two plainswomen who have surrounded themselves with some of the most unique shows of its kind in the United States.
The management of White City announces that the admission will be the same as last year. The proposition to have a free gate was given long consideration, but was finally abandoned at the advice of many of last season's patrons, who approved the high-class character of the show which invariably attended White City under the old regime.

Laugh On Two States.
Chattanooga has the laugh on Georgia and Alabama, and is rubbing it in awful. It stood at the express office for hours yesterday and saw the wagonloads and carloads of boxes containing bottles of large and small, and listened to the expressions of the passengers in a loud voice, and all the packages were for Georgia and Alabama, and the messengers and clerks looked upon the whole thing as a great joke, making remarks to the effect that so and so, at so and so, Georgia, would have a jar about 5 p. m., and have to be put to bed. Most of the whisky shipped to dry States is squirrel whisky, two drinks of which will make a man climb a tree. I saw one train go out with extra express cars, and Chattanooga sits back and laughs at her neighbors. Georgia and Alabama are like the boy who has had his chair pulled out from under him, and has struck the floor good and hard. A boy who has had that trick played on him, parties mad and says it is an outrage, so when the pain ceases he tries to play the joke on someone else.
So after Tennessee becomes entirely dry, as it is liable to do next fall, Georgia and Alabama may become wet again, and look out for the things they will do to Tennessee in the shipment of the squirrel whisky back across the border, where it is so much needed. In the meantime all the wet and quite a proportion of the drys are seriously considering the letting of enough beer to keep the tongue from being chapped and the throat from being like a bright star in the heavens, and they are all the time thinking of getting a year or more, and then the tide will be turned, and the boys will be located in the dry towns, and then gradually all will get back to the old condition, with fewer messengers and more rain, them, all under an excise board that will take a lesson from the boys who are evading the law, and there is evil work done, reasonably early closing, no politicians allowed to handle saloons, and when that time comes you will see everybody happy, a smile on every face, and everybody enjoying a person's liberty that will make them proud of their country and kind they are alive.

(Los Angeles Special to New York Herald.)
One thousand alligators, ranging from the length of a lead pencil to monsters that could crush a man in their jaws, arrived recently from the southwestern corner of Louisiana and were landed here in a new alligator farm in East Los Angeles. They were brought in a specially arranged freight car over the Southern Pacific.
The increasing demand for alligator leather, which is converted into pocket-books and handbags, makes the conservation of saurians valuable, and accounts for the new industry started here.

They add very much to the appearance of the splendid structure at night and are quite an adjunct to the metropolitan dress that is now being worn by Fourth avenue. The lights are hung in an artistic manner and attracted the attention of hundreds who saw them last night.

Check From Carnegie.
Hickman, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—The Board of Education received a check this week for $1,900, which is the first installment of the $10,000 donated by Andrew Carnegie for the purpose of building a library in this city. Work on the building is going right along.

Paul Jones' Swinging Lights Most Pleasing.
The new swinging are lights around the Paul Jones building were turned on for the first time Friday night and presented a most brilliant spectacle. The new lights make the street about the building have the appearance of day to all intents and purposes. They add very much to the appearance of the splendid structure at night and are quite an adjunct to the metropolitan dress that is now being worn by Fourth avenue. A Healthy Contest.

Such a contest as that for the office of the Commercial Club attests at once the vitality of that organization and the admirable character of its membership. That this association, with nearly 3,000 names on its rolls, is a great power for good in this community has been amply demonstrated by its record. Always directing its energies for the progressive development of Louisville, its vigorous growth is proof, where proof is not needed, that with it progress begins at home. That growth is signally gratifying to every one interested in the advancement of the city. In itself it is the best evidence that Louisville is a winner.

It is a marked honor to be an official leader of such a body, and it is as natural as it is healthful that there should be a friendly but active rivalry for its offices. That is the sort of rivalry being conducted by the two tickets now in the field, both of which are composed of the club's representative members, and the services of either of which the club will be fortunate in having. Both deserve election; would that it were possible to elect both.

The Pendants Club.

Although the Pendants Club is technically a private institution, that is, an association of gentlemen for social purposes, it is, in reality such a part of the life of the city as to make everything concerning it a matter of public interest, and hence the following open letter, addressed by its president, Mr. S. T. Ballard, to the members, may be considered important:

"The present facilities of your club-house are inadequate for your needs. This fact is very generally conceded, and nearly a year ago your directors were authorized to make certain additions, the character of which have been under discussion from time to time. Plans have been prepared for these improvements, which would probably cost from $25,000 to $30,000. They are open for inspection at the club."

Many of the members are opposed to spending any additional sum on the present building, and we have, therefore, had plans prepared for a new building, which would cost approximately $125,000. These plans will give you an idea of the advantages of a new building. They are on exhibition at the club."

"Many other members feel that the location should be changed, and we have secured an option on some property on the north side of Broadway, between Third and Fourth avenues, which would probably cost $50,000. We could probably rent this property for $75,000 from the sale of our present property. If it should be decided to erect a new building in a new location we could probably increase our membership to about 200, which would be a material help in financing the additional expense. All these matters of detail would have to be worked out."

"The object of this communication is to ask each member to attend a called meeting of the club to be held on Wednesday evening, May 6, 1908, and to come prepared to express his opinion on the following propositions:

"First—Shall we spend $25,000 or $30,000 on the present quarters?
"Second—Shall we build a new club-house?
"Third—Shall it be upon the present or a new location?"

"The directors ask the earnest co-operation of the members, and will most cheerfully carry out the wishes of the majority. Respectfully submitted,
"By order of the board,
"S. T. BALLARD, President."

The trouble about mass-meetings to consider affairs of business moment is that usually they are rather more litigious than deliberative. Considering the growth of the city the present Pendants Club House begins to be a little "down town." Considering the growth of the Club, it is inconveniently limited and confined. A handsome new structure, somewhere between Chestnut street and Broadway, and Fourth and Second streets, would certainly be a great improvement. It is to be hoped that the proposed special meeting will be largely attended and that those members of the club who have business weight and character will consider Mr. Ballard's proposals with calm, open minds and a catholic spirit of progression. Louisville is justly proud of the Pendants Club and nothing should be considered too good for it.

Tweddledum and Tweddledoo.

The troubles which our friends, the enemy—that is, the Republicans of Kentucky, and especially of Louisville—are just now having among themselves throw by a kind of reverse process a flood of light upon the almost forgotten Fusion Campaign of three years ago.

In that campaign many of the men who, in the pending controversy, are figuring as Republican machine-politicians and ballot-box stuffers, were claiming to be Democrats of the Saint-in-glory variety. They were apostles of free and fair elections. They stood for the purification of public life. All others were pretenders and counterfeiters. In possession of the City Hall—having effected the desired bridge with the Custom House—the new Jerusalem is as far away from the Northwest corner of Sixth and Jefferson streets as ever it was, Grinstead instead of Grainger in the saddle, and all the ground-and-lofty tumblers of the Religion of now-you-see-it and now-you-don't, occupying the Seats of the Mighty.

We need not to insult the Democratic ex-Mayor when we venture to doubt whether he, papa Gunther to help him, could have made a slicker job of it than was made by Mr. Confessor-of-shin Marshall Bullitt and his good man Hager, upon the occasion of the Primaries, so-called, of yesterday a week-ago.

It makes all the difference in the world whose ox is gored. In the campaign of 1905 the Courier-Journal was given the choice of supporting either a Fusion Machine seeking to construct a bridge between the City Hall and the Custom House and so by capturing Louisville to rule Kentucky—involving a secret league between political divilkeeping and journalistic pharisaism, a deal between the puritan and the black-leg—or, the Machine, as it was called, which, whether good or bad, was the Democratic party. Neither represented any original preferences of its own. Each offered the merest alternative. We stood by the color-of-our-cloth, the honor-of-our-faith, hoping for the best—making no airy promises—but exposing the hypocrisy of the Fusionists, who, having declared that "the earth belongs to the saints and we are the saints," were promising the millennium.

Well, the whirligig of time, has at last brought these gentlemen to the places from which the people then excluded them and how have they fulfilled their pledges and realized the dreams of the faithful? We do not need to point to the reports of the Primaries. We do not need to cite the verdict of their enemies. The answer is contained in the accusations made by their friends and colleagues. These tell their own story.

Moral: believe nothing until you see it in the Courier-Journal. If it is true, and it is, in reality such a part of the life of the city as to make everything concerning it a matter of public interest, and hence the following open letter, addressed by its president, Mr. S. T. Ballard, to the members, may be considered important:

We have a great and a growing city. We want to make it a glorious city. Inflamed partyism will never make it so. Idealistic rainbow-chasing will never make it so. We must steer our Metropolitan bark between the extremes of wide-open blatancy and malignant bigotry, both of very doubtful integrity.

The Machine now operating from the Custom House to the City Hall, and back again, is the Republican party. For good, or for ill, it is the Republican party. Just as the Machine, operated by Grainger and Barth was the Democratic party. Unless there be a strong, bipartisan organization—some voluntary, intermediate Machine—to forbid foul play and to insure a free vote and a fair count, we shall always have the ins resorting to fraud and force against the out, and vice versa; and this intermediate reformatory movement, should begin by discouraging the incendiary orators, whooping things up, and the blackmail newspaper, whooping up the incendiary orators, seeking to make a hurricane of every tempest-in-a-tea-pot, for the benefit of the professional heifers who are in it for what they expect to get out of it.

Mr. Grinstead is making about the same sort of a partisan Republican Mayor made by Mr. Grainger and Mr. Barth in the characters of Democratic partisan Mayors. He is rewarding his friends and punishing his enemies wherever he finds them. He is weeding out Democrats and putting in Republicans whenever vacancies occur. According to party standards that is all right. It has no more destroyed the city than it was destroyed before. But, let us have no lying and double-dealing, no hypocrisy and false pretension about it, for in the end, every rub will have to stand on its own bottom and coming elections will go according to the record. Meanwhile, we do not see that Louisville is either very much better, or very much worse governed than the average, the rogues in the long run, and on either side, contriving to get a little the best of it, as they did not, however, in the original Lighting ordinances, but as they did in the recent Feiter franchise.

And now, after Brother Bullitt has been in prayer, let us all join in singing that sweet old song, "How firm a foundation Ye Saints of the Lord."

Rather an Unworthy Hero.

They are about to produce—a Paris correspondent tells us—a French version of Beau Brummel at the Theatre Gymnase. There is but one actor in France who might have successfully played the part twenty years ago, the elder Coquelin; though it may be doubted whether even he could have given the world so finished and appealing a picture as that of the late Richard Mansfield. Considering the little dramatist has to go on in the career and character of the actual Brummel, it is curious that he should have ever made his appearance on the stage at all.

We were indeed a crozier for awhile of a prodigal Prince. He fell from dandyism into a debtor's prison—not a very steep descent—and died neglected and poor. But well may we ask of him, as it was asked about the fictitious Beau Austin of Henley and Stevenson's play: "What has he done—with half a century of good health, which has he done that is either memorable or worthy? Died and danced and set fashions, vanquished in a drawing-room—what else?" But the question is not so much what Brummel really did—though it might be said in reply, that he took folly and made a fine art of it—but what he was. And this summed up might be given as an answer: "He was dandyism itself," that is to say, the very personification of the dandiacal cult, rather than personated by the modern dudes of New York, London and Paris.

Of course, Brummel was the merest trifle. He was something better, let us hope, than Heide de Sagan and Harry Kendall Thaw. Indeed, he appears to have been a good deal of a child from first to last. Here is his baby-wall of despair in the days of his poverty: "My old friend, 'King' Allen has given me to understand that he will send me something to clothe my unhappy body, which is at this time as naked as a new-born babe. Think, Alvanley, of the dandy that I used to be!" When he was rescued from the prison into which he had been thrown by his creditors he went the same evening to a soiree, where he expressed his pleasure to find himself again with his friends. "I can assure you it is the happiest day in my life, for I have just come out of prison," he is reported to have said; in Jesse's life, amplified to read, "Glorial for I have just come out of prison—and I have again eaten salmon."

Such a hero is ill worth reproducing upon a mimic scene where virtue and vice are meant to take epoch-making forms and to deliver large, decisive morals on human character and the dream of the faithful? We do not need to point to the reports of the Primaries. We do not need to cite the verdict of their enemies. The answer is contained in the accusations made by their friends and colleagues. These tell their own story.

The Humiliation of Arkansas.

Let it not be said by the unthinking that Mr. Jefferson Davis is useless to the United States in whose Senate he is serving his maiden term in a most unmanly manner. The "takings on" of the gentleman from Arkansas must humiliate the State that in an abundance of discretion sent him to represent it at the National Capital, but reports of his speeches that come from time to time over the wires from Washington form a tale that points, or should point, a moral. There is a National habit of considering too little the question of the qualifications of the man for the place. We are too much given to rewarding personal popularity with political office regardless of the question of fitness and ability. Fortunately the able man is sometimes the popular man. Goodfellowship is a form of diplomacy often employed with effect by men of real worth, and ability to make stump speeches is often a concomitant of ability to discharge the duties of high office. But too often the politician who has no ability beyond the power to "shell the woods" is sent to the House or the Senate, where his opportunities to make himself ridiculous are unlimited and where his activities cause the State that sends him to be "writ down an ass."

The gradual elimination of politicians of the Davis type from State and National offices might be best guaranteed by the improvement of the public school system and by emphasizing in the schools a course of instruction upon the functions of the executive, judicial and legislative branches of government, and attracting the attention of the rising generation to the fact that while vigorous lungs are valuable in any line of human endeavor a sound mind, an informed and well-balanced mind in a sound body is the best equipment for a public servant.

Mr. Davis is an extreme type of the cheap politician in Congress. Neither capable of influencing legislation or thought in the direction of his doubtless honest and patriotic desires, and lacking the wisdom to hold his peace and be counted more or less wise, he serves as an excellent illustration of the result of the policy of making a man a United States Senator because he is a first magnitude rabble rouser. As an exhibit he should serve a good purpose in bringing voters in Arkansas and elsewhere to a realization of the folly of refusing to consider the question of ability when casting ballots to select a nominee. It should be borne in mind that a State is represented, or misrepresented, by its delegation in Congress. The present salary of Congressmen should command the services of men of at least fair ability, and something in the matter of fitness should be demanded of the candidate.

Mr. Davis, like many men given to great violence of speech, has an exaggerated idea of the swathe he is entitled by his talents to cut in National politics. Advance notices of his intention to make a profound impression upon the United States Senate and the United States reached Washington before the Senator himself arrived. Comparatively little was known of him outside of Arkansas, save that he had a fondness for didos during his term of office as Governor. There were persons who thought that perhaps he might have more or less ability masked behind the lawdry theatricalism by which he sought and secured the suffrage of the people of Arkansas. But in his first speech he revealed his mental poverty, and as a result he became the butt of ridicule in the columns of the press where, if virtue is sometimes over-rewarded and vice not always discovered, the fool and his folly are handled very much in accordance with their merits.

The press being a unit in declining to consider the Arkansas terror seriously, Mr. Davis reached the conclusion that the Money Devils own and operate all the newspapers, and in the Senate he makes a sorry spectacle of Arkansas by raving thus:

"Go, damnable imps of pelf and greed, I defy your taunts. Tear to fragments my political career if it is your execrable will. Rife and distort my every utterance. Not satisfied, if such be your brutal frenzy, lash my poor form into insensibility. Then, if it be your further pleasure, gnaw from my suffering bones every vestige of quivering flesh; how in writhed bestiality through my own innocent blood as it drops from your fendish visages; drag them, if you want, what remains into the fifth and seventh of your foul dens and burn it upon the altar of Babel or scatter it before the friendly winds of heaven to your better—the carrion crow of the field."

Of course Arkansas will withdraw Mr. Davis at the end of his term, but he serves notice that "God only can stay" his voice, and for several years he may cut capers before high heaven to his bleeding heart's content.

A King's Delicacy and Tact.

In his address from the throne at the opening of the Cortes the young King of Portugal evinced what his countrymen praise as "utmost delicacy and tact." Those who thought he would blunder were disconcerted. Those who expected to hear him denounce the assassination of his father and brother were false prophets. Those who believed he would throw the fat in the fire by even alluding to their assassins were undone. He did nothing of the sort. He was confronted with a condition and not a theory, and he met it squarely, ingeniously and gamely. In short, as hinted, he gave an exhibition of utmost delicacy and tact, simply by alluding to the "cruel disappearance" of the former King and Crown Prince. If he had said anything about "assassination" he might have made somebody angry. The gentlemen assassins themselves might have resented it and precipitated a revolution.

By the phrase, "cruel disappearance," he makes known his consciousness of the obliteration of his father and brother, and at the same time he treads on nobody's footy-tooties. To omit all reference to the sudden departure of the former King and Crown Prince would not have done, for it would have looked untruthful in the new ruler; it would have betrayed a lack of sentiment, grief or sense of the fitness of things. To allude to it freely or savagely would have been a tactical and political error.

"Cruel disappearance" answers every purpose. The young King keeps his record clear all around. It is an undeniable fact that the boy's father and brother disappeared. It is true, too, that there was a modicum, at least, of cruelty somewhere concealed in the disappearance. The young King, therefore, shows his originality, without being guilty of a falsehood or technical faux pas.

To disappear is not necessarily to be assassinated. Many a man has disappeared, and cruelly, without undergoing the inconvenience of assassination. If it be necessary to prove this statement the names of some of those who have successfully done so might be submitted. By splitting a few hairs it might be figured out that it is not altogether impossible for a person even to be assassinated without disappearing, although this is not so simple a matter. The appropriateness of the phrase as devised and used by Manuel lies in the fact that the individuals in question both underwent assassination and disappeared. Manuel was, therefore, quite happy in his allusion. He has created literature. Possibly by the mere choice of a word he has side-stepped a Portuguese revolution. That is something.

In other respects, too, Manuel showed his tact. He called upon the country, for instance, to "concentrate all its energies in a supreme effort to attain the realization of the destinies of Portugal." This is one of the most tactful remarks ever uttered by any king at any time. It sounds well and can give offense to nobody. Just what it means may cause some curiosity, but such curiosity cannot be dangerous to the throne or to the nation. In fact, it may be helpful. Many a crisis has been evaded, in fact, by arousing curiosity in an irrelevant matter. If Manuel can get his people to puzzling their heads over the conundrum, "What are the destinies of Portugal?" in similar fashion to the way in which Theodore Roosevelt's people a few seasons ago were vexing themselves over "How old is Ann?" he might make it possible for them to forget about assassinations, revolutions and things and live peaceable and obedient lives.

Tact is sometimes regarded as old-fashioned and almost obsolete. Hunt speaking, fearless expression of views and a firm hand are generally regarded as the more effective instruments in gaining a point. Manuel falls back upon tact, however, which is vagueness, incoherence, ambiguity, timidity. It remains to be seen whether that proves as forceful a promoter of peace as courage, vigor and firmness might have done.

To Abolish Snubs.
"Sent to Congress, you say? H—! It wasn't sent to Congress at all. It was sent to the newspapers, and through them to the people."—A Republican Leader in an Interview Upon the President's Latest Message.

While it hardly lies in the mouth of a member of Congress to comment upon the complexion of the kettle when the deliberative body is pot-boiled by the sin of quaking stump speeches through the columns of the daily press and the Congressional Record, there can be no doubt as to this statement reflecting the sentiment of Congress toward the House.

It is customary for members of Congress who wish to reach the people with the voice of protesting patriotism or prophecy to have their speeches inserted in the Record without actually addressing them to their colleagues.

The Government publication uses tons of type and forests of wood pulp in printing the mute speeches of our statesmen. That the custom of making the Congressional Record the most unreliable newspaper in America by filling it with these fake reports is evil, the Courier-Journal has insisted with all sincerity and with what vigor it could command. Unquestionably it would be less misleading to the people to preface the spoken speeches with something like this:

"The gentleman from Tennessee threatened to make the following oration, and to save time and avoid having to listen or absent themselves his colleagues agreed that it should be printed in the Record."

But since the custom of printing spoken speeches is established it might be well to handle in the same manner such messages from the White House as may be written to the people rather than to Congress, especially when they arrive at a time when the deliberative body is too busy with other matters to give them courteous attention.

A decided snub was administered to the President when his burning words were allowed to cool at the Capitol while the House and the Senate went on with routine business, and the news of the attitude of mind exhibited by Congress toward the White House traveled faster and further than the meat of the message itself. Had the message been extended to the Record, like the stump speeches of 1,000 ambitious members of Congress who give dignity to their addresses to "the district" by making them a part of the annals of the Nation, the executive branch of our Government would have been rebuked in so marked a manner by the legislative branch under the glare of the spotlight and in the presence of a body of unfeeling chroniclers of truth aptly anathematized by Prince Heide de Sagan as "the damned reporters of two hemispheres."

The President's latest message begins with this paragraph:

"In my message to the Congress of March 25, 1908, I outlined certain measures which I believe the majority of our countrymen desire to have enacted into law at this time. These measures do not represent by any means all that I would like to see done if I thought it possible, but they do represent what I believe can now be done if an earnest effort is made."

If the Congressional Record is "act" by hand possibly Congress delayed reading the message till the nearest type foundry could send an extra supply of characters for expressing the President's favorite personal pronoun.

A St. Louisian says the discovery of $200 and his watch and scarf pin under the front door mat means that a high-wayman who robbed him repented. His wife may believe him if he can show that upon getting home that night he didn't wipe his muddy shoes under the bolster.

The London Daily Chronicle says that American society has the manners that obtain in Bloomsbury boarding-houses. In other words, the American "swell" pays his board while the English aristocrat is everlastingly spending his way through life.

The Washington Herald doubts the story that a Greek nobleman is hunting a job in New York merely because Greece has no noblemen. But neither has France, and French noblemen constantly hunt heiresses in America.

Dr. Wiley says there is enough dye in the average strawberry pie to color a bolt of dry goods. And doubtless there is enough peroxide of hydrogen in a lemon pie to touch up a Merry Widow hatful of human hair.

A correspondent who succeeded in interviewing Stossel cables that the General does not like prison life. At $2 a word these cablegrams come high, but a startling statement like that is worth a wad of money.

PERIN AT MACAULEY'S.

EXPECTED TO DRAW CROWD AT PERFORMANCE TO-NIGHT.

Will Give Exhibitions in Mind-Reading and Hypnotism Which He Promises Will Surprise.

Dr. Carl Perin has prepared a most interesting programme for his performance at Macauley's Theatre tonight and promises a rare treat for his audience. Dr. Perin's demonstrations of mind-reading, hypnotism and telepathy will astonish those who doubt the real existence of these occult sciences. He has appeared in many of the leading theatres throughout the country, and many philosophers, physicians and members of the clergy pronounce him a phenomenon.

It is promised that Dr. Perin will in a blindfold state read words, numbers and names from a blackboard on the stage, also find articles hidden in any part of the theatre, the audience selecting a committee, so that they may be convinced that the exhibition will be fair and genuine.

The second part of the entertainment will consist of hypnotism, and any of the audience will be invited to go upon the stage and be hypnotized. It is said the Doctor can hypnotize eight out of every ten persons. Those attending tonight's performance at Macauley's are sure to enjoy a highly educational and most agreeable evening given in Louisville.

The indications are that there will be a packed house at the advance performance which has been large. The curtain will rise promptly at 8.15 o'clock, and there will be many prominent physicians present to test the Doctor's ability.

FIRE ENGINE COMPANY DISMISSED AT HEARING.

Had Been Charged With Neglect of Duty By Frank Huff, Whose House Burned Down.

The captain and members of Engine Company No. 13 were before the Board of Public Safety yesterday to answer charges of neglect of duty. The charges were preferred by Frank Huff, of 3035 Rudd avenue, and after an exhaustive hearing they were dismissed.

Huff's residence at 3035 Rudd avenue was destroyed by fire on Monday, April 20, and he charged that the members of Engine Company No. 13 allowed the house to burn down, and that he assigned that as the cause of the firemen's alleged slip over the loss of his property.

At the hearing yesterday it was shown that two alarms were received by the engine company when the fire was discovered, and that the engine was over the telephone and the other having been turned in from a box near the engine house, a result there was a misunderstanding, and when the firemen responded to the alarm they went in the wrong direction. When they discovered their error the house had burned down.

WATER FOR HIGHLANDS LIKELY THIS MORNING.

Force of Employees Hard At Work All of Yesterday Repairing Break in Forty-eight-Inch Main.

Employees of the Louisville water-works worked all day yesterday repairing the break near Randall avenue and St. Louis street in the Highlands, and it is expected to have the water running freely by this morning. In the meantime the residents who have been without water supply, and that portion of the city would be in great danger in case of a fire.

Chief Tyson has moved chemical engines to the Highlands and Mayor Grinstead has had water wagons sent there to assist the citizens in obtaining water for the necessary use. It was stated by S. Bent Russell, chief engineer of the Louisville Water-works, yesterday, that he hoped to have the break repaired by last midnight. He said that he was pushing the work with all possible speed, and was assured that the water would flow this morning, when the residents will have an opportunity to take their customary Sunday morning baths.

REVENUE EMPLOYEES GET HALF HOLIDAY SATURDAY.

A telegram was received yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock by J. A. Craft, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Fifth district of Kentucky, from Washington, instructing him that in June should close at 1 o'clock p. m. on Saturday, beginning the first Saturday in May and continuing through the last Saturday in September. The news of the order was received with much joy by the employees in the office and spread like wildfire. Within a minute or two after the order was read, some of the employees had the overcoat on and were making for the elevator. The Collector himself who had just returned from his fishing trip of the season, which was of course disastrous owing to the cool weather, was inclined to turn around three or four times and beat a hasty retreat home.

THEODORE GRAF COMING HOME FROM STUDY ABROAD.

Theodore Graf, a Louisville young man and a member of a well-known family, is coming home early in June after six years spent abroad in the study of music. Inducements have been held out to him to locate in one of several large cities, but he prefers Louisville, where his parents and many friends reside. He spent one year in the Strauss Conservatory in Berlin, two years at the Royal Conservatory, Wurzburg, and during the past three years has been studying under Prof. G. Flügge, of Milan, Italy, a famous teacher. Mr. Graf has devoted himself particularly to the piano and to concert programmes. Prof. Flügge has written his father, H. J. Graf, a most enthusiastic letter regarding the young man's progress in music, which he is to pursue as a career on his return home.

parade, Mr. and Mrs. Longworth entertained a group of the "Coms" in a box one night. Mrs. Longworth introduced the continental custom of evening dress at the play. She and her women companions were all décolleté and hatless. The President's daughter was even without gloves, which in the strict European innovation, her bare arms and hands showed no jewels except her ruby engagement ring, several diamonds, a pair of Timmons earrings and a diamond brooch. A blonde cendre hair—the Lady Alice's locks also all grew on the premises—showed no modish disarrange of arrangement, only a soft, unstudied pompadour and low knot at the back. Her gown was of Natter blue satin.

Mrs. Fairbanks and Mrs. Timmons were in an adjoining box, and yet another Mrs. Meyer, the stunning wife of the Postmaster General, Mrs. Meyer, also all grew on the premises—showed her favorite black chiffon velvet gown with the white tulle surplice and the diamond buttons. You remember that gown. Mrs. Katherine Elkins was in white satin, garlanded in pink roses. At one of the Parachute performances Mrs. Elkins was seen in a white gown and daughter Ethel sat demurely in the orchestra.

Social Notes.

Mrs. William F. Draper, in pearls, coral and diamond jewelry, entertained a box party at the "Prince of Patches." Miss Margaret Draper gave one of her Easter holidays from St. Timothy's Hall at Chalmers, Md., wore a frock of pink silk. Mrs. Draper gave a heart party in honor of her young daughter. Gen. and Mrs. Draper chose their Washington home March 23. They will spend the summer abroad.

Mrs. Charles Darwin Pennebaker, formerly Miss Harris, of Bardonia, gave a dance this week at her home in Georgetown in compliment to her young daughter, Miss Anna Elliott Pennebaker. Among the guests were Misses Emily Elliott, of Shelbyville, and Edith Elwang, of Louisville, students of the University of Kentucky. Miss Emily Elliott, who has been spending the Easter holidays with her cousin, Miss Lucinda Carpenter Pennebaker, was in charge of the dance, which was given by her cousin, Miss Edith Elwang also was present.

Mrs. C. D. Chennault, Kentucky State Agent, D. A. R., is visiting in New York before returning to her home in Lexington.

At the ball given at the Arlington by the new congressional club, the "Archbishops," Mr. and Mrs. Olie James were present. Mrs. James was very handsome in white satin with touches of pink. Mr. James wore a tuxedo. Miss Nancy Johnson wore pink chiffon. Miss Edna Elwang, of Louisville, white chiffon. Mr. Pollock Payne was among the guests.

Confederate Daughters' Ball.

In the receiving line at a brilliant ball at the Arlington given by the R. A. C. were Mrs. J. B. Harrison, Mrs. James, in pink chiffon, and Mrs. Lillian Rosell Messenger, once of Louisville, one of the notable literary women of Washington. William Conrad, formerly of Jeffersonton, Ky., was on the floor committee.

Miss Nannie Fisher, of Danville, whose home is now in Pittsburgh, has been making a visit at the Ontario.

Mrs. Morton Yonts, of Louisville, with her three little folks, is the guest of several weeks at the commandery of her parents, Senator Paynter and Mrs. Paynter. Mrs. Yonts was much admired at a tea this week given by Mrs. Burleson, of Louisville. Mrs. Yonts wore a smart costume of pongee embroidered in blue cornflowers. Mrs. Yonts' little folks, who were with her, were Miss Yonts, a trill costume of white serge with big Merry Widow hat trimmed with coral ribbon.

Miss Nancy Johnson has returned to her home in Bardonia, whether her two attractive sisters had preceded her several weeks. The young ladies are giving a series of houseparties at their fine old colonial home, where their father, John H. Johnson, was born and has always lived.

Mrs. Wilson's Luncheon.

Mrs. George H. Wilson, during her sojourn in Washington, gave a smart luncheon at the New Willard, entertaining Mrs. Ames Draper, one of the most prominent D. A. R. of the district; Mrs. Chennault, Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Cook, of St. Louis; the State Agent, Mrs. Michael, and other Kentucky ladies. Upon Mrs. Ben Johnson, of Bardonia, and Mrs. Andre Scanlon, of Richmond, was conferred the distinction of being made members of the D. A. R. of the district.

Mrs. Wilson, in white lace and pearls and lilacs of the valley, Mrs. Ben Johnson, in blue satin and lace, Mrs. Scanlon, and other Kentucky ladies attended the banquet given to Mrs. McLean after the close of the D. A. R. congress.

Mrs. Edmund M. Post, of Paducah, after attending the D. A. R. congress, where her brightness and charm made her many friends, is now in Richmond, Va., the guest of her sister, Mrs. Cook.

NEEDLESS WORRY

The Benevolent and Mission Boards Close Year Well.

FEAR THAT CONTRIBUTIONS WOULD FAIL GROUNDLESS.

APPORTIONMENT PLAN GROWING GENERALLY IN FAVOR.

TIMELY RELIGIOUS TOPICS.

With but few exceptions, the fiscal years of the benevolent and missionary boards and societies of the city have closed in the spring, and most of the reports have been received. The reports of these organizations are unanimous in the opinion that the year has been one of unusual success. The practice of almost all missionary organizations to make appropriations for the year upon reasonable expectation of support. That is, if a board or society has had an income from contributions, lectures, etc., approximating the average of say $25,000 for five years, it is assumed to be safe to appropriate that amount for the current year. This plan was followed this year by practically all the organizations, but the financial statement of last fall brought into the situation an element that had not been reckoned with. Consequently, missionary officials have been doing more than the usual amount of worrying as to whether they would be able to make ends meet.

In most cases it was found that the anxiety was needless. From all but a few of the denominations advance reports of their financial condition show that contributions from churches and individuals have been as large as in former years, and in a number of cases they have been larger. Lectures have been, as always, the most uncertain quantity and in the fiscal year just closed by many missions boards this element has been unusually unsatisfactory. Some of the boards have, in many instances, loath to close out estates because of the low prices to be realized on securities. Some of the boards and societies that entered the year with debt have been unable to reduce it for this reason, although the contributions from the living have been considerably larger than in former years.

Treasurers of the boards and societies are not yet ready to quote final figures of income and expenditures, but they are because their books are kept open until the last possible moment to take advantage of delayed gifts, but that the year has been a satisfactory one none deny, although no official can be found ready to admit that receipts have been as large as were hoped for.

APPORTIONMENT PLAN
Growing in Favor With All Denominations For Benevolences.

The apportionment plan for mission and benevolent contributions is growing in favor among the denominations, and leaders say that the reason is to be found in the fact that it reduces to the minimum the uncertainty as to the amount of contributions from the churches—which is usually the largest item in board and society receipts. The plan has been in use for a number of years in some of the churches, notably the Methodist and Episcopal, in the latter of which it has largely increased. Some of the boards and societies that entered the year with debt have been unable to reduce it for this reason, although the contributions from the living have been considerably larger than in former years.

COMPLIMENTARY MENTION

Given Many Clergymen in Connection With Washington Bishopric.
A whole lot of promising and rising Episcopal leaders in connection with the Washington bishopric have been mentioned in the papers. These men are helping the men and do not help the women. It is not to be expected, however, that the selection will be made outside of the Episcopal ranks. The only positive indications are that the selection will be made outside of the Episcopal ranks. The only positive indications are that the selection will be made outside of the Episcopal ranks.

Near the end of this month the diocese of which Washington is bishop, the Maryland, will elect a coadjutor bishop. Bishop Faret is an energetic and able man who knows his own mind. He would ask for a coadjutor. Wonderfully active for many years, he has been more than ever active during the past two years. So his request for assistance comes as a surprise. Bishop Faret is hardly second to that of Washington in importance. As the bishop of the diocese to be chosen will have the right of succession, great interest is everywhere being expressed in the matter. It is said to be unlikely that a Baltimore clergyman will be selected. There are at least three whose names are mentioned. The one who is just the man for the position and who deserves the honor.

A preparation to unite the small diocese of Boston, which consists of the eastern shore of Maryland and the Maryland State of Delaware, came to naught for reasons which leaders say are very understandable. When it is considered that the loss of autonomy was imminent, and when one of the dioceses has at its head a man well advanced in years, the convention just held in Delaware to select a successor to the late Bishop was an unfortunate one, the first having been held in 1892.

CLOSER TO CONSUMMATION.

Has Been Brought Proposed Union of Baptists and Free Baptists.

The proposed union of Baptists and Free Baptists has been brought to a consummation by the actions of a conference in which both bodies were represented. Held a few days ago in Cincinnati, the project of union has been under consideration since 1905, and was hastened at the Baptist anniversary held in May of last year in Washington, at which time the Free Baptists passed resolutions declaring Baptists and Free Baptists "in all the essentials of Christian doctrine and practice" to be substantially one.

At the Free Baptist conference just held a plan was formulated for union in denominational and missionary activities, and leaders believe that the plan will meet the

CHRISTIANITY IN JAPAN.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

Tokyo, April 25.—Christian churches of all denominations in Japan have total membership of 1,000,000. Besides these, there are a great many who are not members of any church, but who are Christians in heart, although not open professing. These are estimated to number about 1,000,000. Many of the most prominent men of Japan are Christians, and the influence of the main churches is widespread. Of the 10,000 church members there are 9,000 Protestants, 50,000 Roman Catholics, and 5,000 Greek Orthodox Christians.

Japan occupies a peculiar relation to the Christian religion. With the exception of Northwest Africa, it is the only part of the world in which the Christian faith, although not open professing, is so firmly established, and where an independent ecclesiastical organization has been developed.

The movement for ecclesiastical independence among the Japanese Protestants is already successful, these being independent Japanese churches of the Presbyterian, Congregational, Episcopal and Methodist denominations. These churches still maintain connections with the mission societies which founded them, the degree of independence varying in the case of each denomination.

Undoubtedly the Christian church in Japan has a greater influence in the country than the statistics of membership indicate, but it is also true that Christianity is still largely influenced by ancient practices and thoughts, and the influence of Shinto and Buddhism is still very strong.

forward to the early union of all the leading Protestant bodies under the name of the Protestant Church of Japan. While the Protestant churches show no more members than the Roman Catholic, and but twice as many as the Greek Catholic, the Protestant influence is regarded as being practically equal to that of the Roman Catholic, and three times that of the Greek Catholic.

these things did or did not accept the religion preached by the missionaries.

It was always grateful and always considerate. The missionaries and the Japanese live together in terms of such close fellowship that neither will permit criticism of the other as a class.

It is interesting as a historical study to look into the early Christianity of Japan.

In 140, more than 200 years ago, that prince of missionaries, St. Francis Xavier, and his companions, came to Japan.

But the Jesuits could not refrain from mingling with politics, for a separation of politics and religion was not the policy of the Japanese government.

They preached the faith with all the fervor of that great age of missions, and with such success that within forty years there were 200,000 Christians in the land.

Just two centuries ago, however, the Christians of Japan were almost exterminated in the last forty years. The daimyos, or feudal lords, of one portion of the country espoused Christianity, and it became the religion of the aristocracy.

THE Country Club opened for the summer season last night under the most favorable auspices. The day had been for the most part an ideal sunny effort on the part of the weather man and, as the Spaniards say, when the gods have sent the sun to shine upon their favorite pastime, "Heaven smiled upon the bull fight."

The women and girls who had been praying for fair weather to wear their pretty summer finery, blossomed forth in all the diaphanous drapery in keeping with the season and the latest models. The clubhouse had on its best expression with the necessary touches of paint in the right places and the landed gentry living in the neighborhood of the clubhouse had laid their best flower garden produce upon the walls and tables of the dining-room and halls.

There were many beautiful gowns in evidence and their dainty freshness served to form no little part of the decorative and artistic effect that went to make the sight of things a joy to the eye. Every table was gay with posies and everybody was in a good "spring-opening" humor.

There were many parties, but these were also a number of happy couples who went out just to be in the game. Mr. Garvin Thomas had a prettily decorated table and the members of his party were invited to meet charming Miss Suzanne Henning, of New York, who is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. S. K. This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor creases and discoloration, characteristic of old paper. The left edge of the page is bound, showing the stitching and the inner cover material. The overall tone is warm and slightly yellowed, suggesting the age of the document.

Prize Winners.

The correct answer to the puzzle published two weeks ago is "Brace and Bit."

There were many correct answers sent in and the prizes for the three most successful were awarded to the following:

most of their conventions here. The Odd Fellows have had their annual convention at Sulphur for the first of eleven conventions and encampments to be held in Sulphur and vicinity. The Grand Lodge of the I. O. O. F. Cousins, should any of you come to Sulphur this summer you must be sure to call on the lodge. I am sure that it is due to my father's wizard and show you genuine Chickasaw. I am a member of the Chickasaw blooded Chickasaw. My mother is a white woman, who came up into the Chickasaw country with her husband, a Chickasaw academy. My warrior brother, who is an officer in the United States army, is now in the hospital here. I will visit home this summer. My grandfather, who is a noted warrior of my tribe, will return. He is proud of him and is so anxious to see him. When he comes, my grandfather is going to cross these lines in their war bonnets and feathers. President Roosevelt and Secretary Pratt in Washington. They are both great friends of the Chickasaw.

Army regulations prescribe in detail what honors shall be paid to the flag and these regulations are implicitly and gladly observed. No matter how little one may relish the duty of showing the respect due to some military superior, he is always ready and glad to do honor to his flag. Whenever anyone in the military service of the United States and if sitting he is required to rise and stand at "attention" until after the flag has passed.—[St. Nicholas.

HE HAD A TOOTH OUT.

A girl in Scotland, whose father kept a bakery, was in the place one evening when a stranger came in and almost killed the father and robbed the till. The only description she could give the police was that the man was tall and dark and had a front tooth out. They hunted for the man for six months and at length arrested one who bore the description. On being brought before the court she identified him at once, and he soon broke down and confessed. Had he gone to the dentist and had a new tooth put in he might have escaped.

In North Dakota a girl 15 years old was driving a cow up from the field to be milked, when a thunderstorm came up and they both halted under a tree. They had not been there five minutes when a bolt of lightning struck the tree. The girl's shoe was torn off her feet, a ring on her finger burned off and one of her ears blistered, but she was all right after an hour.

As for the cow, she had both horns knocked off and tumbled over as dead as a rock.

Three thousand years ago no less than 700 varieties of the shark tribe were swimming about in the oceans and ready to gulp down any sailor that fell overboard. To-day there are only about sixty varieties known. It should be added, however that these few are perfectly competent to take care of any boys that go paddling about on salt water and meet with an upset. Sharks prefer a young and juicy boy to a tough old sailor every time.

A Welsh paper tells of a family in Wales where the father is 83 years old, the mother 82 and the youngest of three children, all unmarried and living at home, is 45. When these "children" misbehave they are cuffed and switched the same as if they were only 10 years old. The father was switching a son of 60 when a reporter called at the house for the offense of having spilled some milk on the floor. An American boy may be glad that he wasn't born over in Wales.

Getting Away From Gibraltar.

By LIEUT-COL. THORNDYKE.

HE British sold Gibraltar, but communication was cut off by a blockade. The British fleet was fifty miles away, preparing for an attack. Dispatches must be sent to Gibraltar, and an answer brought back.

A large sum was offered for the work. My captain accepted. I was only a boy, but could row better than the best sailors, and I was a good swimmer.

We ran down the coast, fifty miles of Gibraltar, by 8 o'clock, on the first dark night; then, in a little dory, we two boys, and a black man, started at daylight the next morning, or to die in the attempt.

It was just enough of a breeze to deaden the sound of our oars. We were straight as a line for Gibraltar. Twice we passed directly under the nose of a frigate, and twice we were shot at for a bit of cord with two men in it.

We were at the wharf but seventeen minutes, and then we were back with coffee and running up and down. At eight minutes before 11, just two hours and fifteen minutes from the start, we dipped our oars.

All that had favored our getting in was against our getting out again. Even our black man, who was a swimmer, was not a swimmer. There was a storm coming up, and, even if he could keep the dory afloat, the lightning before long would show us up.

The captain sat in the prow, with the two boys, and the black man, and a hair's breadth, to hide the light; and he was at the same time pushing on his oars that he might keep a lookout for the British.

Three times we dodged them, and once a voice hailed us, "the darkness but we could not understand what was said, and did not stop."

And rowing in the dark waves, that were rising higher and higher, till we were ready to drop the oars and let the dory go where it would. The captain, who was a watchful and a competent light, and reported half-past 1.

I groaned as I replied that I must not stop, but I must row very fast, through the remaining hour.

Just at that moment there was a flash of lightning, and a cry, "The captain and I both uttered an exclamation of dismay."

There was a big ship, not a hundred yards off, and on the other side a boat with half a dozen men in it.

"Three more flashes followed in quick succession," and the two boats were bearing down upon us with oars and guns.

"The lightning holds up, they must lose us," whispered the captain. "The are the dispatches, wrapped in leather, and the answer to them is in a box. Pull for all you're worth now. If there's another flash I'll give them broadside from this rifle."

The oars and the rowlocks cracked.

"Mark! a voice!" "Capt. Boer, ahoy!"

"The British are here, and a view of the water."

It was the voice of our second officer, who was a swimmer, and was too much for us, our people had taken our points and run six miles nearer the shore. The British were now within a mile, and we were in a bad way. We had kept our lines, through that darkness and storm, that we came within a hundred feet of collision.

A vintage, sepia-toned portrait of a young boy, likely from the late 19th or early 20th century. The boy is seated in a wicker chair, which is visible in the foreground. He is wearing a dark, double-breasted suit jacket with a light-colored chain or fob hanging from the buttons. Underneath, he wears a white shirt and a dark bow tie. His hair is dark and neatly combed. The background is a plain, light-colored wall. The entire portrait is enclosed within a dark, rectangular border.

THOMAS ASHBROOK DEDMAN,
Of Cynthiana, aged 9 years, who is a reader of the Children's Page and who is a contributor to the contest department.

By H. L. BRADLEY.

THE sky was at its bluest, the clover its sweetest. The air had a feeling of plenitude—a whole
Sunday-school rattled through the country road in a series of decorated hayricks. Mr. Frog had arranged a delightful family picnic. He had invited his wife and his wife's mother up the well, with the promise of an agreeable surprise at the surface.
Something scarlet floated in the water.
The wife and wife's mother thought it was the "surprise." Mr.
Frog knew it was not; and feeling the responsibility of a husband and son upon his neck, he determined to go boldly close to the beautiful object which was a piece of red flannel on a hook.

There was a splash—a cry:
"Oh, I've got him!"
A shadow darkened the sky—Mr.
Frog was husbandless.
This occurred on Monday. One lot week she wept, and waited and watered, and made wide eyes. On Monday she sat at the well, and stunned at the spray of mud from the bottom of the well. Splash, can an object down through the water and, panting and gasping, Mr. Frog again at her side.
This was what he said before Mr.
Frog had time to falter:
"You've got me!—don't speak
—I have written it out—look in my pocket—read my experience—I am exhausted—been through everything and long sleep—let me be—qu-

Then Mr. Frog stretched himself out, lay like one dead—only he breathed regularly for twenty-four hours.

His mother-in-law put a pillow of short bits of reed grass under his head, gave her daughter a smelling bottle and sent over to the spring in the orchard for the neighbors. No one stayed at home, and the one-eyed man who came a little later to draw water at the well grumbled:

"Suppose if I said there were forty frogs in the well, folks at home would say I could not see straight!"

The forty frogs sat in an awed circle around Mrs. Frog's husband. The mother-in-law held a small roll of paper in her left hand and a pocket watch in her right. Mrs. Frog looked at the paper and said to Great-grandfather Frog, who coughed twice, hopped across the bottom of the well as if to collect himself, and then said:

"It is Monday night. This morning I was with my dear wife in one-eyed Doceen Gray's well. To-night I am in a well with forty frogs. I am sitting in the midst of a great city. Strange things are happening! I shall write them down for the benefit of frogs and say that I am writing this paper to be given to my dear wife."

"Two women caught me—one is the doctor. They seemed to think it a very important thing to see me. They wanted to know they stopped two men, three carriages, a man on horseback and called at a house to tell what they were doing. They said, 'We want you to look at the circulation in the web of his foot.'"

"What does this mean? My foot feels as usual. I must be mistaken. Other frogs have circulation in the web of my foot. I am not in the pain of a frog's foot," he said, and continued writing. "I hear the doctor claiming must get back into my jail."

"Tuesday night, I know what circulation means. I was in good to bad, but uncomfortable so long. I was carried to a girls' school where the doctor was waiting. He said, 'The web of my dress held me. The web of my foot was stretched out under a moon-colored thing with a glass in it. It was a fear of the moon. The moon was a fear of the moon and the girl's dress was very red. Everyone admired her because she thing, which they called a microscope. They all said the same words, and they said the same words about ten times each. They said this: 'How lovely! How perfectly lovely!'"

Here the reading was interrupted by all the forty frogs wishing to examine their feet.

"I don't see anything perfectly lovely," said the great-grandfather.

"Of course you don't," said the mother-in-law. "You have to look at your feet through the moon."

"No, not the moon—but a thing the

"The great-grandfather resumed, "After the exhibition at school someone said, 'Frogs' legs are very delicate and make a nice dish for the sick. I will take him home to cook.'"

"Imagine my horror. I closed my eyes and thought of the orchard and the sweet-smelling clover, of my wife wait-log alone at the bottom of the wall. On Wednesday, I have been told, I am to be kept for experiments. The doctor has not had time to try any to-day. This evening she gave a party: twelve men and two women—all doctors. She had been arranging her room for the occasion. I was not invited. I got out of the pull as often as possible just to bother her. I have been under all the furniture. At first she wouldn't touch me with her fingers, but she got used to it. The doctors were all white, except one and one of them said, "The pigment cells of a frog's web are essentially connective-tissue corpuscles." I don't know what this means, but from the expression of the man's face I judge it means nothing.

Saturday night. I have been taking ether, and am very feeble. Have been unable to write. I ethered in some of the patients to make people dead for a time. When they are dead in this way any thing can be done with them, and they know nothing of it. I ethered a man for a long time. Probably the doctor cut me in places and put me together, turned me inside out, then turned me back to the way I was.

Coming out of the ether—that is, coming alive again—is more unpleasant than holding your foot under the microscope. I still have some of the experiments are interesting, but they are destroying my nervous system. I heard about nervous systems at the doctor party last week. I am going to see the lady if I ever see her again. It is too long to write.

Sunday, the day they do in the country, the doctor took a small leather book with a handle and went to church. Thinking it would be a fine chance to see the place, I went out the back door and hurried down stairs. There were three women in the lower front room. The moment they saw me one jumped out and said, "What are you doing here?" The other for a dupstun. It was more dangerous than any of the doctor's experiments—I just escaped with my life. I was so happy I could not tell you what I said. When the doctor came home the woman on the chair said either she or I would have to leave the house. I said I would leave. She said, "Well, the doctor, who seems very kind, will take me back to the well. Whatever happens, I trust these lines will be given to you."

The forty frogs having unconsciously listened to the reading with their forty mouths wide open, had swallowed too much water.

Suddenly they began to strangle. Forty strangling frogs. The noise aroused Mr. Frog for a moment, and he said sleepily: "In case of choking strike the patient violently on the back between the shoulders, I heard the doctor say so."

Or
The Story of the Boy Who Won Out

IT WAS 3 o'clock in the afternoon of a February day, and a score or more of the boys of Springfield were skating on the frozen ice of the mill pond. It being Saturday afternoon, of course there was no school, and the place was a veritable playground for the boys of the town. The inhabitants and the richest man in the place was Col. Johnson. His only child

No one could charge Col. Johnson with being mean. He owned the chair factory and employed many men, and none of them found fault with him. He was a family man. The father had brought Harry up to think that because the family was well off all other boys should bend the neck to him, and

Tom had never been in jail. On the contrary, he was a well-behaved lad, but the name had been given him because he would not truckle to the rich man's son. Also because he was the raggedest boy in the village. Four years before the date of our story his father had gone away to sea on a whaling ship and had never been heard of since. Tom was believed by all that the ship had been wrecked and all were lost. Tom was motherless, and his father had not been properly behind. When all hopes of the ship were given up his uncle Hiram came forward and took him home. He was a harsh and stingy

Tom sat down on a stump and fold ed his arms and looked at the other young John who had never had a

I shan't let you go to school any more, and my old clothes will be plenty good enough for a beggar in his life. He was always busy tending, but never fighting. When he saw that Tom was not afraid of him, he wanted to back out of the affair. But the boys had been so much in the way of the boys had not gathered around, and said:

"He is defying you, Harry! Go for him! Take off your skates and make

This was said in hopes to scare Tom, but he didn't scare. As Harry came ashore, spitting on the water, Tom pulled on the halibut pulled off his ragged old coat and stood ready

 "No!"

 And the next minute the two were rolling over and over in the snow, and the fight had begun that was to affect the whole future life of Tom Hastings and bring him back to his home before he found rest. Let us follow him and see—

Denver Preparing Great Time for Convention Visitors

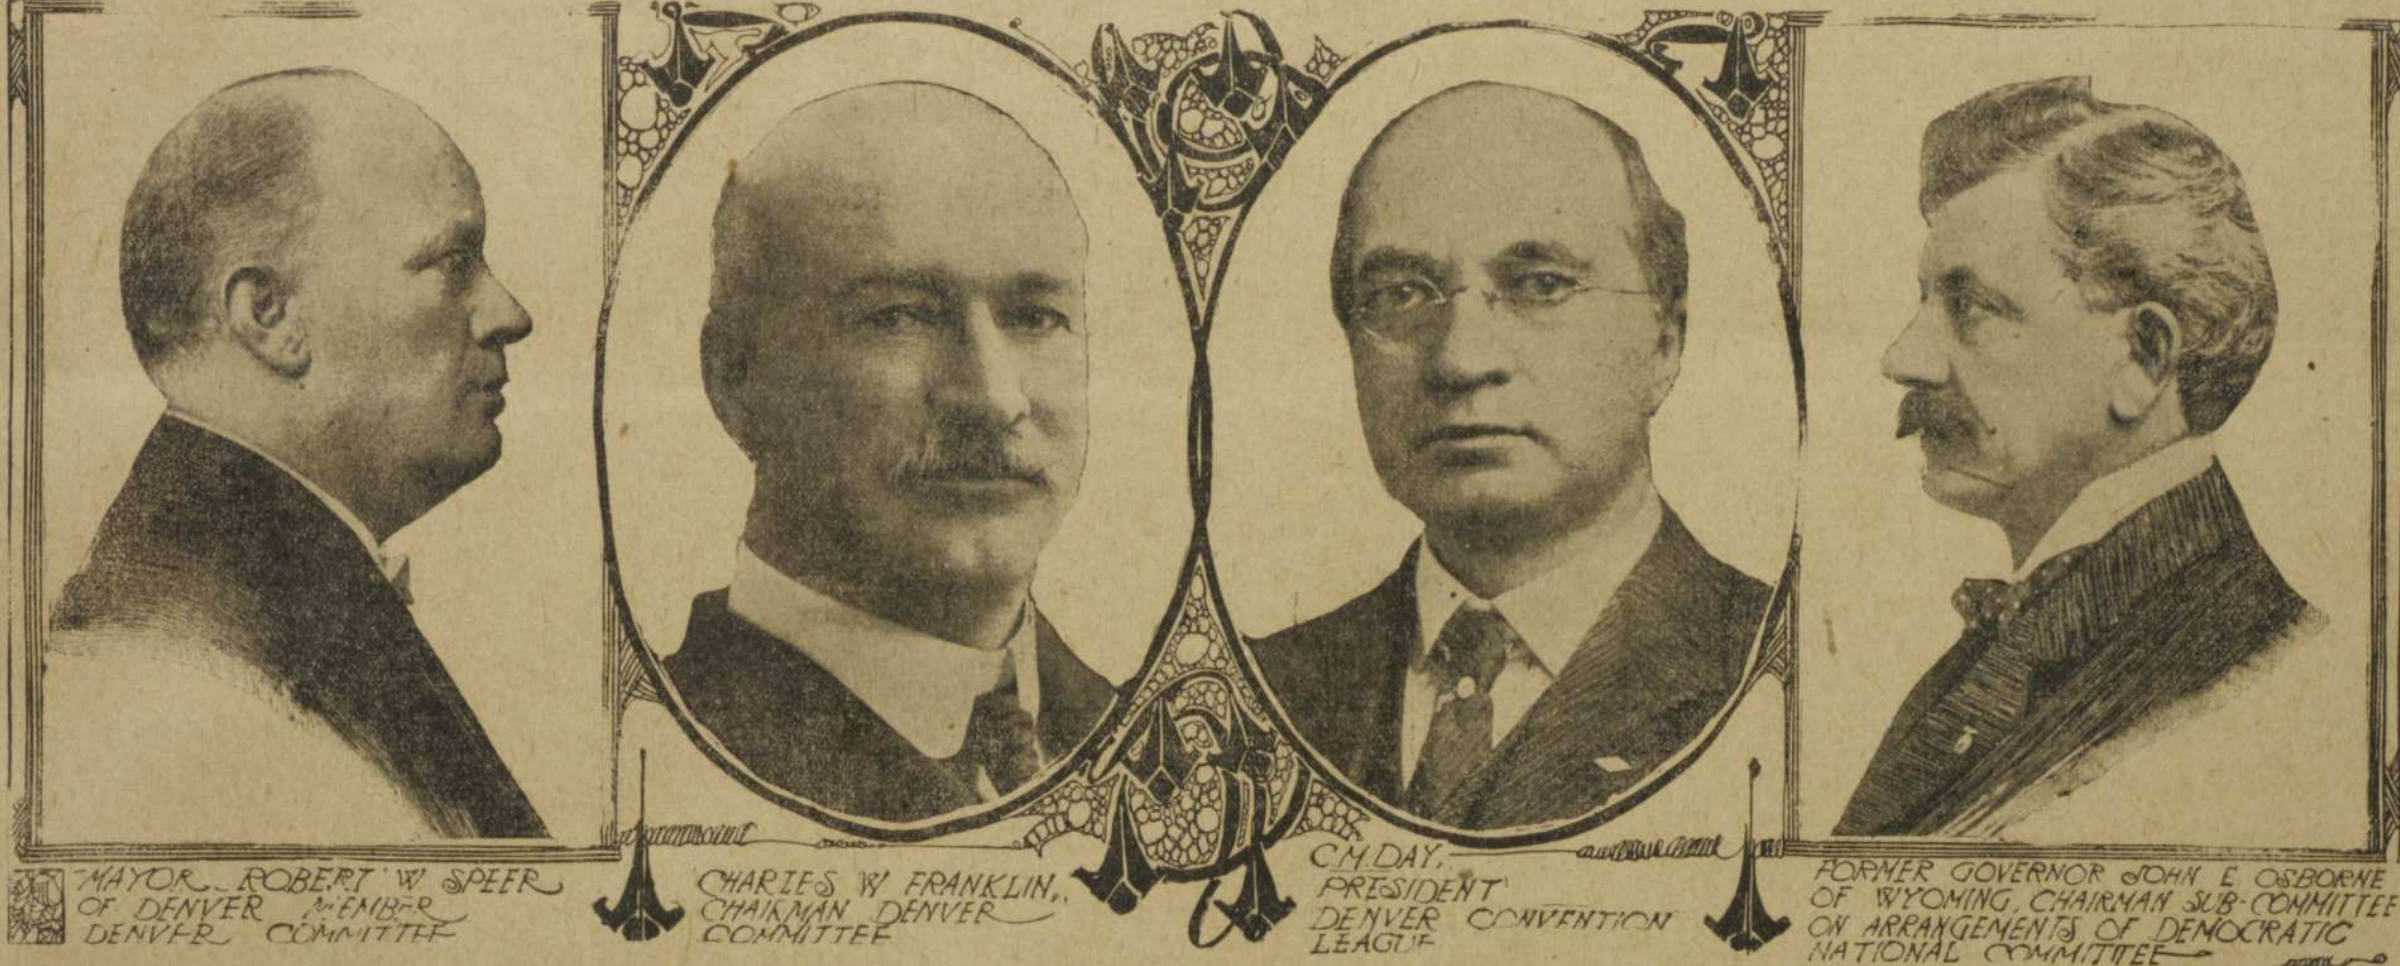

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)

DENVER, Col., April 28.—Political affiliations do not figure in the elaborate preparations that are under way in Denver for the entertainment of the delegates to the Democratic National Convention, which convenes in the new Auditorium next July. The one idea in the minds of the citizens of Colorado's capital is to make the convention a success. The sum of $100,000 was raised by the people of Denver to bring the convention here, and men of every political faith contributed as liberally as they were able.

A committee consisting of prominent business and professional men is in active charge of the local details of the big show to come. This organization is known as the Denver committee, and it is working with and under the authority of a sub-committee of the Democratic National Committee on Arrangements, of which former Gov. John E. Osborne, of Wyoming, is the head.

Denver has a unique organization known as the Denver Convention League. C. M. Day, representative of the Adams Express Company in Denver, is president of this organization. The object of the league is to secure conventions for Denver, and it was a committee from this organization that went to Washington and induced the National Committee to select Denver as the next meeting place for Democracy.

After the convention was assured for Denver the league named a committee of five prominent Democrats of Denver to work with the National Committee on Arrangements in looking after the world of details that go with preparations for such an important gathering. Charles W. Franklin, a prominent attorney of Denver, was made chairman of this committee,

CHAIRMAN DENVER
COMMITTEE

C. M. DAY,
PRESIDENT
DENVER CONVENTION
LEAGUE

FORMER GOVERNOR JOHN E. OSBORNE
OF WYOMING, CHAIRMAN SUB-COMMITTEE
ON ARRANGEMENTS OF DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL COMMITTEE

which is officially styled the Denver Committee, Denver National Committee. Mr. Franklin's associates are Mayor Robert W. Speer, Harry E. Insley, commissioner of supplies for the city; Charles F. Wilson, City Auditor, and John F. Shafroth, former Congressman from Colorado. President Day and Secretary W. F. R. Mills, of the Convention League, are ex-officio members of this committee.

They are both Republicans, but they are taking as much interest in the preparations for the gathering as are the Democratic members of the committee. Had Denver secured the Republican National Convention members of that party would have been selected to serve on the Denver committee.

The finest convention hall in the world is being built as a meeting place for the delegates. But Denver will not stop with the construction of the Auditorium. Plans for entertaining the delegates are under way, and the visitors will be made to feel that they are welcome in this bustling Western city. The committee on decorations and illumination is working out some original ideas. One of them is to construct a huge tiger of paper mache and place the figure on a pedestal at the head of Sixteenth street, in what is known as the Majestic triangle. The tiger will be outlined with red, white and blue electric lights, and at intervals a searchlight will be flashed on the figure to illuminate it more prominently. It is likely that smaller tigers will be placed on prominent downtown corners. Another illumination scheme that will be adopted is the suspension of artistic transparencies at the intersection of downtown streets that will show the pictures of leading Democrats of the different States and Territories. Each block will represent a State or Territory, and State and Territorial shields will be placed in the centers of the blocks.

Chairman Franklin has completed his list of committees, and former residents of States and Territories have been named on the various entertainment committees to welcome visitors from their old homes. No one will be overlooked, and everybody will have a chance to see all there is to see in Denver. Extra attractions have been booked by the different outdoor amusement parks; banquets are scheduled, and no efforts are being spared to make the occasion one that will long be remembered by the delegates and other visitors that come to Denver at that time.

The Auditorium will be completed about the middle of June. This big structure will cost not less than $550,000, and will be paid for by the sale of bonds voted by the people of Denver. The contract for decorating the interior of the convention hall has been let. The National colors will prevail in the general decorative scheme. The seating capacity of the building will be 12,500.

The municipal authorities are rushing the work of constructing decorative street electric lights. Sixteenth street is free from unsightly telephone poles, and the hideous arc lamp has been removed. Handsomely designed iron poles have been erected, each having two electric lights—one extending over the street and the other over the sidewalk. The effect is striking, and this thoroughfare deserves its name of the "White Way."

On Fifteenth street the same scheme will be carried out, except that the lights will be green instead of white. It is probable that Seventeenth will be decorated in a similar manner, with lights of some other color.

Business houses are preparing to decorate their buildings with flags and bunting, and nearly all of them will have new electric display signs constructed for the occasion, and thousands of incandescent lights will be strung about the city.

It will be seen, then, that the convention in the convention hall is not the paramount issue so far as Denver is concerned. The people of this city are concerned at this time more about the enjoyment of the visitors. "We must show them the time of their lives," is the expression heard on all sides, and this certainly will be done.

John Bull Worried Over Prospective Tourist Slump

LONDON, April 28.—"Are you ready? Fire! One, two, three!" These words will send a thrill through thousands of spectators at the Franco-British Exhibition, to be held next July in connection with the Olympic games. Standing twenty-five yards apart, famous duellists will fire point-blank at each other. Unlike some duellists on the continent, they will try to hit each other.

But the bullet used will be of wax, and if all goes well will leave wax and a tiny white mark on the coat of him who is hit. In all but one other respect the encounter will be like the real "affair of honor." The other point of difference will be that the duellists will wear masks, with thick glass over their eyes, be attired in clothes which will be proof against the wax bullets, and have shields on their pistols to protect the hands.

The encounters, however, will be among the most novel ever held here, it is expected. Even on the continent a serious duel in public is a rarity. One of the kind in Russia recently, at which even women were present when an army official received serious injuries, was the subject of comment all over the civilized world. The local exhibition will therefore give opportunity to see something few ever see.

The affair here, however, will be entirely and, unless some unforeseen contingency arises, practically without danger. The system which will be followed is based on the French practice duels, invented by Dr. Devillers, of Paris, about two years ago, in order to train Frenchmen for serious affairs.

News and Gossip From the English Metropolis

Thousands To Witness Realistic Duel With Wax Bullets

One of the leaders in the arrangements for the proposed duels here is Walter Winans, crack pistol shot, who expects himself to take part. At Surrenden Park, his Kentish seat, he has been getting into practice with his pistol.

A representative of the London Express lately journeyed there and had an imaginary encounter with Mr. Winans just to see what it was like to look into the barrel of a pistol. Describing his sensations in an article in his paper he says:

"We came to a halt. I was given a bullet to examine; the bullet that was to wound me in a mortal spot. It was a big black bullet made of wax, and it measured nearly half an inch in diameter. It seemed heavy, too. I was inspired by the information that a little too heavy charge of powder behind it might easily make it penetrate, and that Mr. Winans a few days previously had whipped a lump out of a French duellist's hand."

"Then I was handed a pistol, a big, black pistol that could kill a lion. A feeble pleasure lit my heart when I saw the strong metal shield round the trigger. A wax bullet could hardly reach my hand through that."

"Tremblingly I submitted to be helped and then garbed in the monkish cloak, which was strapped round my ankles and waist, so that I might not present too big a target. "Then it was, 'Are you ready?' and twenty-five yards away I saw Mr. Walter Winans ready to shoot me. I thought of the ace of hearts, the blue bottle, the candle, the soldier, the polo ball, all the trophies and certificates in Surrenden Hall, all my past life and its vain boasts, all the future that was not to be, and last, but not least, of the coming bullet, coming at a velocity of nearly 100 yards a second—all that passed through my mind in a flash."

The Crucial Moment

"Then the umpire shouted 'Fire!' at which we raised our pistols—at least I know I did. At the moment I could not see my adversary, or anything else. But the umpire was to count 'One—two—three' before we pulled our triggers. I suppose the counting took one second; yet it seemed like one full hour. I looked down the gleaming barrel of Mr. Winans's weapon, and I could see that bullet coming out of it at 100 yards a second, growing as it came hurrying to the size of the full moon, till, just as 'three' was called and two reports rang out, it reached me."

"But instead of wiping me off the face of the earth it passed by, and I felt nothing but the merest puff of wind. I imagined I ought to fall—two—three!—before we pulled our triggers. I suppose the counting took one second; yet it seemed like one full hour. I looked down the gleaming barrel of Mr. Winans's weapon, and I could see that bullet coming out of it at 100 yards a second, growing as it came hurrying to the size of the full moon, till, just as 'three' was called and two reports rang out, it reached me."

"I had hit the champion shot of the world at the first attempt. But the bullet idea had not yet taken hold of me. I asked anxiously, 'Are you hurt?' "Yes, killed," said Mr. Winans, as he laughingly showed me the white mark over his heart where the wax bullet had fattened. There was no white mark on my cloak, so he had missed."

"But I quickly conceived that he had been playing with me, and when I took my stand for a second shot, with a little reassurance, I determined to find his heart by design, not by a fluke."

"Killed! By the Rules."

"I could not help a tremor, however, as I faced that level barrel again; but I tried to aim true. 'One—two—three,' sounded sharply again. 'Bang! bang!' and I felt a sudden prod over my own heart. By all the rules I was killed, and I thought I ought to be lying prone."

"But another consideration brought me to my senses. 'You missed me that time,' laughed Mr. Winans. And so I had, for all my forced coolness. He told me he heard the bullet whizz wide of his shoulder."

"Mr. Winans also demonstrated to me the right way and the wrong way of holding a revolver, instancing a leading London actor, who persistently presents his weapon with his arm bent and his hand clamping the extremity of the butt. 'The weapon would kick and a straight aim would be very difficult,' said Mr. Winans. 'The arm should be perfectly straight and the hand clasped firmly around the butt, with the thumb in line with the barrel.'"

Are There Farmer-Tourists?

London shopkeepers are already beginning to rub their hands in joyful anticipation of the annual invasion of American tourists. This should begin in earnest toward the middle of May, continuing for about three months. There have been some serious misgivings on this side as to just how the recent hard times in the States would affect travel across the big pond and these are not entirely dispelled by optimistic statements published in the press here.

The agent of an American express company, in an interview, says that the number of his concerns in connection with the coming rush is 20 per cent. better than at the same time last year.

"Once they laughed at the craze for visiting England and Paris, but now it is becoming the fashion. Directly one of them is visible measurable distance of being a million, he regards it as his duty to 'do Europe' and particularly London."

It is generally realized by John Bull, however, that there will not only be a serious slump in the numbers of visitors from America this summer, but that the number of them will be less than last year. The reason for this is that the money among the tradespeople here.

Much attention has been attracted among those interested in civic matters to the plan inaugurated at Bradford for feeding hungry school children, who, it is realized, can hardly be expected to do good work with their minds when their bodies are stunted by lack of nourishment. The city is giving food, free of cost to their relatives, to some 2,000 out of 40,000 children of school age.

Children known to be insufficiently nourished are gathered at noon in nine centers to dine. The tables are laid by the teachers, assisted by some of the older girls, or "little mothers," with white tablecloths. Meanwhile the plates and mugs are being brought to the food from a great central kitchen.

There are signs that London will see this year a considerable increase of the farmers of the Far West among its visitors.

"These men, the actual producers, have not been so much affected by the financial depression as the city men. Moreover, the European tour is becoming every year more popular with the farmers from the Western States."

Prepared At Central Kitchen.

At the central kitchen Dr. Crawley, the medical superintendent of the City of Bradford Education Committee, has prepared a dietary and menu for the children of domestic subjects, has therefrom prepared some seventeen different dinners, so that, if it were necessary, a different dinner could be served each day for seventeen days.

The chief cook is assisted in the kitchen by an assistant cook, and three women and much ingenious labor-saving machinery. When cooked the food is packed in specially contrived boxes, capable, if necessary, of retaining its heat for full three hours. The plates are also packed, a certain number in each, in closely-fitting cylinders, and the mugs in other boxes.

The boxes are taken to the children's homes, and placed as cut into boxes fitted to receive it. All the food, plates, mugs and bread are then called for by a motor-van of fifteen horse-power, and the whole of the food and apparatus for the 2,000 children is distributed to the nine dinner centers in less than fifty minutes. The whole cost works out at something under 3 cents per child per day.

A New Roosevelt Idea.

Philip A. Lazzolo, the Hungarian artist, who painted a picture of President Roosevelt during a recent trip to the United States, and who is now living here with his English wife, has an idea in regard to the third-term matter. He has suggested that the President, and other third-termers may wish to take up, if they cannot have their way at the coming National Convention of their party.

The artist exhibited a sketch of Secretary Taft to the representative of a local paper, saying: "He will be the next President. He has helped Mr. Roosevelt enormously."

He then added: "And shall I tell you my own thought? It is that after Mr. Taft's term Mr. Roosevelt will himself return to office."

Such is the impression of the strenuous Chief Executive created upon a foreign mind in the course of a necessarily brief view.

QUENCHING THE THIRST OF OLD LAWMAKERS

WITH the completion of the new office buildings for the House and Senate at Washington, the architects have not neglected the "personal gymnasiums," and the lawmakers will experience no trouble in locating their wet goods emporiums, says the Kansas City Star.

This is a reminder of the "good old days"—the days when Webster, Clay, and other legislative giants made the forum ring with their eloquence, when statesmen drank as a matter of course—some of them pretty hard—and nobody thought the worse of them for it. It was the fashion then for gentlemen to absorb an amount of liquor that would be considered decidedly unbecoming at the present time, and brandy or whisky in stiff doses furnished the inspiration for many a brilliant speech in the Senate and House. If, in that classic epoch, anyone had suggested the idea of excluding spirituous refreshments from the Capitol, a howl of indignation would have greeted the impertinent reformer.

When the century was yet only half grown, Senators applied customarily for their toddies at the so-called Hole-in-the-wall—a small circular room just off the post-office of the upper house. The latter body then occupied what is now the Supreme Court, and the post-office was across the main corridor of the building on the same floor. When a wearer of the toga found himself in need of a "snifter" he had only to cross over to the mail department and pass through it to the little circular room aforesaid, which was about the size of a pantry.

The privacy was absolute, only Senators being admitted to the sacred precincts, and the amount of "good stuff" consumed in that hallowed retreat is said to have been enormous. The immortal Daniel, Henry Clay and Elihu T. Jones drank many a glass and swapped many a story there. Frankly there was for those who preferred it, but the favorite beverage was a rare old whisky, such whisky as degenerate moderns know not—and the price of it was ten cents. Only a dime were the grave and revered legislators of those days obliged to pay for a dose of fluid encouragement.

The Hole-in-the-wall was the first Senate restaurant, and the bill of fare for edibles was short, though to the point. There was ham, guaranteed to have been smoked for six months, a veritable sublimation of the pork product, likewise corned beef and bread and cheese. They served, as an accompaniment for the fluids, and, when the case, Senators ate their sandwiches outside in the post-office.

The barkeeper of the Hole-in-the-wall was not an employee of the Senate. He enjoyed merely the privilege of dispensing liquor and food there, the only thing demanded of him being that the "wet goods" should be of the first quality; no inferior article could be palmed off on the legislative palate in those days.

Webster, when he had a great oratorical effort to make, always used a stimulant, and on one occasion this habit of his led to a very funny incident. He was speaking on the compromise measure of 1850, and at intervals during his discourse helped himself from a small ice water pitcher and glass which had been brought by a page. When he had finished, Senator Walker, of Iowa, got up to reply, and, reaching over to Mr. Webster's desk, took a portion of the contents of the pitcher, and attempted to drink it, supposing it to be water. In truth, however, it was gin, and the honorable gentleman nearly had a fit, spluttering and choking, while the dighted body of which he was a member, perceiving what the trouble was, became hysterical with laughter.

Immediately above the room called the Hole-in-the-wall there ran a corridor, since wiped out by alterations in the building, and there during the last three weeks of each session of Congress was spread each day a banquet at the cost of the employees of the two houses, who "chipped in" to pay for it. It was really a very elaborate feast, all sorts of luxuries, including even terrapin and champagne, being served, and it was free to all Senators and members of the House. The hospitality was by no means without a substantial object, however, for, as "compensation" for it, Congress voted $200 in gold to each member. This, in fact, was the beginning of the custom, which holds to this day, of voting an extra month's pay to the clerks and other people in the salaried service of the House and Senate.

My, my, but Senator B— was a wonderful man," said an employee of forty years' standing a few days ago. "He could hold more whisky and use more beautiful language than anyone I ever knew. Why, sir, I've seen him come out of the Hole-in-the-wall loaded to such an extent that he would have to hold himself up with a hand on a desk on either side of him, and in that condition, sir, he would make a speech that nobody could answer."

It was told of a certain other illustrious Senator of those days that some body ventured to ask him if he adopted any system in the regulating of his drinks.

"Decidedly so," he replied. "When I get up in the morning I put down a layer of whisky, and to that I add a layer of water. Then I superimpose a layer of breakfast."

"But how about the rest of the day?"

"Just a series of layers of whisky. Two or three more meals interspersed, and a thing of the past."

THE announcement from Ansonia, Conn., of the recent death of the "only living skeleton," directed attention to the entire class of freaks, or human prodigies, as they themselves prefer to be called. They have for the medical man a more than passing interest, says the New York Medical Journal. Most of these humble and unfortunate individuals, whose sole means of livelihood is the exhibition of their physical infirmities to a gaping and unsympathetic crowd are pathological rarities worthy of more serious study than they usually receive. Their mortality rate is high, and many of those most recently famous are already dead or have been retired from public view by chronic invalidism.

A few days ago there died in Chicago Maggie Minott, one of the most extraordinary of the nanosomes, or true dwarfs. She was twenty-seven inches high and weighed but twenty-five pounds. Most of these pygmies are types of infantilism. An exception was the comparatively robust and virile "Tom Thumb," who had a vigorous and manly beard. Bass, the "ossified man," also died several years ago. He was a man of unusual intelligence, and his condition was caused by an extreme degree of polyarthritic deformity. He was injured by a careless attendant, who let him fall from a high place, and he never fully recovered.

The skeleton man a few years ago contracted tuberculous disease of the lungs from exposure of his scantly clad body on the drafty stage of time museum. His was a case of generalized dermatitis, and he had an amusing record of drawing the skin of his forehead down over his face like a veil. Closely allied to him was the Russian dog-faced man, with features marvelously resembling those of a Scotch terrier. He and the bearded lady, who in their less prosperous days and when they were the immigrant class. To-day they have gone up town to "better things." For a long while they left behind them their drags, which are known from the popular accounts of the roving East Side gangs, well typified by "Mick Eastman" and the rest. Monk and his kind are "up State"—their gangs are no more.

The Jew has come in and displaced the Irishman in practically all the East Side—I say the Jew as if he were an individual type—but he is not. He is made up of a dozen races speaking a dozen dialects and with different customs and traditions; some even are pure Russians, having absolutely no Palestine blood in their veins. Each year sixty thousand immigrants come into the district—each year sixty thousand so-called Americans go out and scatter themselves over the outlying districts of Brownsville and Harlem, where a new type is being formed. As Mr. Watchorn, Commissioner of Immigration for New York, will surely bear testimony, these immigrants are not criminal nor vicious nor diseased, nor the scum of Russia—but fugitives from a land of terrorism where they have received a good education and learned the art of thrift to a degree the Anglo-Saxon might well imitate. Even in their ideals, crude as their religious conceptions and notions are, they have a ruggedness which stands out to be the habitation of the Irish into which they come! These refugees are crowded together on the East Side, not because they could not go elsewhere, but because they do not want to go elsewhere. They come to join their friends in communities which are grouped around a synagogue which has been transplanted directly from their Russian or Polish homes, and they refuse to go out into the strange heathen land—as they feel a Christian country to be.

If you will walk down Hester street and look at the vendors of stocks and suspenders, with their long beards and peculiar clothes, you little guess that they have received a Talmud training equal, according to Dr. Blaustein, formerly of the Educational Alliance, to two years of our law school courses. Some have even been to the Russian University.

Often these people are very poor, they have arrived with little more than their ten dollars in their pocket and can only find work in those lines in which their friends and relatives can help them—that is in most cases, tailoring, which is conducted sometimes in the big tailoring establishments, sometimes in a loft under the synagogue, sometimes "sweated" work in their very homes. The Jew is a true business man and if he can save a few pennies each day, even by the use of his family in the work, he soon digs his way out to an independence which is well shown by the records of the Hebrew charities. He is not alone in his struggles either. Groups of men connected with the synagogue or charitable societies are ever trying to relieve his wants and put him on a basis of independence and the Industrial Removal Society will place him in a job in the West as soon as he can overcome a prejudice of the great unknown Christian land which lies behind New York. That is the word, and as long as he retains his Hebrew rights and religious consciousness, no money is wasted on wine or tobacco, nothing in the frivolity of the theater or dance hall.

The danger to the country from the East Side is not that from a nest of crime and vice. The danger is too rapid Americanization of these people. I mean Americanization of the wrong type. Go to a great play center in a public school and you will see that every boy and girl who has been in the country one year would die for the flag and all are extremely fond of playing that they are doing so. But the tendency is that the contact with the wrong type of American may produce a type of Jew which is extremely boorish and admittedly vulgar. It is this type which has broken too rapidly from the rigor of their old faith and the strict confinement of the "Russian pale" that reacts into the radical anarchist and socialists—which ever way their radicalism leads them.

The congestion of the East Side is an acknowledged fact, several of the districts being the most densely populated in the world. Yet this fact is more easily explained when we know the history of the Jewish Ghetto which have formed part of the history of every great city of Europe and have become a tradition among these people. No matter what the wealth of the first generation of Russian Jews in this country, it is well impossible to get them to break with their friends and traditions and to leave the congested districts to go elsewhere. The advertising of the needs of the South and West in regard to immigration will do much to deflect the current of immigration which is yearly pouring into the district and will tend more rapidly to draw out the younger generation to the more productive fields. I know boys to-day who are longing to go to the South and I know Southern communities where the rich Southern Jew would welcome them and train them to a higher citizenship. It is just this work that the great Jewish institutions like the Educational Alliance are concentrating their energy and wealth upon. The reduction in the pressure upon the district from incoming immigration, and thus the demand for rooms, will tend to reduce rent and increase the demand for better tenements.

The whole problem of the East Side may be solved by a study of the immigration problem joined with the educational lines above suggested, and will never be solved by cursing the place as a "slum" or by swinging the red flag. (Copyright, 1908, by Charles and The Commons.)

SURPLICE BLOUSE.

Good Form--and Mother

GOOD form and Mother! I can almost hear some flippant young persons laugh at the phrase. The very idea of having special rules of etiquette in dealing with mother! Why, Mother does not mind! Be not deceived. Mother does mind--and sometimes, like the proverbial worm, she turns. And that is why I am writing this little talk on the rights of Mother in her own house, at the hands of her own children. But first, some anecdotes to justify the talk!

A young woman was entertaining a dozen or more guests. One group surrounded the piano, with its litter of latest songs. Four young people were playing cards in another corner. A bowl of fruit punch was on tap. Beyond sight in the pantry were plates heaped with sandwiches, dainty cakes, salted almonds, and home-made candies--made by Mother.

"Where is your mother?" asked a sweet-faced girl of her fluttering hostess. "I hope she is not suffering from our common enemy, the grip?"

"Yes--yes," answered the girl hastily. "She has had a touch of it."

She did not dare say to her thoughtful young friend that mother was probably sleeping the sleep of exhaustion, not unmixed with bitterness, due to overwork in preparing the refreshments, and then being told by her daughter that as only young people were coming there was no need of her putting in appearance.

Another picture, in another parlor! A young girl, flushed with the triumphs of suddenly acquired belleism, entertaining all at once three very nice young men. It is Sunday afternoon quite late, and she hates to lose her sense of power. So she asks them all to stay to tea--and how mother works! No one was expected for tea, so she sends one son to the delicatessen shop for bread and salad, gets another to open jelly and pickles, beats up hot biscuits and finally waits upon the unexpected supper circle with cheeks flushed, hair somewhat a wavy and wrath in her soul for the broken day of rest.

You call this selfishness of youth, but it is more than that--the height of ill-breeding.

In the first instance, the mother should have received the guests with her daughter, and the daughter should have helped to get the refreshments out of the way in time for mother to dress for a proper appearance before guests. The mother need not remain in the room during the entire evening, but common courtesy gives her the right to meet her daughter's guests.

In the second case, the daughter should have slipped quietly from the room and asked the mother whether it was convenient to entertain three young men for tea--and then it was the mother's privilege, not the daughter's, to extend the invitation.

When a young man calls for the first time at your home, dear girl, introduce him to your mother. Insist that she come into the parlor or library for a few minutes and meet the stranger within her gates. The young man will respect the more for this bit of formality.

When you are at a dance or evening party or tea and your mother is among the loungers or wall-flowers, do not studiously avoid her, as if you were ashamed of her or she had cause to be ashamed of you. Introduce your partner to her when the dance is over, see that she is served with tea by one of your men friends if you are at a school or college function, and make the men whom you meet understand that you are not a girl without chaperonage or family pride, but that you have parents whom you are proud to have him know,

Seen In the Shops

THE newest silk petticoats are shown having a lingerie flounce.

The lingerie hats for children's wear are the daintiest things in the shops.

For the young girls sashes and hair ribbons to match come in Roman stripes.

For the blue is a smart handbag of a soft leather in the new Copenhagen blue.

White linen crash, with a colored stripe border, is one of the practical things among lines.

White cotton embroidered material for making shirt waists may be had from 25 cents up.

The scarabaeus, ancient Egypt's royal insect, now finds favor for hatpins, rings, scarfpins and even for bracelets.

The new sailor hat has a broad, flat brim and low crown, and is practically the same thing that was worn five years ago.

A charming corset cover is of French cut with each seam outlined with fine Valenciennes insertion. The top and belt are finished with lace and beading.

Nothing is smarter for wear with a wide-brimmed hat than a close white mesh veil, with tiny black dots. This veiling may be purchased for 50 cents a yard.

Gloves for the spring are rather mannish in effect. The close-fitting, dainty-looking glove of fine kid is not worn except for very dressy occasions. Chamois gloves will be in the lead for summer wear.

Hot water flasks are made in copper in artistic designs to match chafing dishes and coffee percolators. They are great conveniences for the woman who likes to indulge in either form of table cookery. (Chicago News.)

Right and Wrong Ways Of Dressing the Neck.

THE woman with a short neck and double chin is daily confronted with the problem of dressing her neck in a becoming fashion. She looks at her thin sisters decked in fluffy lace ruffs, or high linen collars, and yearns for such frivolities. But believe me, they are for the thin woman only.

The tailored shirtwaist has reappeared this season, bringing with it the demand for starched linen collars. The short-necked woman must wear a very low, narrow collar, else her double chin will be pushed forward and made to look twice its natural size. Even in large cities it is sometimes difficult to find low linen collars, but if you persist you will find them. These collars should be of a comfortable size, for a tight collar always makes the face red.

In selecting a bow to wear with these tailored collars, look at the broad ones and admire them, if you will, but buy the one that is long and narrow.

A very grave mistake that elderly women are prone to make is wearing black dresses with nothing white about the neck. If she be 50, a woman is not too old to wear white about the throat. It lends to the sallow skin a softer glow than the dull black of her dress.

In warm weather the elderly woman with a short neck will be wise to turn in the collar of her dress, and wear a piece of soft net about her throat, pinned down with a fancy brooch. This is a very pretty fashion. On her black church dresses she will have a standing collar of material like the blouse she wears, and always, without exception, wearing the deepest mourning, wear these turnover collars of white.

A little trick of dressmaking was told me the other day by a fashionable modiste. When a woman has a very short neck, she must have the neck of the blouse cut rather low and let the collar down on it, thus giving the wearer the appearance of having a much higher neck than she really has. If the matronly woman is going to invest in a feather boa, she must get a flat one, not round. Marabout is better

SKIRT AND SIMPLE BLOUSE TRIMMED WITH STITCHED BIAS FOLDS.

IF PERPLEXED IN MATTERS OF DRESS, BEAUTY OR ETIQUETTE, write to Miss Dean, Miss Morton or Miss Standish, care of the Courier-Journal, inclosing a self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply. This is a quicker method than having your question answered in the columns of the paper. Besides, you receive a personal, intimate answer. Be careful to address your return envelope accurately. Letters come back to us every day, stamped "insufficient address" or "party cannot be found."

less trying than the straight or scalloped effect, and three graduated folds, or bands, of trimming close to the foot of the skirt, are less trying than either a broad, solid band or trimming which is arranged to run almost to the knees.

The princess gown made from soft, clinging material is much better for the matronly figure than the two-piece dress with the connecting girle. In fact, the princess, with the suggestion of a short waist line or Empire skirt in the back, is a real boon to the stout woman, provided she does not make it skin-tight. A princess frock laid in fine tucks over a chemise of lace or net is far better for the matronly figure than one absolutely tight-fitting. In heavier fabric, however, carefully it may be tailored and fitted.

The newest cut for the princess frocks shows a very deep yoke, or chemise, sometimes coming well below the bust line and outlined by folds, piping or embroidered bands. The lines are absolutely square and the opening as seen from the distance is an oblong, a trifle more narrow at the bottom, of course, than across the shoulders. Sometimes the chemise or deep yoke is made from the plain lace or net, sometimes it is strapped with the cloth or silk used for the princess gown or with ribbon velvet in precisely the same shade.

A word as to coats. The matron woman will find that a Louis or cut-away coat, finished with deep points, is excellent for her use. The newest coats have only one or two buttons, an excellent feature for warm weather.

Some excellent modes for matrons are shown in this connection. One of the smartest is the princess skirt with double-breasted Empire jacket. The skirt has a shaped waist, and the front and is cut in seven "cores." The panel is finished with buttons to follow the line of the Empire jacket, which is double-breasted. This can be worn with a blouse of net or lace dyed to match the cloth or in cream or ecru with strappings of the cloth or silk used in the gown.

A pretty blouse model is the surplice design showing an economical way to utilize a short pattern in silk. This is really an overblouse or jumper, but combined with a matching skirt, in some soft silk, piped with another shade of the same color or velvet ribbon, over a guimpe of net lace, it would make a most effective house frock.

The house gown in gray messaline, banded with darker gray silk and braid, shows one of the most desirable uses of the plaited skirt; also the deep chemise effect referred to in another paragraph. The fourth illustration shows a skirt and simple blouse designed for trimming of stitched bias bands. These are used in self-tone and material on the skirt; the height of the wearer will not be cut off, while the oval finish of the blouse is extremely good for the woman with a tendency to a double chin.

Some Dainty Dishes for the Woman Who Entertains

THE hostess who likes to food for her table to look well as well as taste good, says a writer in the Washington Times, should try this sauce for vanilla ice cream instead of hot chocolate dressing. Prepare half a dozen oranges by cutting them in half and removing the cores. The seedless California ones are best. See that every bit of skin is removed.

Boil seven or eight minutes a half pound of sugar and a quarter of a cup of hot water. Do not stir it or it will sugar.

Dip the oranges in the hot syrup, let them stay a minute or two, then put on a platter and pour the remaining syrup over them to cool.

If you have a ring mold, freeze the vanilla cream in it, pile up the hollow with the oranges and pour the syrup over both. If not, serve the ice cream on a round platter and heap up the oranges around the base.

It is better to select the medium sized or small oranges, or they can be divided into sections cut across the whole orange with the heart removed. Some of the juice is apt to be lost by this latter method.

When the preserves get very low at the end of the winter and are tired of apples, delicious pies and shortcakes can be made with dried peaches and apricots.

Dried peach pie should be made with care, else it is bitter. Soak the peaches and stew gently. Throw away the water first used if it seems bitter, for both peaches and apricots are improved and made more delicate by the seeming waste. Add the liquid to the sugar, if you have one.

After the peaches are boiled and softened, add sugar and a little from the butter or some cream, about a half cupful for two medium-sized pies. A little lemon rind is good in dried peach pie. Canned apricots and peaches combined make nice pies, and plain canned apricots make a delicious tart. They may be used also for tarts in winter.

On these use whipped cream and garnish with crystallized cherries. If at all unripe stew the apricots as if they were fresh fruit. Serve with fancy crackers or cakes.

GREY MESSALINE WITH BANDS AND BRAID.

Fair--Not Fat--at Forty

FRANKLY, nothing irritates me more quickly than to hear some woman who is nearing or may have passed the fortieth milestone pronounced "vain" for trying to improve or conserve her good looks.

The critic who passes such judgment is, first of all, behind the times. This is the age of the young-old woman, not the calico maid, and it is every woman's duty to approach her fortieth birthday with a smile, not a frown.

What is more, she owes it to her family as well as herself to do everything possible to make herself more attractive. This is not vanity, but common sense, for the woman who has said farewell to all hopes of beauty is never an agreeable person to live with. Her entire attitude is colored with bitterness.

The most important factors in retaining an appearance of youthfulness are the preservation of the figure and the care of the complexion. Quite frequently there is a common remedy for defects of figure and face. For instance, hot water and lemon juice, invaluable for reducing too, too evident hips and abdomen, are prime complexion aids, stirring the torpid liver and thereby clearing the skin.

The average woman who through stress of domestic duties or indolence has covered the youthful lines of a once good figure with fat, imagines that she must enter upon some desperately involved system of reduction. This is a grievous error. I know the one woman who devoted but one hour in the twenty-four to intelligent, persistent reduction work, and lost thirty pounds in three months, ten pounds a month. But bear this in mind--she did not notice any great change at first, and yet she never wavered from her daily exercises and diet.

Here are the three exercises she used, all of which aimed to reduce the hips and the abdomen and waist line:

A--Life flat on the floor. shoulders, spine, calves of legs and heels touching the floor, the hands clasped behind the head at the base of the brain. Relax, that is, become perfectly easy and restful. Then, inhaling through the nose with your mouth closed, raise the right leg four times slowly, each time forcing a right angle with the body. Exhale, resting, and then raise the left leg four times while inhaling. Rest, exhaling, and alternate the two legs, right and left, eight times, inhaling. Exhale, rest and repeat the entire exercise. This sounds and is extremely simple, but when you can do the exercise say twenty or twenty-five times, rapidly, with accurately timed inhalations and exhalations, you will have secured some of your old-time elasticity and the heavy hips will begin to go down.

B--Stand erect, heels together, toes out, chest high, abdomen in, chin on a line with the body. Inhale deeply on four counts and raise your hands above your head, palms forward, arms the width of the chest apart. Now exhale, forcibly, swing forward from the waist, keeping the arms stiff and bending as far as possible. At first your hands will not touch the floor or come within six inches of it, but when you have become accustomed to the exercise, you will be able to touch the floor, and then rest assured your waist will be longer, its measurement smaller and your abdomen greatly reduced.

C--For this exercise you will need a bath-towel at least a yard long. Lie flat on the floor, face downward, with the towel stretched as far as possible over your head. Now, inhaling deeply, fling the towel backward until it catches around the ankles. This forces the body to form a sort of cradle with the trunk and particularly the abdomen as the single rocker. Then, rock from side to side at least ten times, inhaling and exhaling regularly. The more deeply you draw your breath, the more good the exercise will do you. If possible take this exercise on a bare floor.

Timely Recipes

Italian Cakes--Half a cup of butter, warmed but not melted, and the same quantity of sugar, beaten to a cream. Add one egg, beaten, and mix thoroughly. Add four eggs, whites and yolks. At the last beat in very hard half a cup of pastry flour. Pour this mixture into the depth of half an inch in a shallow buttered tin and bake in a moderately quick oven for ten or fifteen minutes. Turn upside down to cool; spread thickly with a firm jam or jelly, preferably strawberry or raspberry, and then overlay this with custard or icing. When firm, cut into odd shapes, squares, discs, diamonds, triangles, etc.

Maple Ice Cream--Bring 3 pints of milk to a scald in a double boiler. Add slowly the well-beaten yolks of 5 eggs with 1 cup of sugar. Do not allow this to curdle. Heat slowly to a boil, stirring constantly. Add 1 pint of real maple sugar, which has been boiled with a little water until it candies when dropped into cold water. Add this to the custard and stand away to cool. When ready to freeze, add a pint of sweet cream whipped stiff, the beaten whites of the five eggs and some finely ground or chopped nuts.

Salad Sandwiches--Fit and chop a dozen large green olives; measure, add an equal amount of finely chopped nuts and the same of finely chopped celery. Mix with mayonnaise dressing to the consistency of mush and spread on thinly cut, lightly buttered white bread.

Bean Sandwiches--These are excellent if men are counted among the list of guests. Press cold baked beans through a vegetable press or fine colander, allow 2 tablespoons of finely minced celery, 2 tablespoons of horseradish, a dash of catsup, lemon juice and made mustard. Cut Boston brown bread into thin slices; spread with the above mixture and serve with mixed pickles.

Iced Coffee--Make two quarts of strong, black coffee, sweetened to taste. Put this liquid into a pitcher that can be literally packed in ice so that the coffee will be ice cold when ready to serve. Strain into small glasses with a heaping tablespoon of vanilla ice cream on top. If ice cream is not procurable, use a generous amount of cold-whipped cream. Ice cream is preferable, however.

Nut Kisses--Take the whites only of four eggs and beat to a stiff froth, add gradually one pound of granulated sugar, beating constantly. Then add one cup of nut meats chopped very fine (any nuts will do, such as hickory, walnut, peanuts or butternuts). Drop from a teaspoon into little round cakes on a piece of buttered brown paper in a baking pan. Bake for fifteen minutes in a moderate oven.

Lemon Snaps--One cup of butter and two of sugar beaten to a foamy cream. Add to this two eggs and the grated rind of one large lemon with its juice. A scant teaspoon of soda dissolved in two tablespoons of sweet milk. Knead very stiff with flour, roll out very thin, cut out in shapes with tin cutter and bake in quick oven.

FREEDOM FOR
CALEB POWERSBelieved Governor Will Issue
Pardon Soon.Howard Also To Be Released,
Says Report.Gov. Willson Hard At Work
Studying Record.

DECISION EXPECTED TUESDAY.

Frankfort, Ky., May 2.—(Special.)—Gov. Willson will take action in the matter of pardons for James Howard and Caleb Powers by the middle of next week, and there is a strong tip out here that he will grant full and free pardons to both of them. It is definitely known that a decision will be made probably on Monday or Tuesday, and it is said here to-day that the Governor has made up his mind to pardon both men.

The Governor has been studying the record in the two cases for the last few days, devoting almost his entire time to the cases. He has not received any visitors except those it was absolutely necessary to see, as he wanted to get through with the cases as quickly as possible. The record in each case is a long one, but the Governor has gone through them both rapidly, working much at night, and he has about completed the evidence so that he is almost ready to act. The Governor conducted a hearing several weeks ago, at which arguments for and against the pardon of Powers and Howard were heard. This hearing was public and was one of the most interesting spectacles seen here, especially when Arthur Goebel, a brother of the murdered man, appeared and made a plea against the pardon of the men who he believes are guilty of the murder of his brother.

Expect Pardons.

Frankfort men who are close to the Governor expect him to pardon Powers and Howard. Several prominent Republicans here said to-day that they thought the Governor would issue pardons. They are pleased that the decision will come soon, and but little else than pardons is expected by Frankfort people generally. The Governor has told no one, directly, what action he would take, if he has made up his mind, but it is said that the trend of his conversation has shown that he will grant the pardons.

Mrs. James Howard, the wife of the man now serving a life sentence in the penitentiary, was here this week to see the Governor, but failed to see him. She came to Frankfort to try to bring pressure which would induce the Governor to issue the pardons. Petitions from many States have also been sent to the Governor, urging that he issue the pardons, but it is said that he is relying entirely on the record, and if he believes from that record that the men should be pardoned then he will grant the pardons without reference to the wishes of the people.

Declines Invitation.

A delegation from the Ohio Bar Association telegraphed to-day asking the Governor to issue an invitation to-morrow to issue to him an invitation to address the association at its annual meeting, which will be held here the part of July at Put-in-Bay. The Governor wired the committee that he would not be able to go to their meeting, and it is probable that the delegation from Ohio will not come to Frankfort to-morrow as they had expected. Gov. Willson is going to Washington about May 11 for the conference of Governors, which has been called by the President, and he has received many invitations to special entertainments which will be given during the conference. Washington will entertain the Governors elaborately, and Gov. Willson has been sent invitations to all of the affairs.

Cited For Contempt.

In the Circuit Court to-day Judge Robert Stout cited the Indiana Oil Refining Company, of Georgetown, to appear before him and show cause why it should not be punished for contempt. The hearing was set for September 9. A motion was made to-day for a new trial in the case in which the company was fined $100 for obstructing the charging the pollution of Elkhor creek. The ground for the motion was that one of the jurors went to Georgetown during the trial, and one of the trial jurors went along. This was the ground on which a new trial was asked. An affidavit was filed that he went at the instance of the company. Judge Stout, instead of granting the motion for a new trial, delivered a roast of the company, and said the present laws were not adequate to punish the company for running such an excursion during a trial of a case in which they were interested. He cited the company to answer for contempt.

Tobacco Bed Scraped.

Reports have been received at the Adjutant General's office showing that probably the only tobacco bed in Franklin county was scraped the other night, and as a warning the bed was left in a novel shape. The bed was rounded up in the shape of a grave, one end of the grave was a carriage box, with loose cartridges on top of it. At the other end was a box with loose matches on top of it. The name of the man is withheld, and every effort is being made to find out who are the guilty persons.

Judge Holt Complimented.

Munfordville, Ky., May 2.—(Special.)—The spring term of the Circuit Court was adjourned this morning after a busy session. Judge W. H. Holt, of Pewee Valley, held the court on account of the absence of the regular Judge, S. E. Jones, of Glasgow, who was detained at home on account of the illness in his family. Judge Holt pleased both lawyers and laymen. After the court was adjourned the bar held a meeting and adopted resolutions thanking the Judge for his fairness and impartiality, and paid a high tribute to his ability.

HEADQUARTERS IN CHICAGO

To Be Opened May 11 By Republican National Committee.

Washington, May 2.—Headquarters of the Republican National Committee will be opened in Chicago on Monday, May 11. Offices of the chairman, Harry S. New, Secretary Elmer Dyer and Sergeant-at-Arms W. S. Stone will be established in the Coliseum, where the convention will be held. The Washington headquarters of the committee will be closed temporarily one week from to-day. The Chicago New will arrive in Washington to-morrow evening to take up with Secretary Dyer some details of the committee's work. It has not been determined how much time will have to be devoted by the committee to the hearing of contests. Ordinarily it is the committee's practice to accord fifteen minutes to each side in a district contest and to give fifteen minutes to a contestant in a case. That means, approximately, that one hour is devoted to each district contest. To contests on delegates at large two hours usually are given by the committee. Thus far, curiously enough, the committee has received official notification from the Chicago Convention to-morrow, until May 26 to file notices with the committee, and it is known that a good many contests will be brought before the committee by that time. It is expected by the officials of the committee that nine or ten days will be consumed in the hearing of contests.

HEARST PARTY MEETS.

Ovation For Publisher In State Convention In New York.

New York, May 2.—Delegates to the National Convention of the Independence party met to-night at Carnegie Hall and selected four delegates at large and their alternates to the National Convention of the Independence party, to be held in Chicago some time in July. There were no contests and the proceedings of the convention, which was not called to order until 9 o'clock to-night, were entirely uneventful and without enthusiasm. William Randolph Hearst, who was elected permanent chairman of the convention, in a speech declared against any further fusion with either the Republican or Democratic parties. Mr. Hearst was accorded a great ovation by the delegates and hundreds of spectators who filled the boxes and galleries to overflowing. The platform adopted by the convention was a reaffirmation of the declaration of principles promulgated at the National conference of the party, held in New York last February. The platform instructed the delegates to the Chicago convention to nominate a ticket of independent candidates, who were to be elected by the party. The delegates-at-large unanimously selected by the convention to attend the Chicago convention were William R. Hearst of New York, Henry C. Powell, of Brooklyn, C. H. W. Auel, of Buffalo, and Reuben Lyon, of Bath. An elector-at-large chosen by the convention were Arthur Brisbane, of New York, and Alfred J. Boulton, of Kings county.

PLANS TO WHIP NEGROES.

Cadiz, Ky., May 2.—(Special.)—After an examining trial to-day in the County Court, Judge Bingham held the twelve men accused to bonding together to drive negroes away from Center Furnace, under bond of $500 each to answer to the grand jury, which meets here the third Monday in May. The accused men are James Ackley, James Hoston, Ebb Woods, Willie Sherbert, Rouse Forsythe, Henry Forsythe, Mode Ehridge, James Aldridge, John Aldridge, Ben Wood, James Oakley and Wick Meredith. All gave bond and were released.

Walter Goodwin, who swore out the warrants, was the principal witness for the prosecution. He said that about five weeks ago five of the defendants induced him to meet with them in a field at night when they discussed the whipping of Zeb Miller, a negro. A few nights later he attended another meeting when nine of the defendants were present, he said, and a long discussion was held about whipping three negroes and a white man. He said one of the men at the meeting said: "It is true for our bosses to learn their places."

The witness said the men referred to were J. B. White and G. W. Dixon, of Center Furnace, and L. W. Laton, of the Hillman Land & Iron Company. Later, some of the men, Goodwin said, put on masks and went to the home of a farmer named Wilson and fired several shots. The other witnesses for the State told little that was material.

SUE INSURANCE COMPANIES.

Refused To Pay On Property Destroyed In Raid.

Hopkinsville, Ky., May 2.—(Special.)—Suits aggregating between $8,000 and $10,000 were filed here to-day in which the prayer is that the insurance companies named as defendants shall be made to pay the amount of the policies which were alleged to have been in force on the tobacco stored in the Tandy and Fairleigh warehouses when they were destroyed by "high riders" on the morning of December 1, 1907. The plaintiffs are W. G. Dunnigton & Co. and others, and the companies are the Atlas Assurance Company of London; the Royal of Liverpool; the German-American of New York; the American Central of St. Louis; the Hamburg-Bremen of Hamburg; the Firemen's Fund of San Francisco, and the Hanover Fire Insurance Company of New York. Settlement has been refused on the policies carried with these companies on the ground that the riot clause protected the companies against loss occasioned by mobs. Two other companies which carried risks on this tobacco have not been named. The contention that the riot clause loses its force in this case, as the tobacco was destroyed entirely by fire and not by the mob, is being urged.

Party of State Militiamen Arrive At Sharpsburg.

Sharpsburg, Ky., May 2.—A squad of Gov. Willson's soldiers have paid this town a visit. They were accompanied by Charles Wilson, Jailer of Montgomery county, and seemed to be under his orders. These men were a part of the Pineville company that arrived at Mt. Sterling this week. They came from Bath, and their business in this section, or why they were patrolling the county, has not been explained. There has been no disturbance here from the county authorities for soldiers, and much indignation was expressed at the troops being here. County Judge J. W. Lane demanded the reason for their presence in this county, but the commanding officer refused to give any information. They also visited Owingsville, Carlisle, Little Rock and Jackson.

FIRST SQUADRON

LEAVES MONTEREY TO CAST ANCHOR AT SANTA CRUZ

Battle Missouri Makes a Fine Record On the Journey From Santa Barbara.

Monterey, Cal., May 2.—The Atlantic fleet was split in two today in order that the celebration of its stay in Monterey might be carried forward simultaneously in this city and in Santa Cruz, twenty miles away. The first squadron, including the Connecticut, Kansas, Vermont, Louisiana, Georgia, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Virginia, lifted anchor soon after dawn and sailed away to Vera Cruz. The eight vessels of the second squadron will remain here until Monday afternoon, when they also will go to Santa Cruz, to stop for twenty-four hours and make the fleet once more complete. Today has been rather a quiet but enjoyable one for the men and officers of the second squadron, for the former there were boxing bouts, baseball games and other amusements. Large liberty parties came ashore and enjoyed roaming about the streets of the quaint old town.

Tonight a naval and military ball, given at the Delmonico by the management of the hotel, was attended by most of the naval officers here and by a large party of army officers from the Presidio at Monterey.

The engineer officers on the battleship Missouri are proud of the record made by that ship in the long run from Santa Barbara to Monterey. The Missouri blew out the high pressure cylinder head of her port triple expansion engine on the way to Santa Barbara from Los Angeles, and it was feared she might not be able to accompany the fleet as far as San Francisco. But with her engines compounded and the crippled cylinders entirely cut out she made eleven knots without difficulty and participated in the maneuvers off Port Harford in perfect alignment.

CATHOLIC LAYMEN IN GREAT PARADE

SIXTY THOUSAND FAITHFUL MARCH THROUGH FIFTH AVENUE

New York, May 2.—Sixty thousand Roman Catholic laymen marching in procession today brought to a climax and formally ended the week-long celebration of the centenary of the founding of the Roman Catholic diocese of New York. No more perfect day could have favored the parade. The sky was almost cloudless, the air clear and breezy.

Along Fifth avenue and through Fifty-seventh street, where the line of march led to the disbanding point, hundreds of thousands of persons were massed and the immense reviewing stand, which had been erected in front of the cathedral, made a picture the like of which was seldom seen.

It had been built to accommodate 2,500 persons and its whole capacity was placed at the disposal of women and children, and the distinguished prelates who have been participating in the observance of the centenary. The prelates in their gorgeous robes occupied a space in the center of the stand, and barked around on them on every side were the thousands of women and children.

Of all the 60,000 who took part in the parade every man save one was on foot. The mounted men were Dr. Gen. Thomas Barry, the grand marshal, behind him trudged the thousands, millionaires and laborer. In the van was a delegation from the Catholic Club, among them Thomas F. Ryan, Thomas A. Kemmer, Justice John W. Coffey, Justice Davis and Justice O'Gorman, of the Supreme Court, Bourke Cockran, Eugene Phillips, John D. Grimmin, David McClure and many other men prominent in the city's life.

Many of the large stores and other business places conducted by Catholics had declared a half holiday for today, so that their employees might have an opportunity to take part in the parade. To join with the other thousands who crowded the streets to review the marching.

The parade formed at Washington Square, well down toward the lower end of the city and moved up Fifth avenue past the cathedral and to Fifty-seventh street, where it was dispersed. The line of march covered a distance of approximately three miles.

BROKERS INDICTED AT CINCINNATI

THIRTY-FOUR CHARGED WITH OPERATION OF "BUCKET SHOPS."

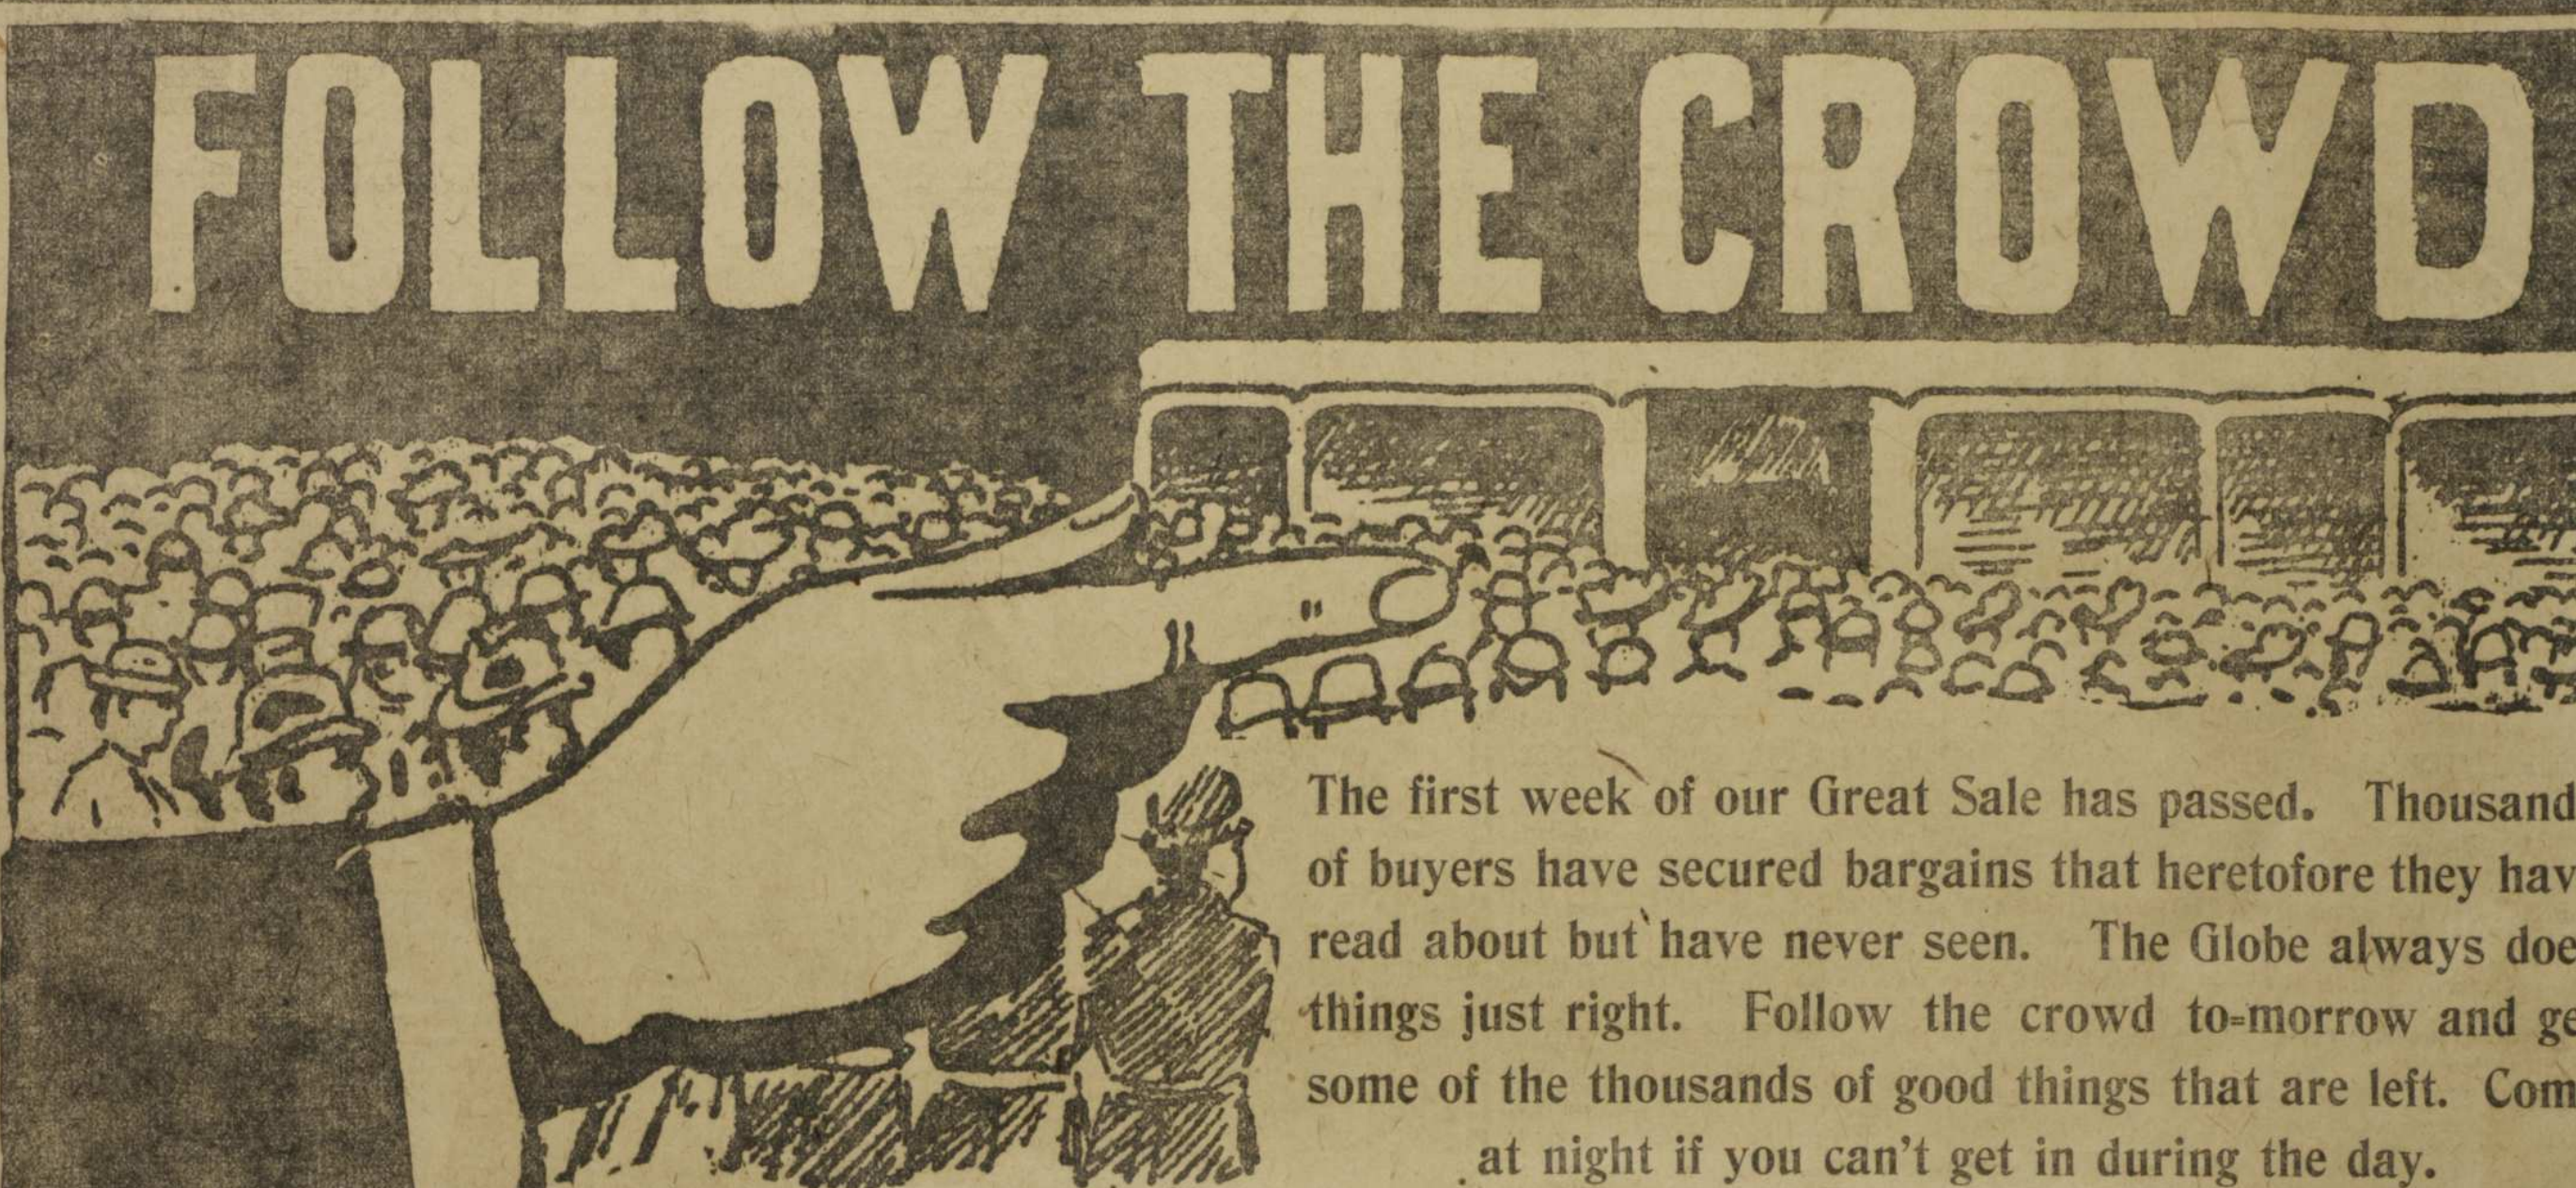

Cincinnati, May 2.—Thirty-four indictments were returned by the grand jury today against well-known Cincinnati brokers participating in the operation of bucket shops. These indictments follow an investigation made by two grand juries on the initiative of County Prosecutor Hiram H. Rullison. The full list of those against whom indictments were returned follows:

"If there is any alleged bucket shop man named in this grand jury list it is because my legal search failed to find him," County Prosecutor Rullison thus summed up the status of his investigation into alleged illegal brokerage in Cincinnati at its conclusion, in concrete form of indictments against as many individual operators as could be identified. The grand jury also returned indictments of officers held under the testimony adduced before the grand jury to be maintaining and a forfeiture of the charter of any corporation so offending.

FIELD OF THIRTEEN MAY START IN THE DERBY

Uncertainty Characterizes Kentucky Classic, Which Adds Interest To Big Race.

COYNE THINKS SIR CLEGES WILL BREEZE HOME

Alvey Confident Dr. Mathews Will Finish In Front.

MILFORD RULES AS FAVORITE.

Fast Track Is In Prospect and a Royal Contest Is Assured.

TURF TALK ON ALL SIDES.

THIRTEEN horses are likely to start in the thirty-fourth Kentucky Derby, which is to be decided next Tuesday at Churchill Downs.

This was the way the sharpshooters figured it last night. If this number is sent to the post it will be the largest field that has competed for this rich prize. That Sir Cleges, from the stable of George J. Long, will go is assured, and it seems equally certain that Balbus will start. Trainer Coyne says Sir Cleges will win because he has the class. Balbus will be the maker for him.

W. H. Pizer's Milford and E. T. Shipp will start, and that Pizer expects to finish first with Milford is his one best bet for the opening day of the spring race meeting.

Edward Alvey's confidence in Dr. Mathews' ability to win the trophy is absolute. Barney Dreyfuss, the Pittsburgh ball magnate and owner of Bill Herron, is coming to see his colt run. L. B. Fitzgerald says he will start Western Knight, which did not go to the post as a 2-year-old. There is no public form on this one.

But Fitzgerald, who owns Sorrel Top and several others, is not going to pay a final fee of $100 to start if he thought he had no chance to finish in the money. Regarding Sir Cleges, who is a 2-year-old, he stepped three-quarters in fast time, but he has shown no inclination to go a mile. Frank Bird and Glendear have been doing sensational trials at Baltimore and yesterday they were sent to the track to finish second to Park View. Charley Kerner rode the winner, which ruled in the betting at 1 to 10. Glendear, ridden by Steele, was 10 to 1.

Steele is a son of A. D. Steele, owner of Glendear, and he will ride him in the Derby. W. A. Kirwan said last night that if Glendear was able to stand he would go. Schreiber has wired that he wants his colt to go to the post if it is possible for him to do so. The Dutchman is doing this because he thinks his colors may be brought right under the wire and because he thinks the Kentucky Derby is one of the most notable turf events in America.

He has always said that he would like to see the Kentucky Derby. Simon Weil, owner of Sidney Lane, is a man of means and a weight-carrier and he is in condition. He is credited with being the ugliest thoroughbred in Kentucky, but he is running at Lexington, but his trainer, W. J. Young, is not willing to concede that the colt would Derby class.

Every year since 1875, in the month of May, a thoroughbred is crowned a Derby winner at Churchill Downs, the oldest race track in America, in point of continuous existence. Just so often does the blood of every Kentuckian tingle in anticipation of this blue ribbon event, and right now folk of all classes, creeds and descriptions are deeply absorbed in the result, for the thirty-fourth renewal of the classic is at hand. Next Tuesday is Derby day.

And Derby day in the land of fleet horses is more than an incident. Time was when the field was free and the populace journeyed to the course on foot and in every conceivable style of conveyance to see "horses that were horses from muzzle to heel." But the gates were closed, and black and white, young and old, little and big, were asked to flash credentials to the gatekeepers. It made no difference. The public kept right on coming and the public will be there May 5—the beauty, chivalry and all that goes with an equal footing, all trying to pick the winner, all in their best bib and tucker.

When those of a speculative tendency dig into their pockets to render themselves eligible to back their faith they will find themselves carried back to that day when a Kentucky-bred horse, a Proctor Knott, bowed to the supremacy of an opponent that came from the Far West, Spokane. That was in 1868, the year when the pari-mutuels ceased to exist in the West and in America. The bookmaker established himself that year and he has thrived until scandal has driven him step by step to the outer walls in many States, with Kentucky one of the last to bid him good-bye. Resurrection comes after peace has long been exhausted. The pari-mutuel machines are set in action after they had been forgotten. The purpose of redeeming the betting use of the turf game and making secure its future. If they succeed, success—and there is every reason to believe that they will—Matt J. Winn, vice president and manager of the New Louisville Jockey Club, will have added fresh luster to his career as a level-headed leader of the sport.

The whole turf world—that is, in America—will watch with interest the result of this innovation. The bookmaker's influence on racetracks is not a theory; it is a matter of record and regret, and men of experience who have the welfare of racing at heart say he must become a memory and the pari-mutuel machine must become a fixture.

"Smart ones" say Sir Cleges is going to win the Derby. If this prophecy is verified it will add to the record of George J. Long—a triple victory in the Derby. And if his colt, Sir Cleges, is first under the wire it will be the fourth son of Palesito that has been crowned a winner of the Kentucky classic. Chart was the first of Palesito's get to triumph. That was in 1884. In 1901 His Eminence won and in 1906 Sir Huen captured it. This is a record unsurpassed by any other sire in this country.

Sir Cleges' trials lead to the belief that he will develop into as great a horse as his half-brother, Sir Huen, in a mile and an eighth workout last Wednesday he stepped the distance in 2:30. At the end he was full of run and not taking a short breath. The track was slow and slippery in spots. The trial was made when the wind was sweeping over the Downs and it was raining. The air was raw. A more unfavorable time could not have been selected for the try-out. It proved just what Trainer Coyne had all along contended—that Sir Cleges possessed class and is really a grand piece of machinery.

felt that his son of Palesito was unbeatable in the Derby, and consequently in no danger in any kind of race with other starters. Possibly Jockey Butler, who rode the horse, but it remains to be seen. Milford lacked speed and staying power. Third was the best he could do. Keep moving drawing the race, almost. Maybe, as Pizer says, it was ill-fated. At all events, Milford has many supporters. However, Milford is looked upon as a certain starter in the May race, which Milford did, can go fast enough in the Derby, but this argument will lead individuals who study the various angles to say that if Milford could do no better than show in a mile race in the Derby, with 125 pounds on his back, he will have all kinds of trouble succeeding in the Derby and making any headway with it.

In the meantime Terah's owner feels that if his horse had been left in the Derby, he could have won it handsomely. George C. Bennett, just before selling Terah in New Orleans to Wainwright for $50, declared Terah out of the Derby. Since then the horse has been showing exceptional speed.

Surprises came fast during past week concerning the rise and fall of Derby idols. While Milford was apparently dropping to a lowly position in the public's estimation, Frank Bird, owned by W. A. Hughes, and Glendear, the property of Allen Steele, shot across the racing horizon like dazzling stars. Frank Bird raced a mile and a quarter at Pimlico in 2:28 3/4, and Glendear went the same distance in 2:38. Sir Huen won the Derby in 2:38 4/5, and John E. Madden's daunt won it in 2:38 in 2:38. As the time was 2:38, and Pink Star was first last year in 2:32 3/4, but the track was heavy and hooded.

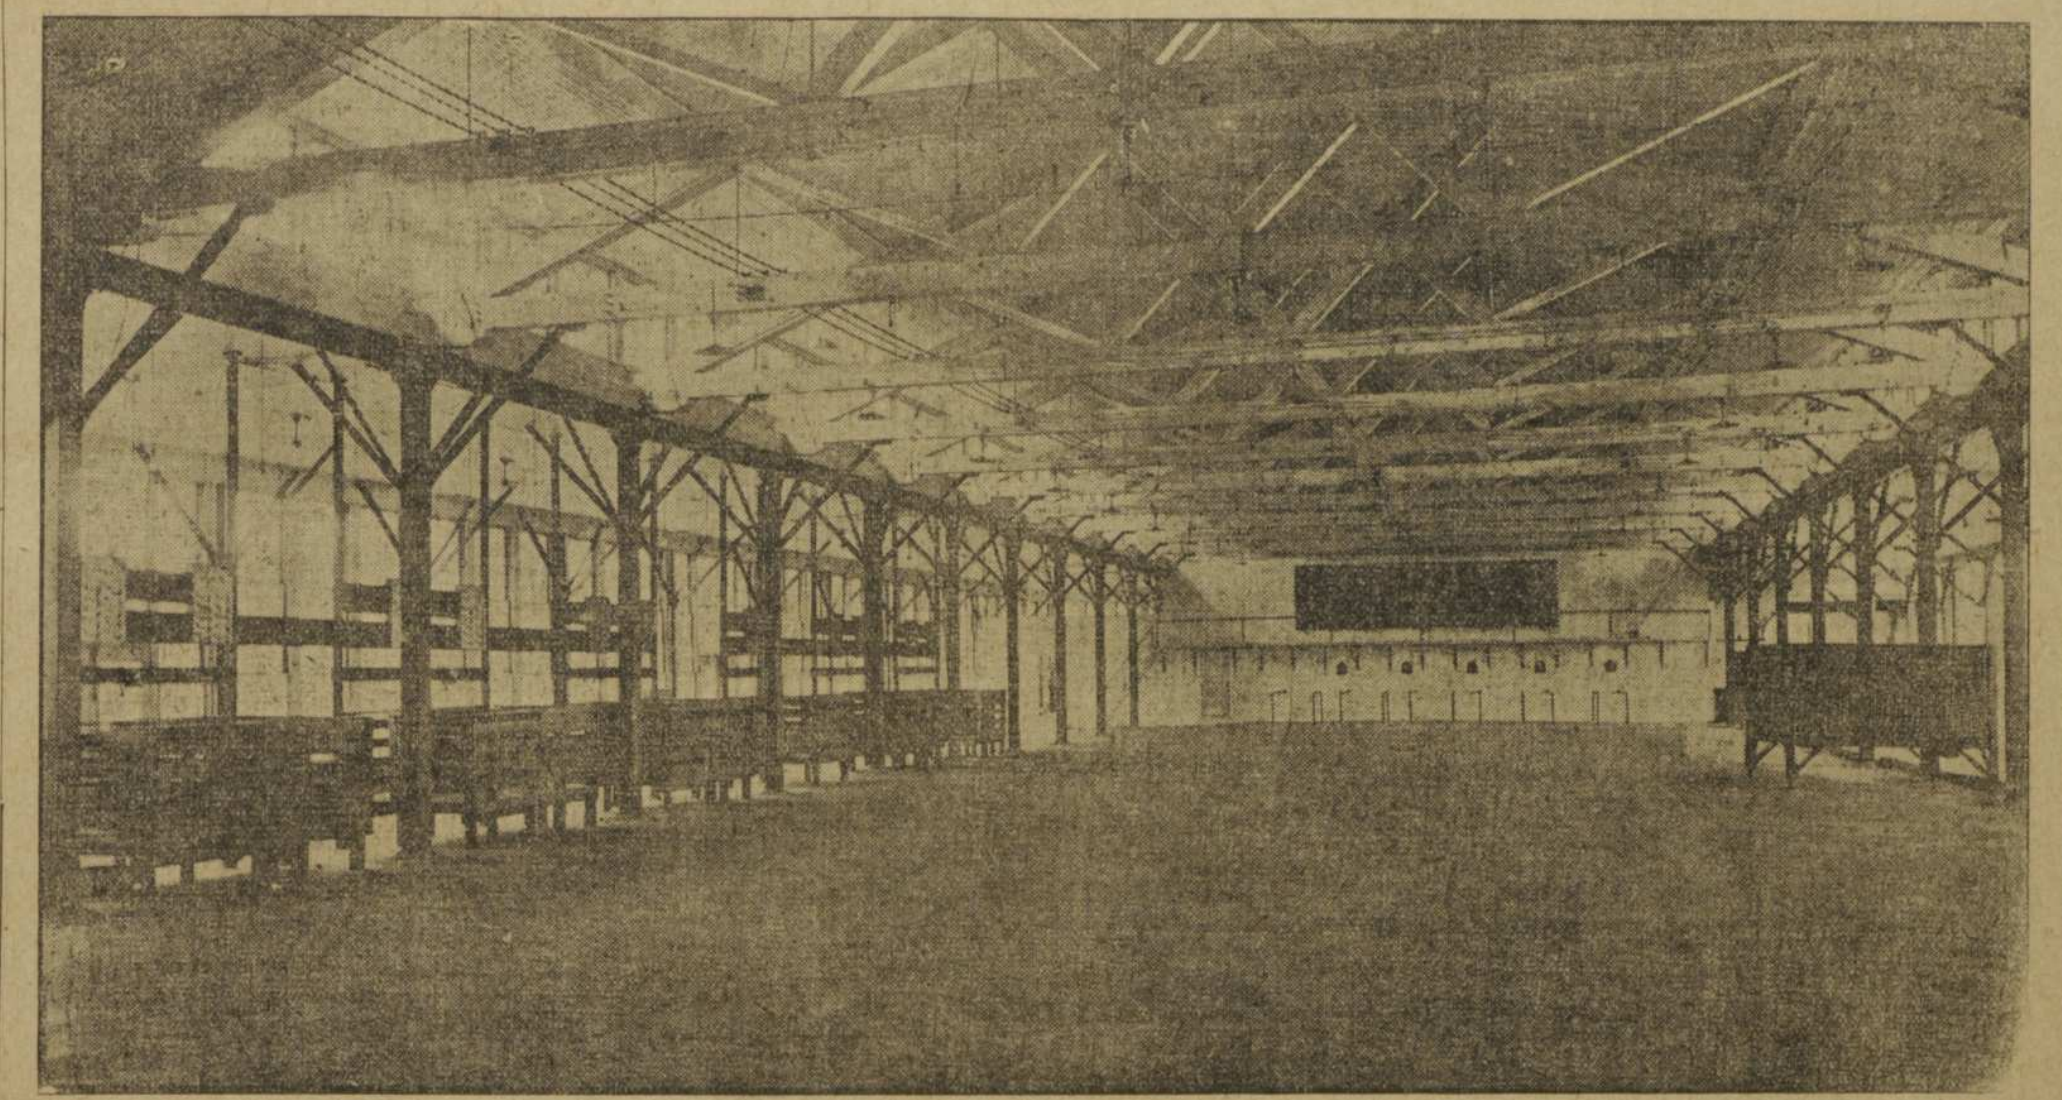

If Frank Bird, which is by Gotham-Masalia, and Glendear, which is a son of Palesito-Son Pose, have class and can repeat their work at Pimlico, they will be dangerous. Frank Bird will arrive at Churchill Downs with a chance. He will be ridden, it is understood, by J. T. McFadden. Glendear will reach the course to race, and he is a probable secret weight. Glendear was bred in New Jersey. Recently he won at Benning and finished second in another race.

Barbidge is coming along fast in his trials. He will go to the post sure if the track is heavy. His owner, Barney Schreiber, has given special instructions regarding his preparation. He feels that Barbidge has a chance. This horse was handled at City Park and Fair Grounds in service as Jack Atkins' pacermaker during the racing season recently closed there, and he kept improving in going a distance. He ran some splendid races with Angelus, Miss Delaney, Darling Dan and others. In the Annapolis race he was beaten only a length and a nose. In the race with Darling Dan, at a mile and seven yards, he was beaten a "check." Darling Dan had a shade of nine pounds in weight. In soft going he is right at home. Barbidge will be knocking at the door when the Derby is run.

Dr. Mathews, Edward Alvey's Derby horse, was worked a mile in 1:43 3/4. The track was slow. This trial was satisfactory, but the owners will make that the horse had pulled up lame. It is probable that the colt will start, and if he does he will be a contender. Alvey is a man of luck, and he does not race his horses in the same way. Grover takes trains for Alvey, and he seems to know how to get horses ready for the races.

Dunvegan, from the stable of J. N. Camden, Jr., and Bill Herron, which belongs to Barney Dreyfuss, the Pittsburgh ball magnate, are no longer "dark" horses. They were uncovered at Lexington, and their trainers were disgusted at the showing each made. If either of them

SCENE OF NEW BETTING RING AT CHURCHILL DOWNS WITH PARI-MUTUEL MACHINES IN POSITION

INTERIOR of betting ring at Churchill Downs, one of the oldest race courses in America and the oldest plant in this country in point of continuous operation. The view shows the pari-mutuel machines on the west side of the ring, eleven in number. This system of wagering was in vogue at the Downs in 1880, when Spokane defeated Proctor Knott. That year marked the retirement of the pari-mutuels. This year marks their restoration. Bookmakers crowded them out and bookmakers have made their restoration a necessity. Each machine is equipped with a telephone, and the ticket seller, after betting ceases on each race, 'phones to the calculators the number of wagers made. The calculators are in the cashiers' room at the north end of the ring, where the five openings are visible. Here the holders of cashable tickets will be paid. The black space above the cashiers will show the names of the horses finishing one, two, three and the amount due on each winning ticket. To the right is the combination auction pool booth. In this booth William Fitch, of Hamilton, Ont., and Charles E. Creed, of Chicago, will sell pools, beginning at 10 o'clock each morning of the twenty-three days of the spring meeting. On Derby day, May 5, the first pool will be sold by Joe Burt, who was famous as a pool seller in the days of the silver-tongued Bob Cathart. It was Burt who sold pools on the Ten Broeck-Mollie McCarty race, run on July 4, 1878, and won by Ten Broeck.

can win the Kentucky Derby it will be safe to bet that William H. Taft can win a foot race with Louisville's champion runner, Nat Cartmel. Synchronized positively will not start in the Derby. He has been in disgrace since the day Terah ran away from him and bid. Stone Street is a probable secret weight. He belongs to C. E. Hamilton, Uncertain starters are: Dunvegan, Bill Herron, Al Muller, Alomar, Cymbal, Zags, Pink Cap and Marcus Aurelius.

The officials at the spring meeting at Churchill Downs will be: Peelding Judge, Charles F. Price, associate judges, Charles P. Granger and Will Sholey; secretary and handicapper, Lyman H. Davis; starter, J. J. Holtman; starting judge, Walter H. Pearce; patrol judge, Charles C. Foster; paddock judge, John Walsh; timer, George Lindenberg.

Popular Jake Holtman, who will do the starting at Churchill Downs, arrived last night from Lexington. Among the turnouts who came with Holtman were Tom Colla, Moss Goldblatt and wife, Harry Breitfogel and Ben Meyer. All are registered at The Seelbach.

Charles E. Creed, who will be one of the sellers of combination pools at Churchill Downs, has arrived in the city from Chicago. William Fitch, who will also sell pools, will arrive tonight from Baltimore. Pools will be sold at the Downs daily, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Joe Young's Alma Boy pulled up lame after a workout. This one was injured at Santa Anita Park, and has never fully recovered.

Sir Huen, Arctic and Kercheval were walked around the Downs yesterday.

Col. Jim Douglas is an ill-tempered old rascal, and would rather chew a man's arm than a bunch of hay. Col. Jim was not on his good behavior yesterday, which is taken to mean that he is getting frisky.

Hereafter the carriage entrances at Churchill Downs will be at Fourth avenue and P street. Formerly it was at Seventh street and the railroad crossing. The new route obviates two things—danger from being run over by cars and either mud or dust.

Hasty Agnes was a cheap filly last year. Now she is a stakeholder. Hasty Agnes is by Hastings—St. Agnes. She has been showing decided class at Lexington.

Every safeguard has been thrown around the pari-mutuel system, to be used at Churchill Downs. To alter one of the tickets is forgery, for each one is signed by M. J. Winn, vice president and general manager. Each ticket when sold bears a time stamp.

"The Kentucky Racing Commission has done more for the sport of the khipus in the last year than all other things combined," said W. G. Litterbury yesterday.

"There is more confidence placed in the turf than there has been in a number of years. Not only the public, but the horse owners and breeders, are high in their praise of the good work. The ruling which prohibits horse owners from making bets on a track where they have horses running is a good one and has cleaned the turf of a great deal of scandal."

"The next important rule is the one where an owner has two boys under contract he is not allowed the privilege of taking one of the jockeys except an outside mount in any race where the owner starts one of his horses, which in the past created a great deal of comment.

"Now that the State law makes it legal to make a book on a racecourse, the public has more confidence in the racing game. There is one more ruling, if passed by the Racing Commission, which would make the turf free from scandal. That is to appoint one man as the presiding judge on every track in the State—a man who is thoroughly posted in the racing game, who will render his decisions fearlessly. Then the entire confidence of the public will be established.

"No matter how honest a judge may be, as long as he is appointed by the officials of the track it will be a hard matter to convince the general public that there is no favor shown. While, on the other hand, where the judge is appointed by the Racing Commission, his decisions would be respected as much as a judge on the supreme bench."

McCormick To Be Reinstated.

Cincinnati, May 2.—On the payment of a fine of $100 Harry E. McCormick, formerly of the Philadelphia National League club, will be reinstated, according to a decision announced today by the National Baseball Commission. McCormick left the game to engage in other business, but while thus engaged he played various times with clubs harboring ineligible players, for which reason the league was assessed.

Player McGiller, request that he be declared a free agent was denied, there being found no action in his purchase by the St. Louis Americans from the Austin club of the Western Association and later returned to that club, which would warrant such decision.

Dusty Rhodes and Covington.

Dusty Rhodes and the Covington Blues, the foremost team in Eastern Kentucky, will be the attraction at Dusty Rhodes Park, Twenty-sixth and Broadway, this afternoon. The Covington team has been victorious in all their struggles this season, and come highly recommended to play high-class ball. Capt. Vance has thoroughly reorganized his team, and is confident that the players now under contract can defeat any team in this section. George Yantz, Kelly and Jack Murphy are the newcomers on the West End team. All have seen recent service in professional company and will add greatly to the strength of the West End team. Louis Durham, the Louisville pitcher, has been engaged to pitch for the Rhodes team.

Two Records Broken.

Cambridge, Mass., May 2.—Two records were broken and one equaled in the annual interscholastic track and field games under the auspices of the Harvard Athletic Association today. The meet was won by Worcester with 28 points; Phillips, Andover was second with 27 points, and the Volkmann School of Boston, third with 15 points. The feature was the work of E. E. Nelson, of the Volkmann School, who ran the 100 yards in 9.45 seconds, which is claimed to be within a fifth of a second of the world's amateur record.

In the 220-yard dash Nelson equaled the interscholastic record of W. A. Schick, of Andover—21.86 seconds. W. R. Gardner, of Andover, broke the association's record in the pole vault by getting a height of 11 feet 8 inches.

Valsburg Track To Reopen.

Nowak, N. J., May 2.—The Valsburg board track, the scene of so many famous bicycle races in the past, is to be reopened May 19 under the name of the Newark Velodrome. The old track has been replaced by an entirely new one of the saucer type, six laps to the mile. New State's baseball honors Howard Williams, 19,000 are being constructed. There will be race meets every Wednesday night as well as Sunday afternoons, and after June 1 the riders will swing around a circuit composed of the Essex Road, Madison Square Garden, Revere Beach, Boston and the Springfield and Worcester tracks.

Opening of Butchertown Park To-day.

Butchertown and Muldoons, of Cincinnati, is the opening attraction at Butchertown Park (Morning Star grounds) this afternoon. With enlarged seating and every comfort for the fans, a tremendous outpouring of "East Enders" will be on hand to welcome their favorites. The Butchertown aggregation, with two victories over the mighty Glenwood team to their credit, are confident of conquering Cincinnati's foremost semi-professional team. Managers Haas and Mendenhall are tending every effort to annex the Kentucky State championship, and the way the team has been playing fills them with confidence in their ability to land the State's baseball honors. Howard Williams, the cleverest shortstop about the town lots, will be in charge of the team on the field. The invincible Boardman will race the opening game. Dr. T. H. Baker, first citizen of the Essex Road, will honor the occasion by leaving the first ball across the pan. Babe Ryan will

SAINTS DO WELL IN FIELD.

T. PAUL, May 2.—(Special)—Leroy was in fine form to-day, and the Saints took the second game of the series from the Colonels by a score of 5 to 1. The Indians would have had a shut-out but for a wild pitch in the eighth inning, which allowed Durham to score. The Saints also played a great fielding game and helped Leroy out of several tight places.

Durham, Harley and Woodruff hit for singles in the eighth, but it avails little. The Saints started to score in the first, when Duncanson singled, went to second on Flood's sacrifice and scored when Perry threw Wheeler's bunt high to first. A base on balls to Noonan, a sacrifice, McKenney's single and Perrine's error on Leroy's grounder gave the Saints two runs in the second. The Saints did not score again until the sixth, when Davis hit a home run over the fence. With one down in the eighth, Wheeler doubled and Davis doubled, giving the Saints a 5-1 lead. The Colonels looked dangerous in the eighth, when Durham, Harley and Woodruff all singled, hitting the bases, but Perrine hit a high fly to Noonan. Sullivan caught it. The game was over. The Saints had scored on a wild pitch. Burke was the third man out on a little fly to first in the second.

High School Beats K. M. I.

Straight Victory By the Score of 5 to 1.

At Bashaw's Station yesterday afternoon High School baseball team played its second annual championship game, defeating K. M. I. by the score of 5 to 1. The game was the Purple's sixth game of the season and its sixth straight victory. The contest was very exciting for seven innings. Neither side was able to score till the seventh inning, when both broke into the run column. High School getting two and K. M. I. one. The Purple settled matters definitely in the ninth by sending three runs over the plate.

The feature of the game was the excellent pitching of Capt. Kimble, of High School. He deserved a shut-out. The Soldiers are credited with five hits, but four of them were scratches. Throws to the plate by Key and Cheseloh were loudly applauded.

By winning yesterday the Purple is tied for championship honors with Manual, whom they meet on Saturday afternoon at Manual Park at Brooklet. The Woodbine streets. The championship standing follows:
